POLICE PUSHING PROBE OF LEVIN RANSOM DEMAND

Police were pushing an investigation last night into the reported kidnaping of Samuel Levin, former vice president of the Consumers Gas and Oil company, who disappeared last Saturday night. Chief of Detectives John Norton questioned Max Glasser and Louis Weiss, friends of Levin. They were said to have told Norton that the kidnapers were negotiating for ransom.

Attorney William J. Robinson, representing Levin, said he had received a telephone call informing him that Levin was safe and that further communication would be made with the lawyer himself. The police prepared to trace any further telephone calls.

Levin disposed of his stock in the gas and oil company last Friday for $7,000. Saturday he left his home at 165 North Pine avenue and has not been seen since. His automobile was found Sunday morning in front of 4148 North Springfield avenue.

Chief Norton ordered Glasser held for further questioning. He refused to discuss the case, although he admitted that $6,000 ransom had been demanded by the kidnapers.

TRAP POLICEMAN IN AUTO AT CURB AND SHOOT HIM

Frank J. Devitt, a policeman attached to the Woodlawn station, was the victim of a mysterious shooting early this morning when on his way to him home at 5616 South Elizabeth street and is in a serious condition at the German Deaconness hospital. Devitt had finished his night's work and was driving in Garfield boulevard when at Morgan street his machine was forced to the curb by two men in a coupe. At that point a third man was standing on the sidewalk.

One of the men in the coupe called out: "That's him," and the man on the sidewalk fired, the bullet striking Devitt in the shoulder. The three men then fled in the coupe. Before Devitt could call for help he became unconscious and lay in that condition for some time. Finally, however, he regained consciousness and drove on to his home, only a short distance away. He lost much blood between the time he was shot and that of reaching the hospital, and it is this fact that makes his condition serious. He could offer no theory as to the motive for the shooting.

Delay Starting Chicago's New P. O. Until Fall

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—The $21,000,000 Chicago postoffice will not get under way before this fall, according to information emanating from the treasury today. Up to within a few days ago treasury officials had held forth hopes that the contract for the new structure would be placed on the market this month or not later than the first week of July. Now it transpired that not even the plans and specifications for the new building have been perfected.

Treasury officials disclosed today that the plans for the structure have been sent back to Graham, Anderson, Probst & White to be put in final form. The question of how long it will take the Chicago architects to complete their designs was not answered here today. Even if they were completed by the latter part of this month, it would not be possible to award the contract for the structure, under existing treasury practice, before the middle or the latter part of August. After the contract is awarded it will take from one to three weeks before a bond satisfactory to the government can be posted and work begun.

Plans Not Complete.

One searcher for information about the Chicago postal project was told at the treasury that the plans, as they reached Washington, were not complete. Treasury officials said they had been sent to Chicago and that it would not be possible to let the contract until they had been returned here and approved.

Officials asserted, however, that the postal project certainly would be under way this fall. In the meantime, it was said, efforts are being made to obtain possession of the Van Buren street site. The general accounting office is now examining the deed preparatory to rejecting it or approving it and arranging for completion of the site transaction.

Delay After Delay Follows.

Delay after delay has marked the government's efforts to build a postoffice at Chicago. In 1928 the Chicago architects were employed to design the building. In September, 1929, after the government had purchased the Marshall Field site, it was announced that designs would be completed within from thirty to sixty days. In April, 1930, Postmaster General Brown refused to accept the Marshall Field site and took steps to obtain the Van Buren street site. Last winter treasury officials said the designs should be completed early this spring, so the building could be begun in April.

LEWIS SEES OFFICIALS.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis asserted last night that authorities in Washington had "tricked the people too long" about the start of construction on the new Chicago postoffice.

"I went to Washington because of the complications concerning this important improvement," the senator said. "The architects, I learned, had sent their plans a month before and they had been approved. The difficulty seemed to be that the title to the site was all snarled up between different claimants."

Points to Blaine Quiz.

However, Mr. Lewis asserted, he had conferences with the postmaster general, representatives of the attorney general, of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Maj. Ferry K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, and was informed that the work was ordered to begin almost immediately.

"This is at least the dozenth delay, he added. "I am informed that the postoffice department hesitates to go further with the building while a sub committee of the senate headed by Senator Blaine of Wisconsin, charges that here in Chicago the government has paid exhorbitant sums for air rights and land."

6 MONTHS BRIDE AND HER HUSBAND KILLED BY TRAIN

Nicholas Zorick, 26 years old, proprietor of a cafe in Lemont, Ill., and his bride of six months, Mrs. Verni Zorick, 26 years old, were instantly killed early this morning by a fast Chicago & Alton passenger train at the State street crossing in Lemont.

Zorick had closed his place of business and with his wife was walking to their home at 223 Canal street. When they reached the crossing the gates were down, according to the police, and it is supposed they walked around them and onto the tracks, where they were struck by the train. Their bodies were carried 150 feet down the tracks.

Members of the engine crew said they supposed the Zoricks underestimated the distance the train was from them and tried to beat it across the tracks. There were no other witnesses to the accident.

STARR'S NOTES TO DOCTOR TELL SUICIDE PLANS

Both Forged, Says Stepfather.

Mineola, N. Y., June 23.—(AP)—Starr Faithfull's two "suicide letters" to Dr. G. Jameson Carr, ship's surgeon of the liner Franconia, were presented to the Nassau county grand jury tonight and then made public.

Stanley E. Faithfull, stepfather of the girl, whose body was found on the sands of Long Beach June 3, was shown the notes and immediately declared they were forgeries.

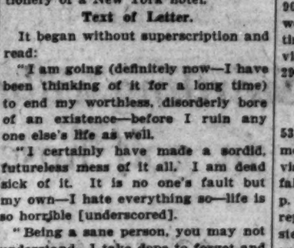
"They are not in my daughter's handwriting," he said. "They are a frameup to prove she committed suicide."

Inspector Harold R. King, who has been directing the investigation, said the writing "looks like that in the diary Starr left."

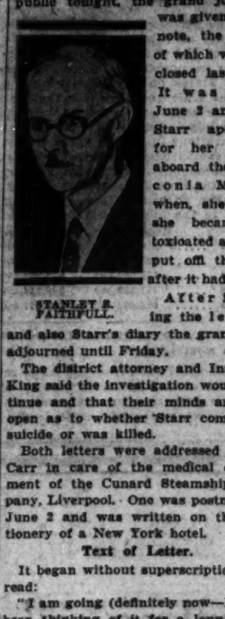
District Attorney Elvin Edwards said handwriting experts would be called to settle the question.

Third Note Given Jury.

In addition to the two letters made public tonight, the grand jury also was given a third note, the cotents of which were disclosed last week. It was written June 2 and in it Starr apologized for her actions aboard the Franconia May 29, when, she wrote, she became intoxicated and was put off the ship after it had sailed.



DR. G. JAMESON CARR. [A. P. photo]



STANLEY E. FAITHFULL.

After inspecting the letters and also Starr's diary the grand jury adjourned until Friday.

The district attorney and Inspector King said the investigation would continue and that their minds are still open as to whether Starr committed suicide or was killed.

Both letters were addressed to Dr. Carr in care of the medical department of the Cunard Steamship company, Liverpool. One was postmarked June 2 and was written on the stationery of a New York hotel.

Text of Letter.

It began without superscription and read:

"I am going (definitely now—I have been thinking of it for a long time) to end my worthless, disorderly bore of an existence—before I ruin any one else's life as well.

"I certainly have made a sordid, futureless mess of it all. I am dead sick of it. It is no one's fault but my own—I hate everything so—life is so horrible [underscored].

"Being a sane person, you may not understand—I take dope to forget and drink to try and like people, but it is of no use. I am mad and insane over you. I hold my breath to try to stand it—take drugs in the hope of waking happier, but that homesick feeling never leaves me — I have, strangely enough, more of a feeling of peace—whatever you call it—now that I know it will soon be over.

Anticipates Her Death.

"The half hour before I die will, I imagine, be quite blissful. You promised to come and see me. I realize absolutely that it will be the one and only time. There is no earthly reason why you should come. If you do it will be what I call an act of marvelous generosity and kindness.

"What I did yesterday was very horrible, although I don't see how you could lose your job, as it must have been clearly seen what a nuisance you thought me.

"If I don't see you again—good-by. Sorry to so lose all sense of humor. But I am suffering so that all I want is to have it over with. It's become a hell such as I couldn't have imagined.

"If you come to see me when you are in this time you will be a Sport. You are assured by this letter of no more bother from me, my dear.

"STARR."

Post and Gatty Plane Sighted Over Britain

BULLETIN.

LONDON, June 24.—(AP)—The airplane bearing Wiley Post and Harold Gatty from America was reported sighted over Bangor at 12:20 p. m. English time. Whether it was Bangor, Ireland, or Bangor, Wales, was not immediately clear. The plane circled twice over the town and departed eastward. The report indicated the ship had arrived on this side at 7:20 a. m. (Chicago daylight saving time).

Bangor, Ireland, a few miles from Belfast, is very close to the route which had been planned by Gatty and Post. They expected to fly over Malinhead on the northern coast of Ireland. Malinhead is about 90 miles from Bangor.

BULLETIN.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 24.—(AP)—Otto Hillig and Holger Hoirlis, co-pilots of the airplane Liberty, took off at 5:54 a. m., Newfoundland summer time (3:24 Chicago daylight saving time) today on a projected non-stop flight to Copenhagen, Denmark. The heavily loaded Bellanca plane took off without mishap. It carried 605 gallons of gasoline, sufficient for 36 to 40 flying hours. The distance to Copenhagen is 3,150 miles and the flyers expected to make it in 28 hours.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 23.—(AP)—The Winnie Mae, a single motored cabin monoplane, with Wiley Post and Harold Gatty aboard, presumably was winging its way well over the ocean tonight on the air road to Berlin.

The two veteran flyers started on their perilous water flight at 2:27 p. m. [Chicago daylight saving time] today, three hours and forty minutes after their arrival from Roosevelt field, N. Y. They hoped to reach Berlin in 19 hours 3 minutes.

Although they announced prior to their takeoff they would send out the call letters of the plane, KHRDW, every hour, on the hour, as well as an "all well" signal, only one ship of the many in the trans-Atlantic shipping lane reported hearing them.

Drottningholm Picks Up Signal.

The S. S. Drottningholm, while 120 miles northeast of Cape Race, N. F., picked up the signals at 6:44 p. m. [Chicago time], but the plane did not give its position. The captain said the wind at that hour was southwest, force five [19 to 24 miles an hour], and the weather clear and fine.

Other ships to report on weather conditions over the Atlantic were:

The S. S. Britannic, approximately 200 miles west of Ireland, heading west; reported at 6 p. m. [Chicago time] that skies were overcast and visibility moderate, and a barometer 29.97 steady.

Reports Barometer Falling.

The S. S. Ausonia at 7 p. m., in 53.32 north by 28.53 west, reported moderate southerly winds and poor visibility with a barometer of 29.94 falling. The S. S. Kungsholm at 5 p. m., in 56.03 north by 28.00 west, reported the barometer was 29.90 and steady, a two mile southwest wind and hazy atmosphere.

The aviators left Roosevelt field at 3:56 a. m. [Chicago time] and made the 1,200 mile hop in six hours 52 minutes at an average of considerably more than the 150 miles an hour which they hope to maintain in order to beat the 22 day globe circling record of the German dirigible, the Graf Zeppelin. After a bite to eat and after the ship was refueled they were off again.

All the flying will be done by Post, a one-eyed veteran of the air, who sits alone in the cramped forward cockpit of the white plane.

Pull Messages on a String.

In the navigator's compartment Gatty will watch the instruments, operate the radio and keep Post informed of their position and whether or not they are maintaining their schedule. They plan to communicate by means of messages pulled back and forth on a string.

Forewarned of rain and fog ahead of them, the airmen are prepared to slash through the clouds under the guidance of Gatty. They said they would try for altitude to avoid much of the thick weather.

Otto Hillig and Holger Hoirlis, who arrived here before Post and Gatty, said late tonight they would hop off for Denmark at 3 a. m. [12:30 a. m. Chicago time] tomorrow.

The Winnie Mae is named for a daughter of F. C. Hall of Chickasha, Okla., a wealthy oil operator, who is backing the flight.

Post learned to fly in 1924, going up solo after 1 hour and 40 minutes of instruction. His log now shows 3,100 hours of solo flying. Flying the same

STIMSON DROPS SPEECH ON DEBT PLAN IN HURRY

Feared Paris Would Resent Talk.

France Holds Back

Paris dispatches say France opposes any let-up in Young plan payments. Apparently will not accept Hoover proposal but instead will make a counter-proposal that Germany shall pay the amount due for 1931-'32 on reparations, the money going into the international bank, indirectly to be used to aid Germany's credit. Story on page 2.

Chancellor Bruening in radio speech from Berlin appeals to France to "bury the hatchet and forget the past." Proposes "peace conference," similar to German-British meeting at Chequers, England. Story on page 2.

BULLETIN.

PARIS, June 24. — (AP) — The United States government has informed France that the conditions which she is expected to attach to her acceptance of the Hoover moratorium proposal probably would not be regarded with favor in Washington, it was learned today.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—A plan to utilize the radio in an endeavor to still further mobilize world opinion back of the Hoover war debt moratorium proposal was suddenly abandoned tonight following a conference between President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson on the latest developments in France.

M. PAUL CLAUDEL.

Secretary Stimson, who was to have delivered the address at 10 p. m. tonight, announced the change of plans.

Although mystery surrounded the cancellation of the widely heralded Stimson address, it became known that it was prompted at least in part by a desire not to take any step that might further cool the French attitude toward the United States' plan for alleviating the German financial situation.

Feared Inopportune.

Every effort is being put forth to persuade the French government to unconditionally accept the Hoover proposal and it was felt in administration circles that a widely disseminated argument in behalf of the Hoover plan might hinder rather than help the negotiations with France. Unofficial news from France tonight is that the Hoover plan will not be accepted, but that a counter-proposal, different in character, may be expected.

Following today's cabinet meeting, where the French delay in approving the Hoover proposal was the major topic, it was announced that Secretary Stimson would deliver an address outlining the reasons why the President had intervened in the European economic situation with his proposal for a postponement for one year of the war debt and reparations payments. Mr. Stimson took his speech to the President at 6 o'clock and shortly before 7 it was announced there would be no speech tonight.

French Are Irritated.

The administration decision to remain silent on the Hoover proposal was interpreted tonight as illustrating the extreme delicacy of the debt holiday negotiations with France. There have been many indications in the last day or two that Paris was irritated by the failure of the White House to take the Hoover plan up with French officials prior to its announcement. Secretary Mellon's presence in England just prior to the Hoover pronouncement and the inference drawn from this that this country had consulted Great Britain but not France has contributed in maintaining the French position toward the proposal at a somewhat frigid temperature.

The cancellation of the Stimson address also gave color to reports that President Hoover was relying on European powers, especially Italy, rather than the state department, to exert the pressure on France needed to secure adoption of the Hoover plan.

In further conversations between American and French diplomatic officials, both in Washington and Paris, President Hoover's views of the vital necessity of a complete debt holiday were urged upon the French government. The French ambassador, Paul Claudel, conferred at length with Mr. Stimson.

The efforts of the state department are being directed particularly to the objections raised in Paris, that it is not possible to waive, even for a year, the payment by Germany of the unconditional and non-postponable annuities under the Young plan, from which France next year would derive about 100 millions.

With French officials suggesting that their utmost concession would be to consent to the payment of the unconditional reparations to the international bank, to be held in escrow and released to needy European countries, chiefly Germany, some officials here were inclined to pessimism regarding the outcome. The President, however, is confident France will accept without reserve before the end of the week.

Great Britain, Germany, and Austria have accepted unconditionally. Mr. Stimson has been assured by the Italian ambassador that Italy will accept, though Mussolini suggests the condition that Germany and Austria abandon their projected customs union.

Belgium Follows France.

Belgium, which, like France and Italy, would receive more from reparations than she would pay her creditors next year, has asked for further information from Washington, but is expected to fall in line if France does.

It was reported in an authoritative quarter today that the federal reserve board is considering granting a substantial short term credit to the German Reichsbank through the New York reserve bank. It was also reported that the Federal Reserve bank already had taken some steps to help the reichsbank maintain her gold supply.

The President today received a letter from Representative Andersen [Rep., Minn.], in which Mr. Andersen proposed that this country dispose of its surplus wheat by selling it to the countries which owe America debts, as a return for suspending the payments.

In his letter the Minnesota representative suggested that the farm board sell wheat now held by its agencies to Germany, France, Italy, and Great Britain at the market price, and that interest payments due from these countries on their debts to this country be suspended for ten years. He commended the President's plan for a suspension of debt payments.

Congress Being Canvassed.

Although President Hoover has received assurances from leaders of both parties and all factions in the senate and house that they will support the legislation necessary for carrying out America's part of the debt suspension plan, he is canvassing the entire membership of both houses of congress, it became known today, so that he will have a complete record of their positions on the proposal.

The text of the President's communication to members of congress was: "You no doubt have seen my statement in Sunday's press of the proposals of the American government in respect to postponement for one year of all intergovernmental debts.

"Inasmuch as the proposal is, of course, contingent upon action by congress and as the matter is one of national interest, having no partisan character, in that light I consulted before action the senators and representatives of both parties present in Washington and as many as possible who were accessible in the country.

Asks for Statement.

"This list of generous support from members was shown in the public statement referred to above. I regret that difficulties of communication rendered it impossible to make contact with all members of the senate and house.

"I do not wish to press any member for a reply as to his views if he prefers not to give them at this time, yet if you are favorable to the proposal in the first paragraph of the statement above mentioned it would undoubtedly aid in the negotiations now in progress if you could inform me thereof."

It was stated at the White House that replies have already been received from a large majority of the members of both houses and that nearly all are favorable.

International Bankers Anxious.

From information gleaned in financial circles it would appear that anxiety of the international bankers of New York and London regarding the fate of the investments in Germany of American and British private capital bulks large in the series of developments leading up to Mr. Hoover's decision to propose the debt payment holiday.

American financiers with more than one billion dollars of investments in Germany, acquired chiefly since 1924, have been increasingly alarmed at the trend of affairs in Germany ever since the radical Hitlerites made their startling gains in the German elections last fall. Then early in this year the financial condition of the reich began to go from bad to worse. A flight of capital from Germany increased the nervousness in London and New York. Incidentally, this flight of capital was the result not only of a withdrawal of funds from Germany by apprehensive Germany capitalists, but of a withdrawal of loans on short term paper by American and British investors.

By the first week of June the credit of the Reichsbank had been seriously impaired and many financiers at home and abroad did not conceal their fears that Germany was on the brink of financial collapse. In the background lurked the specter of communism, which it was feared would fasten its clutches upon the German government in the event of an economic debacle. With communism in the saddle foreign investments in Germany might become as valueless as they became in Russia.

With the international bankers genuinely alarmed there followed interchanges between the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the upshot of which was a decision to bring pressure to bear on both the British and American governments to take some action to bolster up German credit. In America, Owen D. Young, a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and the author of the Young plan for the settlement of German reparations, became the chief mover for relief measures.

Young Submits Plan.

Mr. Young proposed at once a suspension of all payments on German reparations and allied war debts and, uniting with other American financiers, placed the proposition before the President, according to the version of the incident in financial circles. Mr. Hoover, who was full of conviction that there should be no easing of the debt terms unless Europe undertakes to disarm, is said to have evinced considerable coolness to the proposition when it was first submitted.

At that time the President disposed of the matter temporarily by requesting Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to inquire into the situation when he should reach London and to report. What Mr. Mellon reported of the gravity of the financial and economic condition of Germany and of the probable consequences of the financial collapse of the reich convinced Mr. Hoover that he should act without delay. In doing so he adopted the suggestion originally made by Mr. Young, except that he limited the proposed debt holiday to one year. Mr. Young had proposed two years.

Germany and U. S. Bankers.

One of the most interesting aspects of the situation is the intimate connection that has existed at all times between the payment of German reparations and German borrowings from American capitalists. Germany began borrowing from America when the reparations payments began and borrowed 60 per cent of the amount required for such payments. When the period of the depression set in Germany was unable to borrow in the United States on anywhere near the previous scale and then, for the first time, the heads of the reich threw up their hands and declared the payment of reparations in full an impossibility.

The comparison of Germah reparations payments and German borrowings in the United States in each year, beginning with the Dawes plan, is shown in the following table:

	Reparation.	Borrowings.
1924-'25	$ 256,000,000	$ 197,200,000
1925-'26	291,000,000	296,952,000
1926-'27	375,000,000	222,964,200
1927-'28	437,500,000	268,316,000
1928-'29	625,000,000	*182,477,500
Total	$1,992,500,000	$1,196,909,200

*Ten months.

These figures are from the latest report on American underwriting of German securities by the commerce department, under date of September, 1929.

France Refuses to Suspend Reparations; Has Own Plan

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 23.—France's answer to President Hoover's debt moratorium offer will be dispatched to Washington tomorrow afternoon. It will read "yes, if."

There are several of these "ifs" in the reply but the Alpha and Omega of them is that the Young plan must remain intact not only after the moratorium, but during it. If the United States accepts the French acceptance, observers point out, America will be morally committed to help carry out the terms of the Young plan, which it does not officially recognize.

Hint at Substitute Scheme.

If all the hints dropped in official quarters are to be taken seriously, the French answer will submit a substitute scheme for a moratorium along strictly French lines, offering all sorts of benevolent relief measures directly or indirectly linked up with the Briand scheme for a European federation.

Over and above the ifs in the French reply there is another if—the question of whether or not the government will be overthrown when it submits the Hoover plan and answers interpellations in the chamber of deputies Friday. Premier Laval today encountered considerable hostility when he announced in the chamber that he would explain the entire situation Friday. While refusing to make known the contents of the French reply, he declared that no modification of the Young plan would be accepted by the government without ratification by parliament.

The hostility of the deputies was based on Mr. Hoover's sudden announcement of his plan, without giving notification to France.

Makes Two Reservations.

The French reply, the general lines of which were fixed at a cabinet meeting today, will set forth at length the French position and probably will contain recommendations calculated to supplement the Hoover proposal. In a sense it can be termed a counter proposal.

All importance, however, hinges on two reservations on which acceptance by France is conditioned. The first is the inviolability of the Young plan. The second, the insistence on the principle that Germany continue payment of the unconditional annuities, is qualified by an offer to return this payment to Germany through indirect channels, thus keeping the mechanism of the Young plan intact during the period of the moratorium.

How Scheme Would Work.

The mechanism for claiming the unconditional annuities in principle and then relinquishing them is said to have been worked out by Pierre Quesnay, director of the bank for international settlements, in collaboration with other officers of the institution. The main lines of the plan are as follows:

Germany hands over to the international bank $125,000,000 in unconditional annuities as provided by the Young plan. This sum is then split up among the various creditors in the way provided by the Young plan when a moratorium on conditional annuities is declared.

The payment would remain in the international bank, so strictly speaking it would not be turned over to Germany as a loan. It would be credited to the accounts of the various allied powers and would be utilized by the bank to maintain Germany's credit, according to a clause of the Young plan.

Advantage to France.

The advantage to France is that first the loss to her would be split up among the other allied nations and second, that it can be covered by sinking fund bonds, according to law, instead of making a hole in the budget and increasing taxation, which is politically impossible.

The actual wording of the clause in the French note is awaited with keen interest here, as the summary of it which leaked out from semi-official quarters raises a number of questions. One of them is: would the whole annuity automatically be returned to Germany or, as suggested in certain quarters, would the handling of it be left to the discretion of the French dominated world bank and slices used to relieve other European powers in the interests of French prestige?

Premier Laval outlined for Ambassador Edge late tonight the draft of the French note when the American envoy called on him. It is believed the main purpose of the ambassador's surprise visit was to convey assurance from Washington that the American government had not tried to keep France in the dark about the progress of the negotiations with Germany.

GERMANY PLEADS WITH FRANCE TO 'BURY HATCHET'

Proposes Peace Parley to Forget the Past.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 23. — Chancellor Bruening, speaking over the national radio hookup tonight, pleaded with France to coöperate with Germany and meet her in conference, similar to the recent Anglo-German conference at Chequers, so "that President Hoover's magnanimous plan may bear fruit and give help to the distraught world, that we may work together for the stabilisation of peace in Europe, surmount the past in our souls and learn jointly to look forward."

He pleaded with his own people to "show self-discipline and not lose their sense of proportion at the first overwhelming joy of America's offer to help, bringing new hope for Germany and Europe, for which we are most cordially grateful. But I must warn the German people to continue to coöperate and bear heavy burdens and make the hardest sacrifices.

Emergency Decrees Must Stand.

"To master financial dangers we decreed emergency measures. President Hoover's generous suggestion of a year's reparations holiday would enable us to eliminate some of its worst hardships, but on the whole the decrees must stand. For the current year we believe the budget will balance, provided the business situation does not become worse. Nevertheless, several points are not clear even this year. The taxes are yielding hundreds of millions less than last year.

"It would be a dangerous illusion to think we have surmounted all difficulties. Another hard year and a half are ahead of us. With good will it is possible to find ways and means to bring to the fore the common interests of the neighbor nations, France and Germany, and strengthen this realization of common interests until they become a lasting influence. For the harmonious coöperation of European nations and a satisfactory economic exchange with the new world, it is necessary to stabilize European peace and bury the past.

"I would be grateful if it would be possible to arrange an introductory meeting between Germany and France similar to the Anglo-German meeting at Chequers. The tasks awaiting France and Germany are too enormous and too pressing for these nations not to find common ground on which to start solving these problems."

Italy Makes a Reservation.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 23.—Italy's reply accepting President Hoover's moratorium proposal, with a generalized reservation that Germany will not take advantage of it to foster measures which would be against the general economy of Europe, will be dispatched to Washington tomorrow, it was announced tonight.

This reservation is spoken of here as being against the proposed Austro-Germany customs union, but in the note, it is understood, a much less concrete form will be given to it.

Senator Pat Harrison Urges a Vacation for Politics

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 23.—[Special.]—A political holiday during the consideration of the war debt holiday was called for today by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.].

PAT HARRISON. [Pictograms.]

"Times like these are like times of war," he explained, "and a political truce should be declared. And so far as my own feelings are concerned the public interest will best be served by declaring an armistice on politics so that these issues may be solved by American statesmen rather than by American politicians.

Senator Harrison said he was not concerned "about any political glory that might come to President Hoover from his move."

"As an American," said the senator, "I rejoiced in his making it. I only hope that it will succeed.

"The President is to be congratulated on the nonpartisan manner in which he has conducted his negotiations and presented his plan," Senator Harrison declared. "It is most pleasing that these Democratic leaders with whom he was able to communicate gave him every assurance of coöperation."

Consulted by Telephone.

Senator Harrison was among those consulted by the President over the long distance phone. He reached Washington this morning for a personal conference at the White House and it was following this talk with President Hoover that he further stated his intention of supporting the plan to suspend payments on debts and reparations. Within the next few days, Senator Harrison said, he expected to consult with Owen D. Young, who, it was reported in certain quarters today, was a prime initiator of the plan.

To his approval of the plan Senator Harrison added three qualifications. He insisted that there be no increase in taxes; he emphasized the fact that he gave his approval only on condition that all the countries involved agree to the plan; and he hoped that the President would see fit to call the congress in extraordinary session prior to Dec. 7, so that the essential legislation might be passed before Dec. 15, when the next debt payments fall due.

"I said to the President," Senator Harrison explained, "that he must not construe my approval of the one year suspension of intergovernmental payments as an indorsement of any move that might be made at the next session of congress for increased taxes.

Suggests Bonds if Necessary.

"It is my belief, and I so explained it to the President, that whatever increased deficit may be caused by the acceptance of his plan can be taken care of by the issuance of additional bonds or short term certificates. It is my hope, however, if world confidence is restored and economic prosperity revived that the governmental receipts of our own country may be increased and additional bond issues be found not necessary."

Senator Harrison's desire to see congress called perhaps a month early was met with a reiteration by Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] of his statement that the debt payments due Dec. 15 might properly be postponed on the authority of the President's expressed plan and without congressional approval. Senator Smoot insisted that he saw no necessity for an early session.

Senator Schall's Views.

Senator Thomas D. Schall, insurgent Republican of Minnesota, declared today:

"I am not opposed to the suspension for a year or even three years of the small rate of interest we are securing on the so called war debts. I am not so sure that it would be of any great service in straightening out the world depression. However, I am willing to go along with the President if he will assure the American people in a message sent to congress that this is not a definite move for the cancellation of the war debts."

ITALY TO PLEDGE VATICAN IT WILL PUNISH RIOTERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 23.—The Italian government will dispatch a second note of reply to Pope Pius XI, tomorrow. This note has been ready since Saturday. In this note no apologies are offered to the Vatican for the recent anti-church violence, but it is understood to assure the Vatican that investigations have been made and that punishment will be dealt those found guilty. While not clarifying the situation or giving the Vatican all the satisfaction it demands, this note is said to be reassuring in nature and marking a small step forward in restoring peace.

ALDERMEN DELAY MAYOR'S PAYLESS VACATION PLAN

Cermak and Nelson Engage in Warm Debate.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

...proposed ordinance, compelling ...employés to take two weeks vacation without pay, was discussed for two and a half hours yesterday afternoon before the council finance committee. Action was deferred for a week on the plan, estimated to save the city $3,398,822.

Yesterday's delay appeared to be due to the fears expressed by union labor representatives that the passage ...might jeopardize vacations with pay in the future. Fred ...president of the policemen's organization, said that the patrolmen ...favored the ordinance.

...Is Explained.

...ordinance repeals the city ordinance which grants a two weeks' vacation with compensation," said ...of this ordinance is passed ...time to seek a new ordinance ...which will restore the vacation with pay."

...P. Sullivan, head of the building ...asked for more time in order to study the proposal before ...the attitude of the members of his union organization.

...Knott, of the electrical workers, said that the repeal of the present vacation ordinance is looked upon with suspicion.

"A former mayor made everyone take a vacation without pay," said Knott, "but there was no repeal of the ordinance granting vacations with pay."

"Perhaps the ordinance will cause quite a hardship," Mayor Cermak told the aldermen, "but it will cause less unemployment than anything yet suggested. It is a plan for saving part of the sum which we must save. The plan is more acceptable than the discharge of 2,300 employes at an average salary of $2,000 for the remainder of the year. We have already made ...cuts. Many positions are ...vacant."

"The proposed payless vacation is absurd," said Col. A. A. Sprague, ...of the mayor's economy committee. "But I believe that the employes ...prefer it over any other plan ...will effect the same amount of ...saving."

Sexton Advocates Proposal.

Corporation Counsel Sexton said the ...ordinance recommended only after a ...careful survey and the collection of ...considerable information of what sensible ...private business is doing.

"The plan will not impair the ...efficiency," said Sexton, "nor will it ...jeopardize any employe's civil service ...rights. There is no hope of getting ...favorable legislation from a special session ...of the general assembly unless ...we have done some economizing in ...our business."

"The city employés should be in favor of the adoption of this plan," said Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th].

Ald. O. F. Nelson [46th] did not take ...kindly to the ordinance. He asserted ...if the budget would pay out, if the ...city could fix its tax anticipation warrants. Then he took a fling at the ...mayor, along this line:

"They will not buy the tax warrants and will not advise others to ...do so. They desire to dictate certain ...matters, abolishing the elective ...right of assessors. We can build a ...case against the bankers by holding ...meetings in every ward where we will ...tell the people what they are doing."

Mayor Enters Discussion.

"I do not discuss the plight of the ...money owners, who cannot pay their ...taxes," interposed Mayor Cermak.

"Will your plan reduce taxes," replied the mayor, "and I ...feel if we do our part it will aid us in the sale of tax anticipation warrants."

"The wise employer," said Nelson, "will not now reduce wages, because that decreases purchasing power. "If the employés are given a two weeks' vacation without pay, you thereby decrease the purchasing power of the community by $2,398,000."

"If you do not reduce city expenditures," replied Mayor Cermak, "you will soon reduce the purchasing power of the community by $8,000,000 a month—the combined salary roll of the city and the school system."

"All the employés need money and it does not appeal to me to take part of their pay away from them," said Nelson.

"It is either two weeks vacation without pay or the laying off of 2,300 employés for the remainder of the year," retorted the mayor.

Nelson Opposes Both Ideas.

"I do not believe that either plan is necessary," said Nelson. "At a special session you will find the small merchants lined up with union labor. They will oppose the Civic Federation, the Citizens' association and the Bureau of Public Efficiency which send representatives to all sessions to the legislature to see that the tax bills of the big property owners are taken care of."

At the committee meeting the outlook for the sale of warrants wore a more gloomy aspect. "We are hoping against hope," the mayor said, "that the city will have money with which to function during the summer." After the meeting the mayor requested Victor S. Petterson, deputy controller, to prepare a report on the city's present financial status and estimates of tax collections. This will be used, according to indications, as the basis of a new program to be presented to the bankers.

Has Hope from Banks.

Following a conference with Silas H. Strawn, head of the citizens' committee that came to the financial rescue of the city last year, the mayor said he believed the banks might be disposed to buy tax anticipation warrants if the city adopts an economy program and lives within its means.

"If a business man is losing money it isn't likely he can get a loan," said the mayor, "but if he is operating efficiently and shows promise of profits and an ability to pay all obligations he doesn't have any trouble getting credit."

City Controller Szymczak estimated that the city has $30,000,000 in warrants to sell. It was pointed out, however, in the finance committee meeting that even if the city does sell warrants there will be a deficit at the end of the year unless a retrenchment program is rigidly followed.

$9,770,000 SCHOOL WORKERS' SALARIES UP TO BOARD TODAY

The salaries of 14,000 school teachers and 3,000 civil service employés of the board of education, now more than two months behind in their pay, will be considered today at the regular meeting of the board. Plans to pay the employés in scrip, either in the form of participating certificates in a tax anticipation warrant trust or certificates of indebtedness, were considered at a recess meeting last week and will probably be voted on today.

In addition to $7,770,000 which will be owing to the teachers Friday and $2,000,000 which will be owed to civil service employés on July 1, the board must meet almost $500,000 in interest on redemption of bonds due July 1. President Lewis E. Myers announced yesterday that money for the bond interest would be forthcoming, but he was doubtful about meeting the salary requirements. The source of the interest money would be disclosed to the board today President Myers said.

PAYLESS PAY DAY

Cook county failed to deliver pay checks yesterday to the employés for the period ending June 17. Several times previously the county has threatened payless pay days, such as the employés suffered last year, but each time heretofore the cash has been found to pay the workers.

No one connected with the county board was willing to predict when pay days will be resumed.

$161,399,582 TAX CASH NEARLY ALL PAID BY COUNTY

Practically all of the $161,399,582 taxes collected of the total 1929 levy of $276,161,000 has been distributed to the taxing bodies, it was announced yesterday by County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough. The county treasurer produced percentage figures showing small amounts being retained. These percentages are: State, 2.7 per cent; city and schools, 4.5; forest preserves, 5; sanitary district, 2.5; south park board, 4.53; west park board, 7; Lincoln park board, 7; and Lincoln park board bonds, 1.0 per cent.

TAXPAYERS FILE COURT ATTACK ON ASSESSMENT

Ask Injunction to Halt Transfer of Books.

Thirty-five taxpayers, headed by James E. Bistor, Arthur O. Sampson and Dr. S. W. Brundage, made an attack in the Superior court yesterday upon the public tax hearings conducted by the board of assessors in the last week.

Their bill seeks to enjoin the board of assessors from delivering any more books to the board of review containing "an assessment that is incomplete, illegal, fraudulent, unrevised and uncorrect."

"Close Books Before Hearings."

On June 1, the bill charges, the board ordered the books footed and completed, and also ordered some of the books locked in the vault, with the further instruction that they were not to be changed or revised. Then it is alleged that last week the board started public hearings—not by the board as the law requires, by individual members of the board.

Summarizing what individual members did, the bill asserts: "They did not have any of the facts upon which they could in good faith hold a fair and legal hearing and make a proper revision and correction of such assessments; that the holding of such hearings was an empty form and pretense carried on in bad faith and for improper motives by the said board of assessors, and was deliberately fraudulent, deprived the complaining taxpayers of due process of law, was in utter disregard of the oath of office of said members of the board of assessors and in flagrant violation of their known legal duties."

Charges False Information.

On June 19, the bill alleges that more than 5,000 taxpayers appeared at the offices of the board of assessors for the purpose of filing complaints. Then follows specific charges against the members of the board, as follows:

"The board of assessors urged said taxpayers to return on the succeeding Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, and dissuaded many from filing complaints or availing themselves of their legal rights by giving false information to said taxpayers."

Regarding the "false information" the bill says that "said assessors and their employes, acting with full knowledge and consent of said board of assessors, falsely informed the said taxpayers that the board of assessors had nothing to do with the making of the assessment or the revising or correcting thereof, and that the remedy of said taxpayers was before the board of review."

Claim Reviewers Deny Hearings.

The bill, prepared by the law firm of Watkins, Ten Hoor and Gilbert, asserts that the board of review has "positively refused to hold said hearings for the years of 1928 and 1929, except where said assessment has been increased."

"The fraudulent and unlawful action of assessors," according to the bill, "will endanger the collection of taxes upon real estate in Cook county for the year of 1930."

The plan of the assessors is called "conspiracy." The case was assigned to Judge Dennis E. Sullivan of the Superior court, and the attorneys for the complainants will ask a temporary injunction tomorrow morning.

Perry J. Ten Hoor of the legal firm which filed the bill explained that the suit was part of the activities of the Chicago Association of Real Estate Taxpayers. He declared the action was a "constructive effort to see if an honest assessment could be had before the taxes go into collection."

Aldermen Hear Realty Plea to Increase Personalty Tax

Four spokesmen for the Chicago real estate board, at a hearing held last night by a subcommittee of the city council, urged an immediate overhauling of the local taxation system so as to shift part of the tax burden from real estate to intangible and other personal property.

HARRY S. CUTMORE.

The city hall hearing followed the opening during the day of a grand jury investigation of the personal property tax law in Cook county. The grand jurors listened to a half dozen representatives of taxpayers' and civic groups and tax experts, including Harry S. Cutmore, recently ousted director of appraisals for the board of assessors.

Also during the day the board of assessors finished hearing the complaints filed against 1930 tax assessments and sent to the board of review the tax books of seven more country towns.

Discuss Tax Problems.

Last night's session of the council subcommittee, headed by Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th], was the first of a series of weekly meetings at which problems of taxation and municipal finance will be discussed. The real estate board was invited to present its witnesses first. About 500 persons attended.

J. Frank Lindsey, a member of the realty board, presided. Ralph Field, secretary of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, sketched the history of the revenue sections of the state constitution. Newton C. Farr and George Eckhoff, members of the board, presented statistics to show the proportion of the tax burden carried by real estate. John O. Rees, director of the joint commission on real estate valuations, discussed "the breakdown of the taxation machinery."

The speakers deplored the side-tracking of the real estate board's tax program at Springfield and each of them emphasized the need for continuation of efforts to broaden the tax base to cover property other than real estate.

Cutmore Gives Views.

Little was accomplished at the grand jury session on personal property taxes other than talking, as indicated by the statements of those participating. State's Attorney Swanson, who spent two hours discussing the matter with the jurors, announced that "no definite action was agreed upon."

Mr. Cutmore, when he emerged from the grand jury chamber, said that he was quizzed about his dismissal by the board of assessors but was not pressed on the subject when he told the jurors he did not think it pertinant. He said he explained to them that the personal property tax law is not being enforced in Cook county which, he said, is "the only metropolitan area in the country which makes a pretense of collecting such a tax."

Others testifying were E. J. Davis, superintendent of the Better Government association; John M. Pratt, executive director of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, and Douglas Sutherland, secretary of the Civic Federation.

Hear Country Towns Today.

The seven country towns for which the tax books were turned over by the board of assessors yesterday were New Trier, Norwood Park, Northfield, Oak Park, Orland, Palatine and Palos. The 1930 board of assessors tax valuations for those towns totalled $180,832,860 as compared to the 1929 board of review valuations totalling $177,167,100. All of the 1930 assessment books will be delivered to the board of review by July 1.

Today is the first day of a ten day period for the filing of complaints before the board of review by the taxpayers of the townships of Barrington, Berwyn, Bloom, Bremen, Calumet, Cicero, Elk Grove, Hanover, Lemont, Lyons, Leyden, and Maine.

Wife Won't Speak to Him, So He Seeks a Divorce

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—[Special.]—August P. Dallmann, 47, a supervisor employed by the Electric company, 3765 North 22d street, in a divorce action in Circuit court today charged his wife, Amy, had not spoken to him since Jan. 5. Whenever he entered a room she left, according to the husband's complaint. Another grievance of the husband was that his wife was dissatisfied with his earnings, though one son contributed $65 and another $35 a month toward household expenses.

"Fishing Pole" Thief Held to Jury in $7,500 Bonds

Walter Miller, 19 years old, 2314 Walnut street, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds totaling $7,500. Miller was arrested as he was "fishing" a ham from a butcher shop window. He later confessed stealing clothing from a Benson & Rixon clothing store in Oak Park, breaking a window and lifting out clothes with the aid of a fishing pole.

ARREST OF N. U. YOUTH LAID TO IDENTITY ERROR

Fred J. Waldner, 22 years old, a student at Northwestern university, blushed rosily and protested mightily yesterday when he was arrested by Evanston police on a warrant from Buffalo, charging him with the abandonment of a wife and three children, 12, 10, and 3 years old, respectively.

Waldner was released later on his own bond and Chief of Police William O. Freeman said he was convinced that the arrest was a case of mistaken identity. The description wired by Buffalo police did not fit Waldner. It described a man 28 years old with black hair and mustache. Waldner said he could prove he was only 23. He has sandy hair and no mustache.

Waldner, who will be a senior in the music school at Evanston next year, was accused of parading under a false name in the warrant. His real name is Willard Colson, according to the charges.

"I never was in Buffalo in my life," he said. "My home is in Kansas City, Mo."

REPORT DEATH TO CORONER.

Thomas Swords, 45 years old, 5500 Aberdeen street, died yesterday in St. Bernard's hospital from an intestinal complaint. His death was reported to the coroner's office because of an automobile accident last year.

RE-ENACT MURDER OF KAUFMAN, FILM UNION INSURGENT

Children Watch Drama in South Side Garage.

With policemen acting the rôles of the killer and his victim, the murder of Jacob Kaufman, insurgent member of the Motion Picture Operators' union, was reënacted yesterday in the garage at 9525 Princeton avenue, where Kaufman was shot to death last Saturday night.

A group of colored urchins gathered around as Assistant State's Attorneys Charles E. Lounsbury and Charles Bellows set the scene. They placed Dave Greer, unemployed Negro movie operator, on the floor under a squad car, just where he lay installing a radio on Kaufman's machine when a flannel trousered gunman walked in at 7 p. m. Saturday and fired five bullets into his body.

Place Second Witness.

Another witness, John Drake, Negro handy man, was told to take his place in the reënactment of the tragedy. Drake, grinning goodnaturedly, picked up an oily rag and bent over the front fender of another automobile which, with the squad car, almost filled the floor space of the weatherbeaten little garage.

"Here's where I stood, boss," Drake announced. "I was bending over the front of the car, just polishing away, when the gun went bang. But I didn't see the man fire the shots. He was outside the door."

Sergt. Leo Anderson, representing the gunman, was standing just inside the door, pointing his pistol at his partner, Sergt. John Mullarkey, who crouched in the corner, simulating the posture of the dying Kaufman. "Try it from outside the door," suggested Mr. Bellows.

Sergt. Anderson stepped over the threshold and aimed anew. His partner, his knee joints cramped by his rôle, stood up and dusted off his clothes. The Negro began to talk excitedly.

Witness Verifies Positions.

"It was just like that," the witness averred. "The man with the gun was outside the door, where I couldn't see him run away. Then the crowd gathered 'round and we carried Mr. Kaufman outside and laid him on the sidewalk."

The prosecutor glanced around the garage. His eyes fell on a bullet hole, drilled through an upright joist and through the tar paper wall to the left of where Kaufman fell.

Inserting a pencil in the bullet hole and projecting a yardstick from the end of the pencil, Mr. Bellows produced a shaft indicating the bullet's supposed path. Again Sergt. Anderson raised his gun, but the angle of the pistol barrel and the yardstick would not jibe.

"Drake, you're lying," said Mr. Bellows sternly. The Negro shrugged, rolled his eyes, and made no answer.

Lie Detector Shows Response.

Prosecutor Bellows said he had reason to believe that both Drake and Greer know more of the killing than they have been willing to tell. The state has been using a "lie detector" in its investigation of the case and Mr. Bellows says both the negroes have shown well defined reactions on the machine when questioned about Kaufman being "put on the spot."

The prosecutors decided to question other witnesses. In a cottage across the street they found Mrs. Anna Freeman, colored housewife, who saw the killer flee. Leo Del Magro, an unemployed stage hand, arrested as a suspect Monday night because his brother-in-law had been supplanted by Kaufman in a moving picture job, was marched along to confront Mrs. Freeman.

"No, he's not the man," she asserted. "They're about the same size but the other man was fairer. He had white pants and a cap. He was younger, too, and he ran with a swinging step."

"How many suits have you got?" the prosecutor asked Del Magro. The prisoner said he had only one, the gray suit on his back. He added that he'd never worn white trousers.

After a moment's conference the prosecutors decided to send the sergeants up and down the street in search of other witnesses while they returned to the garage. Mrs. Freeman, apprehensive over being mixed up in a murder case, but also inquisitive, called them back.

"Have you found the man who took the notes?" she asked. Mr. Bellows looked blank a moment before asking what man and what notes she meant.

New Witness Sought.

The woman then explained that, while Kaufman lay dying on the sidewalk, she saw a motorist alight from a sedan in which a woman sat, take a cushion from the seat, and place it under the victim's head. Then, for perhaps three minutes before the police arrived, the mysterious motorist talked to Kaufman, taking notes of what the victim said.

The witnesses, Greer and Drake, were called. They, too, had seen the note taker and believed he drove away soon after the first police squads arrived.

Casting about for other possible clews, Prosecutor Bellows noticed a skull and bones, with a question mark beneath, painted on a garage window. But Crawford Johnson, mulatto owner of the place, said the sinister design was on the glass when it was put in place of a broken pane some months ago. Johnson said he got the new pane from a neighbor's basement.

The party returned downtown, Greer, Drake, Del Magro, and Johnson being locked up at the detective bureau. Mr. Bellows announced they would continue in custody "until we clear this thing up and get the truth."

Statement by Maloy Lawyer.

Meanwhile Thomas Maloy, autocratic business agent of the movie operators' union, issued a statement through his lawyer, Michael Ahern, regarding a notaried memorandum Kaufman wrote three years ago, asserting that Maloy had slugged him and threatened to "take him for a ride." Maloy, having refused to sign an immunity waiver for appearance before the grand jury Monday night, remained at liberty.

"Certain features of the memorandum are true, but in the main it's a lot of baloney," said Mr. Ahern. "In the first place it was written three years ago and if my client sought to harm Kaufman he'd hardly take three years to do it. As a matter of fact the union records will show that Maloy, far from feeling enmity for Kaufman, provided him with work whenever he wanted it."

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock was asked whether the secret service division, recently established under Capt. William Shoemaker, would grapple with the murder mystery.

"You've been calling Capt. Shoemaker's division Scotland Yard," the commissioner replied. "Bear in mind, then, that Scotland Yard always works in secret."

Kaufman, who left a widow, three children, two brothers, a sister, and his mother, will be buried at 10 a. m. today in the Jewish Waldheim cemetery after services in a chapel at 3125 Roosevelt road. He was 41 years old.

$1,000,000 LIBEL SUIT FILED HERE BY BISHOP CANNON

A libel suit for $1,000,000 damages was filed in United States District court here yesterday by Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, naming W. R. Hearst, the Chicago Herald and Examiner and 29 other Hearst newspapers as defendants.

The suit charged that Bishop Cannon was libeled in a story printed in the Hearst papers on July 22, 1930, which reported the marriage of the bishop and Mrs. Helen Hawley McCallum. The suit charged that this story implied that Bishop Cannon and Mrs. McCallum had committed adultery.

The suit also charged that the Hearst papers had conspired to destroy Bishop Cannon's influence as "one of the outstanding leaders of the prohibition movement," citing his position as bishop of the church, chairman of the church's board of temperance and morals, and his chairmanship of the World League Against Alcoholism.

GONE 3 MONTHS, FOUND BOUND, GAGGED IN ROAD

Return as Mysterious as Was Disappearance.

Gerner, Ia., June 23.—(AP)—John Smith reappeared today as spectacularly and mysteriously as he dropped from sight more than four months ago, leaving behind a burning truck and a charred body.

Smith, an insecticide manufacturer from Perry, Ia., and farmer labor candidate for governor in 1930, was found bound and gagged along the roadside five miles north of here last midnight.

Three men who had held him captive, "in a basement," where they kept a still and made liquor, threw him out of a car at the spot where he was found, he said.

But where he has been since his disappearance Feb. 3, when his truck was found along the road near Denison; where the body found in the flaming vehicle came from; how he had happened to become separated from the truck—all these questions remained locked in his mind.

Feet and Hands Bound.

His feet and hands were bound with wire when he was found by members of the Charles Grau family. A blue bandanna handkerchief with which he had been gagged had slipped from his mouth, enabling him to summon aid.

He refused to reveal his identity to the officers when he was found, but this morning a sheet of paper was placed before him and he wrote his name "John M. Smith, Perry, Ia."

Later his fingerprints were compared with those taken of Smith when he was in the army, and found to tally.

His appearance belied his story of five months detention in a basement. He was not bleached, as would be the case if he had been kept so long from the sun.

Tonight Smith was on his way back to Perry in custody of Sheriff C. Knee, who served on him a warrant charging attempts to defraud insurance companies. He was reported to have carried policies totaling $50,000, issued by several companies.

His Sensational Disappearance.

His reappearance was a fitting climax to his equally spectacular disappearance. He left home Feb. 3 in a light truck to interview prospective salesmen for his insecticide in western Iowa.

That night his blazing truck was found near Denison. Inside was a charred corpse. Smith's keys were found nearby.

The body was presumed to be Smith's and buried at Perry. Inquiry by insurance companies holding policies on Smith's life led to disinterment of the body March 9. An autopsy revealed that the body had been treated with embalming fluid before it was burned. Teeth charts failed to check with those of Smith.

Further investigation revealed that Smith had been seen at various places in Iowa following his supposed death. On March 20 his wife agreed to meet him near Perry and a posse followed her, but Smith eluded them and escaped.

The charred body was never identified and was reinterred in a Perry cemetery.

DETROIT SPENDS 17 MILLIONS AS A DOLE FOR IDLE

Mayor's Welfare Program Rapped by Ford.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—[Special.] Detroit's municipal dole experiment, in which $17,000,000 of the taxpayers' money has been spent during the last eight months, has become a political issue of widening aspect, both as to its theory and practice, as a result of the development of the last two weeks.

MAYOR MURPHY.
Initiated the experiment.

"A vast and costly misconduct of Detroit's welfare activities," is the way the Ford Motor company, in a statement issued today, characterizes the experiment.

The Ford company, which is accused by Mayor Frank Murphy of dismissing poorly paid and discharged workers on the city for relief, has washed its hands of this political issue and has refused to help the mayor investigate the city welfare problem.

Refuse to Accept Issue.

"Such a move simply would further the idea that the issue is between the mayor and the Ford Motor company," the statements read. "Rather, the issue is: what became of at least $10,000,000 of the $17,000,000 of the taxpayers' money disposed of in so-called welfare work?" The grand jury, but a "private and palliative inquiry" is suggested by the company.

Also to have the spectacle of private executive efficiency, which has no use for charity and is hard on graft, opposed to the loose, warm, politically minded policy of the city is rather rare of all who asked for bids.

That there has been waste and graft and little constructive work, is plain. All this is brushed aside, however, by Dave Murphy, who says:

"All this criticism of our welfare policy emanates from sources opposed to the principle of government support of the indigent. We have a batch of our letters and we are going to fight it, no matter how imposing our enemy may be."

Political Side Buzzing.

The mayor's unemployment committee, which has had charge of the relief work under G. Hall Roosevelt, city controller, nephew of the late President Roosevelt and cousin of the governor of New York, is now going to resolutions calling attention to the situation in Detroit.

This may have its political aspect, for Mayor Murphy is said to have had a vice presidential bee buzzing around his head. He is a Democrat. He now wants President Hoover to call a special session of congress to deal with unemployment relief. Things are not getting any better, he says. The Ford company says that jobs be given instead of doles, is "childish," according to the mayor, for there are no jobs. In fact more layoffs may be in sight.

"It is our duty," he says, "to take our case to the people of the United States, to stimulate other cities to take similar steps and to urge our federal government to adopt an unemployment relief program for the entire nation. It is now all disorganized and it is up to the federal government to bring order out of chaos."

Supervision Grows Stricter.

In the meantime Detroit is going ahead paying out doles in the form of grocery orders, with somewhat more careful check on applicants, perhaps, while the city council, growing restive under all this expense and with no money in sight for city pay rolls, except to borrow again from the municipal street car reserve fund, has ordered the lodging houses for single men discontinued June 30.

This has been another source of scandal, with detectives reporting that gambling was going on there and men were waxing fat and lazy at the city's expense, refusing to work when jobs were offered. The mayor may veto the council order on this, for there are 3,500 single men housed there.

"We have either to feed them or fight them," is the attitude of the welfare department, and they prefer to feed them.

Detroit evidently has been like a honey pot to the unemployed since the Murphy administration came into power, with the promise that no man or woman would ever go hungry here, and "we will have the dew and the dawn and the sunshine of a new era."

Good News Goes Around.

He could not bring about the new era and so he had to make good by reaching into the public purse for money to feed the people.

"They came like the locusts did in the good book," observed a traffic policeman who guides the streams of cars on the Coolidge highway from the south. "They had bundles and blankets and stoves and swarms of dirty kids. All they asked was where's the welfare committee? And when do we eat?"

To objectors, who did not like the mayor's methods, he said at that time:

"The people are pouring in. This is no time for argument. More dole and less auditing is what the people need."

That there was mighty little auditing is shown by the case of Alex F. Lewis, a clerk in charge of the approval of grocery supplies for the welfare department. In four months he had stolen $207,000 of the city's funds and was well on his way to getting $80,000 more, when the banks brought about his exposé.

Ford Company Hits Back.

Following the Lewis explosion two weeks ago there came a demand for a cessation of the dole, particularly as the city appears to have spent all its money. Lists of those who had received the dole were made public and in the list were about 500 who in their applications had set themselves down as former Ford employés.

This aroused the Ford Motor company and they came out with a statement that they had known all along that gross fraud was being practiced. Henry Ford had refused to serve on the mayor's liaison committee, declaring the methods of the city allpshod to the point of criminal waste. Mr. Ford was probably right but his method of calling attention to it has not endeared him any to the public, and the Murphy political group, which has built up an organigation of 600 "welfare workers" on the city payroll, is getting ready to meet him on the political field next August, when the mayoralty primaries will be held.

The Ford company charges that 283 of its employés drew pay from the company and from the city at the same time. They took steps to make many of these pay the city back. The city says that only a few of these were fraudulent, as Ford was not paying his men enough to live on.

8 OFFICIALS OF DETROIT SUBURB HELD FOR GRAFT

Indicted Mayor and Aids Stand Mute.

Detroit, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—Seven of eight Hamtramck city officials, indicted by the grand jury on graft charges, stood mute when arraigned before Judge Lester S. Moll in Circuit court today. Pleas of not guilty were entered for them and they were certified to the Circuit court for trial.

Judge Theodore J. Richter said the trials probably would be set for the July term of court.

The seven men were part of a group of thirteen indicted by the grand jury. This number included eight city officials and five alleged racketeers and disorderly house proprietors.

The officials are charged with conspiracy and accepting bribes in the awarding of department of public work contracts, and with conspiracy, accepting bribes and neglect of duty in relation to disorderly houses.

The racketeers are all charged with conspiracy in the running of disorderly houses, and one on a charge of bribing a councilman.

The officials indicted are:

MAYOR TENEROWICZ, against whom seven indictments were returned, two charging the acceptance of bribes, four for conspiracy, and one for neglect of duty.

FRED B. DIBBLE, councilman, four indictments, two for accepting police department, conspiracy.

JOSEPH J. SKOMSKI, councilman, conspiracy and accepting bribes.

ANTHONY S. LIPKA, city controller, conspiracy.

HARRY K. WURMUSKERKEN, chief of police, conspiracy and neglect of duty.

WILLIAM COHEN, city attorney, conspiracy.

JOSEPH RUPINSKI, captain of the department, conspiracy.

DANIEL L. MINOCK, former councilman, now a police department clerk, accepting bribes and conspiracy.

Tenerowicz, Skomski, Dibble and Minock are charged with taking "graft money" from Margolis through a go-between in the awarding of a city trucking contract. The group indictments charge that the public officals conspired to use their influence in giving the contracts for bribes totaling $9,375.

All were freed on bonds totaling $26,000. Thirty-six more indicted persons are being sought.

Hamtramck will "carry on" despite indictment of its mayor, city attorney, police chief and two councilmen. Three of the councilmen, who constitute a majority, met late in the day to decide what course to pursue. They have the power to act as they see fit.

GIRL'S SUIT CHARGES TEACHER STOLE HER THEME FOR A PLAY

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 23.—[Special.]—A pretty 18 year old high school girl, Prena Preusse, has filed suit in Circuit court here against her former instructor, Forrest D. Gould, charging him with plagiarizing a senior play from a story she wrote while a pupil in his class. She was granted a temporary injunction restraining him from selling rights to produce the play, which were said to be sought by a Broadway producer, pending a hearing on her petition for court determination of her interests.

CLOUDY SKIES WILL FOLLOW RECORD RAINS

Predict Warmer Weather for City Today.

The clouds which released a sudden deluge upon Chicago on Monday evening will hover over the city today, creating a hot and sticky atmosphere, according to the weather forecast last night. More showers are probable, adding to the excess rainfall which has already been recorded during June.

Since June 1, 4.78 inches of rain have fallen and since Jan. 1, the total is 16.27 inches. This has created the first real excess in rainfall over the normal since Feb. 5, 1930. The excess is now .70 of an inch, whereas one year ago today there was a deficiency of 2.99 inches.

Sets Ten Minute Record.

In the ten minutes from 6:03 to 6:13 o'clock Monday evening 1.03 inches of rain fell. Never before had the rainfall recorder at the federal building shown so much rainfall in a ten minute period. The previous record was on Aug. 5, 1905, when .86 of an inch of rain fell in a ten minute period.

The total precipitation during Monday night and yesterday morning was 2.10 inches, according to the University of Chicago recorder which is used for official records. The federal building recorder showed a reading of 2.83 inches. At the airport, the reading was 2.60 inches.

Illinois, northern Indiana and most of Wisconsin were visited by heavy showers. There were scattered rains in Iowa, Michigan, and other middle western states.

Increase Flow at Lockport.

In order to prevent a possibility of the Chicago river backing up into the lake, the locks at Lockport were opened on Monday to allow 17,500 cubic feet per second to flow through. Yesterday, the flow was reduced to 15,000 cubic feet. Even with this amount, far greater than the 4,000 cubic feet per second average limit under the Supreme court decision, the river was sluggish in its flow away from the lake. This is the second time in a month that such an emergency measure has been necessary to prevent the river carrying sewage out into the lake and endangering the water supply.

Many street car lines were put out of operation by the heavy rains yesterday, but were restored to service by the afternoon. Twenty-five homes were struck by lightning and scores of basements were flooded.

Carl Lee, 14 years old, colored, was drowned yesterday afternoon when he fell into the lagoon near the Adler planetarium.

Akron, O., June 23.—(AP)—Mildred Stinaff, Akron, girl aviator who set a world's looping record for women about a year ago, was injured fatally here tonight when he plane crashed near the Akron airpprt. She died a few hours later in Akron City hospital. Miss Stinaff was flying a plane of the Air Services corporation about 1,500 feet above the airport when it went into a tail spin and dove to the ground. She was about 19 years old.

Delay Trial of Three for Toting Cop's Stolen Gun

Charges of receiving stolen property and carrying concealed weapons against three reputed members of Red Bolton's west side beer gang, Joseph Coredio, Frank Fleming, and Samuel Harris, were continued until July 10 when the men were arraigned in South State street court yesterday. The men were arrested on Saturday. A pistol that had been stolen from a policeman was found in their car, it is charged.

PADDEN HOME FROM FRANCE; PRAISES MAYORS

Attacks Tales of Heavy Wine Drinking.

Lest the impression be gained from his remarks in New York that the 22 American mayors returning from a month's sojourn in France spent their time drinking fine wine and eating rich food, Judge Frank M. Padden, Mayor Cermak's representative, took occassion on his arrival home yesterday to compliment the behavior of his companions on that trip.

"They were a group of representative Americans and conducted themselves like gentlemen throughout the visit," said the judge. "They weren't reeling around Europe like drunken sailors, as some would believe. There were no sickness, no headaches, and no stomach trouble during the whole visit. I think the mayors made a favorable impression upon the French people."

Brings Trunk of Toys.

A lot of speeches were made, the judge said, about international amity and hands across the sea, and the French responded with gifts of toys, dolls, medals, and cosmetics for the women visitors. Judge Padden brought home a trunk load of these trinkets, much to the pleasure of the younger Paddens who spent yesterday afternoon playing with new French dolls and tin horns.

"Of course we drank wine—and the very best wine," the judge reported, enumerating for the benefit of reporters the various kinds of wines served with the French meals.

The French View of Chicago.

Chicago is the most talked of city in France, the judge found, and Al Capone is a "powerfully exaggerated person." The average Frenchman, he said, regards Chicago as a busy and dangerous place.

The judge remarked that Paris night life is overrated, that all Frenchmen are orators, and that the Folies Bergere, if a little worse, would be about as bad as "some of the shows we have in Chicago."

In an address before the faculty, alumni and students of John Marshall Law school last night Judge Padden denied the story that Mayor Porter of Los Angeles refused to drink a toast to the French government. "None of us knew anything about that alleged incident until we read about it in the American editions of Paris newspapers," said the judge. He went on to remark that the water drinker in France was out of luck, because the French believe that water is fit for little else except to wash in.

U. S. FLYERS DASH FOR BERLIN

"SHADOW" OPENS DOOR TO DINING ROOM AT HOTEL

A new system for opening doors has been installed in one dining room of the Stevens hotel to lower the amount of breakage by waitresses and to lessen the noise of crashing china at luncheons and dinners. On the wall on one side of the door is installed a photo electric cell, which reacts chemically to a beam of light. When a waitress approaches the beam is intercepted, and the photo electric cell sets off an automatic door opener. The hotel is considering installation of the device throughout dining rooms and kitchens.

Robert Mair, Swift & Co. Official, Sued for Divorce

Robert Mair, general manager of the export department of Swift & Co., was sued for divorce in the Circuit court yesterday by Mrs. Harriet Mair, 1029 East 45th street. She charges cruelty and habitual drunkenness. The bill alleges Mair has an income of $25,000 annually and asks that he be enjoined from disposing of furniture in their home. The Mairs were married on March 22, 1922, and separated last June 20, when Mair, according to the bill, struck his wife and her daughter, Violet, 19 years old.

Doctor and Nurse Cleared of Charges His Wife Made

Dr. Henry J. Millstone, who conducts a hospital at 742 East Marquette road, and Miss Emily Ranus, a nurse in that institution, were cleared of statutory charges yesterday in Judge Borrelli's court. The charges had been preferred by the doctor's wife, who has filed suit for divorce, but she did not appear yesterday. A statement signed by two physicians, Dr. Joseph M. Blake and Dr. Lester C. West, branded the charges as false.

MRS. VANDERBILT FILES CROSS BILL AGAINST HUSBAND

Reno, Nev., June 23.—(AP)—Mary Weir Vanderbilt filed a cross bill today to open the fight against the divorce action brought last week by her husband, Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

MRS. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT JR.

Denying allegations of extreme cruelty on her part, the complaint charged that Mrs. Vanbilt was the one who had been mistreated and that a divorce should be granted to her if to anyone.

The complaint, which asked that the court fix the amount of permanent alimony to be paid Mrs. Vanderbilt, estimated Vanderbilt's income "in excess of $2,000 per month."

No specific allegations of cruelty were contained in the complaint.

OCEAN FLYERS FACE STORM IN DASH TO BERLIN

ship now winging the Atlantic, Post last September won the nonstop derby from Los Angeles to the National Air Races at Chicago. He is 32 years old and married.

Gatty, 28, trained in the Royal Australian Naval college and in commerical shipping for six years, was with Harold Bromley in an attempted Japan to America flight last September. They had been up more than 25 hours and were 1,200 miles at sea when a broken exhaust ring forced them back. Gatty was in bed two months suffering from carbon monoxide gas poisoning.

The Gatty-Post plane is a Lockheed Vega, driven by a Wasp engine of 425 rated horsepower and developing 590 with 1 to 10 supercharger. Its gasoline capacity is 540 gallons.

Estimate Plane in Mid-Atlantic.

New York, June 23.—(AP)—Calculations made by Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, before their departure from New York for Harbor Grace, N. F., placed them at 8:30 o'clock tonight [Chicago daylight saving time], in latitude 53:12 north and 35:00 west, approximately half way between the outermost lands of the American and European continents.

Ruth Will Try Again.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 23.—"I'll be on my way across the Atlantic as soon as I get out of bed and as soon as I secure enough money to recondition my ship," Ruth Nichols, society girl and aviatrix, said today, smiling through grimaces of pain occasioned by severe injuries to her spine.

"I think the mistake was made in attempting to land a fast ship on a small field," she said, explaining her accident yesterday. "The setting sun also partially blinded me so that I couldn't see the front of the plane. "While I am lying here my friends will send my plane to Detroit to determine the exact cost of reconditioning it."

HUNT SOURCE OF PICNIC POISON THAT KILLED TWO

Druggist Tells of Sale to a Woman.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

Greenfield, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—Investigation of the picnic poison deaths proceeded today while the victims, Virginia Simmons, 12 years old, and her sister, Anna Jean, 10 years old, lay in twin caskets in their farm home, eight miles from Greenville. It seems likely that a special grand jury will be called to fix responsibility for the tragedy.

JOHN SIMMONS.

The children will be buried tomorrow morning in Simmons cemetery, named for the family's forebears, and after that officials of Lebanon, Boone county, where the girls died Sunday after eating sandwiches dosed with strychnine, will pick up the threads of the inquiry. Aiding them will be Sheriff Frank Stottlemeyer and County Attorney Elmer Bussell of this town, the seat of Hancock county.

County Attorney Ben M. Siefers of Lebanon, said this afternoon that one of his first moves will be to submit the parents of the dead girls to further questioning.

Both Plead Ignorance.

John Simmons, the father, was quizzed for hours yesterday after his wife, Mrs. Carrie Barrett Simmons, had gone through the same ordeal. Both denied the slightest knowledge of how five grain capsules of the drug had been placed in the food. The sandwiches were made by Mrs. Simmons in the kitchen of her home Sunday morning and then transported 50 miles to Lebanon, where a family reunion was held in Memorial park.

Yesterday, Mrs. Simmons said the food was packed in a large can and stood in the car before the home of a relative in Lebanon for about an hour before the reunion began. It would have been possible, she thought, for the poison to have been inserted during this wait.

Today Horace M. Jackson, 55, of New Greenfield, who munched one of the sandwiches and became violently ill, was released from a Lebanon hospital and was questioned by Mr. Seifres. According to the prosecutor, Jackson said that he was within sight of the Simmons' car while it stood parked at Lebanon and that no one approached it.

Drug Clerk Comes Forward.

A drug clerk who recalls selling a quantity of strychnine to a woman, was found today by authorities. They refused to reveal his identity but said he was prepared to identify the woman.

Meanwhile authorities were investigating an apparent attempt to poison a well on the farm of Thomas Martin, a few miles from the Simmons home. A sample of the well water disclosed the presence of strychnine. Martin had the water analyzed after noticing a white powder scattered about the well pump.

The fact that deadly poisons like strychnine can be procured easily in Indiana is one of the most complicating elements in the investigation. It is not necessary that a physician's prescription be obtained for the purchase, or that the buyer's name be registered. Druggists have tried unsuccessfully to have a safeguarding law passed by the legislature.

GETS DIVORCE

PAULINE STARKE.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Pauline Starke, motion picture actress, was granted a divorce from her husband, Jack White, film producer, in Superior court today. She charged cruelty. They were married in San Francisco Sept. 4, 1927, and separated last Jan. 19. Miss Starke began litigation last April by filing suit for separate maintenance, asking division of $100,000 property. Later White was ordered to pay $400 monthly alimony. A property settlement was reached out of court.

GIRL SECRETARY OF DOCTOR FINED FOR COURT LIES

Miss Helen Warren, 14612 Lexington avenue, Harvey, secretary of a physician, accused of receiving money under false pretenses, was held in contempt of court for perjury and fined $100 and costs by Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday. The physician, Dr. Clifford S. Goodman, 185 North Wabash avenue, was given until July 17, to show why he should not be held in contempt of court also.

Dr. Goodman is being sued by Mrs. Marie Setterstén, 1114 Wellington avenue, who charges that he failed to buy radium for the treatment of her sister, Miss Louise Passow, after she had given him $400 to do so.

Miss Warren said that she had perjured herself to protect Dr. Goodman, to whom she owed a debt of gratitude.

HANGS HIMSELF AT HOME.

Michael Miecan, 26 years old, hanged himself yesterday in the basement of his home at 615 Willow street. Neighbors said he had been despondent over ill health.

WORLD'S JOBLESS ARE ESTIMATED AT 19 MILLIONS

Expert Says Goverments Stimulate Slump.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Increased output of farm products and of raw materials was the greatest cause of unemployment in the world-wide economic slump, in the opinion of Karl Pribram, professor of economics at the University of Frankfurt, Germany.

He estimates that late in 1929 there were five million unemployed workers in the producing nations of the world, that by the middle of 1930 the number reached eleven millions, and at the end of 1930 it soared to between nineteen and twenty-two millions of unemployed.

Meanwhile, he figures, there was a reduction of between five and six billion dollars in world income. Social upheavals in Europe, he maintains, have most largely been prevented by doles and by the influence of the trades unions, while governmental efforts to maintain prices have made the situation worse by stimulating production.

Speaks at U. of C.

Prof. Pribram set forth these conclusions yesterday at the second session of the Norman Wait Harris foundation at the University of Chicago. He was formerly chief of statistical section, research division, of the international labor office at Geneva.

"The extent of the aggregate reduction in the incomes of all the peoples dependent upon one another in the world's economic system is incalculable," said Prof. Pribram. "For the United States this loss has been estimated at $2,400,000,000.

"By far the most important cause of the increase of unemployment was the great increase in production of raw materials and agricultural products, which caused the prices of these commodities to fall to half, or less. Measures taken by governments and by big industrial groups to prevent prices from falling only stimulated production at a time when gradual reduction was required.

Excessive Farm Expansion.

"In the United States, Canada, Australia, and other extra-European countries the expansion of agricultural production has been especially excessive. It is particularly serious that the prices of raw materials and agricultural produce have fallen so much further than those of industrial products.

"It is now possible to buy the same quantity of agricultural produce with a much smaller quantity of industrial goods, and in proportion to this difference of prices industrial production diminishes and unemployment increases. The purchasing power of the agricultural population and of the producers of raw goods has shrunk enormously, a fact which has had a very great influence on the intensity of the depression."

After giving his estimates on the world's volume of unemployment, Prof. Pribram remarked it is almost a miracle Europe has not had social disturbances.

"Next to the strength of the governmental organization," he said, "the two main factors that have so far prevented social upheaval are unemployment relief, which has saved large masses of the people from despair and insurrection, and the influence of the trades unions, which are more and more bound to become conservative pillars of the existing economic system."

Lose in Efficiency.

Meanwhile, the gain from more efficient factories has been lost, Prof. Pribram declared.

"Productive capacity of Germany has sunk to the same level which was reached in 1924," he said, "immediately after the stabilization of the mark. It never before happened in Germany or in any other industrial country that the expansion of production which had taken place during a period of prosperity has been so annihilated by the following crisis that no lasting increase has been left."

Prof. Pribram estimated that while world population increased 10 per cent between 1923 and 1929, the output of foodstuffs increase was 18 per cent and of raw materials 40 per cent.

The third lecture is to be delivered today by E. J. Phelan, chief of the diplomatic division, international labor office, Geneva.

CENTRAL PURCHASING AGENT FOR CITY PLAN IN NEW ORDINANCE

Members of the city council finance committee Monday directed the committee's staff to draft an ordinance providing for the creation of a central purchasing department for the city hall. The idea of handling all purchases through one department, according to reports, is favored by Mayor Cermak.

In the past the city purchasing agent has bought postage stamps and other small articles for the city. The police, electricity, health and public works departments, under the city code, have contracted for large purchases with council consent without the purchase going through the city purchasing agent.

Objections raised to the proposed plan included the argument that the purchasing agent would not be as familiar with toxin antitoxin as officials of the health department, and therefore could not purchase so well as the latter, and also that contracts for the erection of bridges should be handled not through a purchasing agent but through the department of public works.

BRITISH JOBLESS BOOSTED 18,032; TOTAL 2,620,930

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—Great Britain's unemployed in the week ending June 20 totaled 2,620,930, which was 18,032 more than the week before and 734,629 more than the same week a year ago.

It's really expensive to do without a Majestic Refrigerator

That's because a Majestic will pay for itself. The cost of ice and spoilage of food, the saving from buying in quantity and the use of leftovers, soon amounts, for the average family, to the price of a Majestic. After that—it's built to last a lifetime—the saving is big interest on the investment. When you consider that the terms of purchase are so easy they about equal your present ice bill, it's an extravagance to be without a Majestic.

PHONE ORDINANCE MAY BE SENT TO COUNCIL TODAY

Relocation of Lines Still in Debate.

Hope that the telephone franchise ordinance can be sent to the city council for approval this afternoon was expressed yesterday by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th] after his committee on gas, oil and electricity had approved the section fixing the compensation and free telephone service the company is to give the city.

ALD. JACOB ARVEY [De Harvey Photo.]

The company lawyers and the committee still have to agree on a section fixing the company's obligation to pay for relocation of its lines in connection with public improvements. That section, the center of the most spirited controversy of the franchise negotiations, will be presented to the committee this morning in redrafted form. Submission of the ordinance to the council this afternoon depends upon a settlement of the relocation costs fight at the morning committee session.

Provides for 3 Pct. Payment.

There was virtually no change in the provision for payment of compensation by the company. That was fixed at 3 per cent of the company's gross revenue, payable quarterly instead of semi annually as under the old franchise, which expired in 1929. Quarterly payments, it was estimated, will give the city an additional $15,000 which it would have lost in interest under the semi annual plan.

The matter of relocation costs is an important one. It has been estimated, on the basis of similar work in New York, that it will cost $600,000 a mile to relocate telephone lines in connection with subway construction. The old franchise obligated the company to pay the full cost of this.

The company lawyers have refused flatly to include such a provision in the new franchise. It is probable that the compromise section on relocation costs, presented today, will give them the essence of their demands—that the telephone company shall receive as favorable terms as those granted any other utility on the matter of relocation.

Free Service Cut Out.

Unlimited free telephone service to the city hall, which the city enjoyed under the old franchise, is wiped out by the new ordinance. Actually, however, the city will pay no more for its service than it did formerly, provided it succeeds in stopping the use of city hall phones by outsiders and political hangers-on for their private business.

As approved by the committee, the section covering telephone service provides that each year the city shall pay $85,000 for its first 500,000 calls, and thereafter shall receive 2,000,000 calls free. Police and fire calls numbering about 1,750,000 a year are also to be free. For calls over the total of 4,350,000 the city is to pay at the commercial rate of approximately 2½ cents a call.

Hope to Reduce Calls.

Under the old ordinance the city paid about $85,000 a year for telephone service in its ward yard offices and other outlying departments, which did not come under the free provisions.

The city's total calls, including fire and police, now number about 5,000,000 annually, but Ald. Arvey and other members of the committee on gas, oil, and electricity stated that they believed it possible to cut them to 4,250,000 a year by confining use of city hall telephones strictly to city business.

"I know of one real estate sales campaign," said Ald. Arvey, "which was carried out in its entirety over the free phones in the city hall. There are dozens of salesmen and others who make a practice of coming into the hall to use the phones there for their private business."

The new ordinance relieves the company of paying for the upkeep of the telephone complain bureau in the city hall, an item of approximately $30,000 a year. Company lawyers pointed out that the bureau was established under the 1907 ordinance, when the city had rate fixing power, and that now telephone subscribers can carry their complaints about service to the Illinois commerce commission.

Ald. Irving J. Schreiber [5th] asked that a comparative statement of the compensation and service received by the city under the old franchise and the one now under consideration be prepared for consideration at the meeting tomorrow.

DAN SERRITELLA WILL FACE GRAND JURY QUIZ TODAY

The grand jury investigation of alleged irregularities in the city sealer's office during the administration of State Senator Dan Serritella, will be resumed this morning when Serritella is summoned before the grand jury by Harold M. Keele, assistant state's attorney in charge of the inquiry.

DAN SERRITELLA.

Serritella and Ald. William V. Pacelli [30th], conferred with State's Attorney Swanson Monday afternoon, but both Swanson and the former city sealer denied that their conference had anything to do with the grand jury investigation. "We were just talking politics," Swanson told newspaper men. "Serritella and the aldermen are opposing the proposed redistricting of the city which would alter the boundaries of the 20th ward, and they were talking to me about it."

Burn Up 530,000 Pounds of "Poor" Brazil Coffee

RIO DE JANEIRO, June 23.—(AP)—Five hundred and thirty thousand sacks of inferior grade coffee were burned in a huge bonfire today at Santos under a plan of the state government to destroy mediocre stocks. The coffee beans were piled by sacks in small mountains beside the warehouses, soaked with kerosene, and ignited. It took five hours for the flames to reduce them to ashes.

Greenwood, S. C., June 23.—(AP)—John Cox, 30, farmer, who shot his wife during a quarrel about the amount of chicken she ate for dinner, pleaded guilty to murder today and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

FREAK DEVICES FOR ODD TESTS IN DISPLAY HERE

Exhibit Presents World of Exactness.

An adventure in the realm of exactness is a phrase which might well be used to describe a visit to the exhibition of the American Society for Testing Materials which forms a part of the thirty-fourth annual convention of the society now in session at the Stevens hotel. There are on display a great many instruments used to measure, test and weigh every kind of material used in American economic life. Some of the instruments are being shown for the first time. There are about 1,000 attending the meeting which closes Friday night.

There are devices displayed designed to help in the detection of crime and others to assist in the building and maintenance of roads.

J. L. Endicott, in charge of the exhibit by the United States bureau of standards, explained yesterday the efforts being made by the government to raise the standard of expert witnesses in criminal and other cases to a higher plane. He demonstrated a magnifying glass arrangement by which the characteristics of bullets fired from any gun may be studied with as much assurance of positiveness as can finger prints by a police department.

Instruments of Precision.

Mr. Endicott pointed out that instruments used in the ballistics section of criminal investigation must be of the utmost precision. The department cooperates with police departments, criminal investigation departments of universities, and other agencies in the advancement of crime detection through scientific measures.

Mr. Endicott showed the working of an instrument developed by Dr. L. B. Tuckerman, which measures to within a two millionth of an inch. One of the chief advantages of this instrument is that it is so rugged that it can be used in the field as well as in a laboratory. The instrument measures deflections in any material. For instance, this device can be used to show how much pressure may be allowed against a bulkhead or dam before there is danger of failure.

Then Mr. Endicott showed the workings of a modified psychrometer, an instrument developed by the department, which is being shown for the first time. This device enables a test for humidity in any building or piece of apparatus which is accurate to .3 per cent, against the best previous performance of 2 per cent.

Tests Knocks in Gas.

Another instrument being shown for the first time is one developed by a cooperative committee of the petroleum and automotive industries and the United States bureau of standards for testing the knocking qualities of gasoline. This device is called a detonation test unit, and, according to Mr. Endicott, will be of prime importance in making airplane travel safer.

Mr. Endicott explained that some airplane crashes have been attributed to engine failure through the use of improper fuel.

The city of Los Angeles bureau of standards is exhibiting a device, resembling somewhat a baby's kiddie car, which records roughness found on roads and counts bumps.

Among other interesting exhibits was one of a sieve made of wire which contains 160,000 holes to the square inch. The sieve is so fine that it holds water, yet permits the passage of materials in tests.

DROPS CASE AGAINST BIMBO.

Charges of disorderly conduct against Tete Bimbo, self-styled "king of the gipsies," and his nephew, Peter Tete, were dismissed by Judge Freeman L. Fairbank in Des Plaines street court yesterday.

INVITES CHILDREN TO VISIT HER TREE AND PICK CHERRIES

Early this spring the children in the neighborhood of 3624 Franklin boulevard used to stop and stare at the blooming cherry tree in the yard of Mrs. R. D. Rugo, who lives at that address. When Mrs. Rugo appeared they asked her what sort of tree it was.

When green cherries took the place of blooms the children continued to stop, and many tried eating them. Now they are ripe, and Mrs. Rugo broadcast throughout the neighborhood an invitation to the children to call last night and pick all they liked.

"It is beautiful to watch a crowd of children around a cherry tree," she said. "I like to share it with them. If I want to make preserves I'll buy the cherries for them."

WHIST MASTERS SEEK WAY OUT OF BIDDING CHAOS

Discuss Controlling Body to Decide System.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—Special.]—The old masters of the bridge whist world have gone to war and six hundred contract fans are choosing sides for the bridge battle of the century. All the skull racking study of members of countless Thursday evening card clubs may go for naught and the trial of the amateurs within the forces of the established order will be held through-out that night. The declaration of war to a finish followed the announcement that twelve nationally known experts had come to form a bridge corporation to be known as Bridge Headquarters, Inc., which would hand down to a puzzled bridge world a brand new official and perfect system of contract bidding.

MILTON C. WORK.

Standing out as the "lone eagle" of the opposing forces is Prof. Ely Culbertson, editor, teacher and author, whose system of contract bridge bidding has been accepted as "the true gospel" by countless couples who were just a step away from the divorce courts when he came to their rescue.

Opposed by Graybeards.

On the other side are massed the "graybeards," Wilbur C. Whitehead, Milton C. Work, Sidney Lentz, E. J. Howard, Shepard Barclay and other experts from Chicago, Detroit and half a dozen cities. They are entrenched in Bridge Headquarters, Inc., and at least one member admitted he expected to "get three meals a day" off his connections with the house.

"I'll tear down their house of cards" challenged Prof. Culbertson.

"The public will decide," answered I. J. Courtesy, president of the new organization.

"I am confident the public will stick to our present system of bidding," replied Prof. Culbertson, "for there are 100,000 interested, satisfied players. The quickest way to kill contract bridge is by changing systems and destroying the work of 1,200 associated teachers."

Bridge Oracles Divide.

Only a few days ago the spirit of amity love hovered over the bridge game of the old masters. The short and caustic words were left to amateurs and neighborhood sharks given to letting their wives under the tables. Then the bridge oracles began drifting away from Prof. Culbertson's newsstand, Bridge World. It was just a house organ, they explained.

Prof. Culbertson countered by calling the new organization "a commercial house disguised under altruistic motives and built by a merger of ex-authorities."

The new systems will be Prof. Lenz's system No. 5 and Prof. Work's system No. 4. Each new system receives a new text book. The most remarkable feature of all is that twelve experts have agreed on a single system, this being unique in bridge history, where text books are as thick as mystery novels.

Keynote of New System.

The keynote of the new system will be an intermediate bid. Culbertson's fanning two bid, demanding game contract, does not strike the "graybeards" as sound. They intend to change the two bid into a three forcing bid. They will also name the minimum strength of a one bid and the required strength for a game bid.

It is the hope of the advocates of the "universal system" that hereafter contract players may meet anywhere to play "pleasantly, harmoniously and successfully."

That utopian era of bridge, however, seems extremely visionary to the great mass of players.

TRINITY CHURCH WINS SUIT; KEEPS REALTY WORTH 20 MILLIONS

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Trinity church repelled today another assault on the title to its Wall street real estate when Supreme Court Justice Ford dismissed a suit of Robert Read and seven others in behalf of the descendants of Tomas Hael to recover property owned by the church south of Christopher street and east of the North river, valued at $20,000,000.

As counsel for the Hael heirs contended that they were the owners of the property because a lease made to the church by Robert Edwards, described as their "common ancestor," in 1777, expired in 1877 and Trinity was merely a holdover tenant. The court voided the claim.

BODY OF DROWNED GIRL IS BURIED BY CAVE-IN OF SAND

Brasil, Ind., June 23.—[Special.]—The body of Mary Nicoson, 16, lies buried under twenty-five to fifty tons of gravel under 40 feet of water at the Oak Hill bathing beach on Big Walnut creek east of this city.

The girl was drowned while bathing last night and a cloudburst which broke a short time later caused the river to rise ten feet in a short time and wash down the gravel bank which is part of an old gravel pit.

Relays of rescuers worked all last night and today trying to recover the body. Charges of dynamite were exploded on the floor of the pool without avail.

Rivermen believe the caving gravel banks have covered the body so deep it will never be recovered.

BANKER'S YACHT BLOWS UP; LONE MAN ON IT HURT

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—The Yank, handsome sixty-foot cruiser owned by Frank P. Morse, the banker, blew up without warning off the New Rochelle Yacht club at noon today and sank almost immediately. The cause of the explosion was not established.

Only one man was aboard at the time, Michael Peters, a member of the crew. He was thrown violently into the water and received dangerous burns and other injuries. Peters was sent to New Rochelle hospital.

The craft was a total loss. She was one of the finest cruisers in the yacht basin and was moored alongside many other expensive craft, none of which was damaged.

ALLEGED BANK BANDIT ON TRIAL; PAL IS WITNESS

A jury to try George Nelson, 23 years old, for complicity in the robbery of the Hillside State bank at Hillside last fall was selected in Criminal court yesterday and the first witness for the state was Harry Lewis, an alleged accomplice in the holdup, who turned state's evidence against Nelson and identified him as one of the three robbers who took part in the holdup.

Lewis, who also is under indictment for the robbery, is to be tried after Nelson. He was a surprise witness against Nelson. E. W. Heidorn, cashier, and Andrew Yundt, a director of the bank, testified regarding the robbery but were unable to identify Nelson. John Hampton and John O'Hara, assistant state's attorneys who are prosecuting the case, said they would present two other witnesses today who would identify Nelson.

Stanton Randall, the third member of the holdup gang, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve one to ten years in Joliet prison.

Escaped Prisoner, Sought in Slaying, Flees Deputies

Herrin, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—"Pop" Huggins, an escaped prisoner wanted for questioning concerning the Richardson double slaying here escaped from deputies amid a volley of shots near Madison, twelve miles west of here. The deputies stopped a car early this morning to question men in it. Huggins leaped out and fled under cover of bushes and darkness. His heavy beard and condition of his clothes indicate he has been hiding in the woods.

I got him licked—whew!—what a scrap it's been. Say, this Tough Guy had no more respect for a new pair of shoes than a-a-a baseball—both were made to sock, and the harder you sock, the better. Why, almost as soon as he put me on his feet—"Wham" went the first tin can that happened across his path. (He kicked it pretty far, though.)

Then, in those sand lot ball games—"Bang" I'd bounce up against the rocks that were supposed to be bases—"Plump" down, I'd go into the dirt when he'd slide into the base. This went on for days and days. I was scratched a bit, but what's that to a husky shoe like me! And then it rained, and how it rained, for almost 10 days. "Whoof!" I'd go into almost every puddle the "Tough Guy" came across. Wet—why, say, I was wet all thru many times. Believe me, I had to use everything to stand up under this "beating."

My solid leather uppers took a lot of punishment. The footform lasts, leather insoles and long wear linings around the heels—actually gave him more "pep" (they felt so good, he said so himself). My solid leather heel bases and rubber heels guarded against a rundown look. (Can't let it appear as if you're licked, you know.) But, my Korry Krome Bend Leather Soles, all Goodyear welted, kept me in such fine shape it worried him.

I made a hit with "Tough Guy's" parents, though. And I've got a hunch theyre strong for me—they should be, because I sure took a beating for what they paid for me—2.98.

WOMAN MEDICS IN DISCORD OVER CLUB ELECTION

Choosing New President Cause of Strife.

Now that all is well on the horizon of the Chicago Medical society, after its recent friction over the election of a new president, discord has developed in the feminine ranks. Various and sundry matters not conducive to harmony among the practicing women physicians will come before the annual meeting of the Medical Women's Club of Chicago, when it is called to order tonight in the rooms of the Woman's City club, 6 North Michigan avenue.

Election of officers again raises an issue among the medics. This time it is the desire of the present president, Dr. Petra M. Dahl, to see the venerable Dr. Frances Dickinson, 75 years old, succeed to the leadership. It is understood that a sizable percentage of the membership, however, has followed the precedent recently set by their brothers of the profession, and held a caucus in which the name of Dr. Goldye Hoffman was placed in nomination for the office.

The slate headed by Dr. Hoffman is not recognized by the current head of the organization. But no nomination was made for the office by the nominating committee appointed in due course, which comprises Dr. Dickinson and Dr. Helga M. Ruud, consequently speculation is rife as to what will happen when the order of business reaches elections tonight.

Dr. Dickinson was one of the board of lady managers of the Chicago World's Fair of 1893. One of her major interests is aviation. She recently flew to Chicago for the woman's luncheon held during the Chicago Jubilee.

This evening the final names will be added to a petition to place Dr. Dickinson on the World's Fair board of 1933. A unanimous vote by the Chicago Woman's club endorsed the move.

THREE BANKERS GET SING SING SENTENCES FOR NEW YORK FRAUD

B. K. MARCUS.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Convicted Saturday of willful misapplication of the closed Bank of United States, Bernard K. Marcus and Saul Singer received sentences of from three to six years in Sing Sing today. Herbert Singer, son of Saul, received a penitentiary sentence not to exceed three years. His sentence can be shortened by the parole board.

Judge George L. Donnellan pronounced sentence in his general sessions courtroom of the Criminal courts building. The three seemed in a daze when they entered the romo; they listened without a show of emotion to their attorney's arguments and to the judge's rebuke, and stolidly heard their sentences.

The defense attorneys were permitted ten days for action looking toward a new trial and appeal. The sentenced trio will spend that time in the Tombs, where they have been since the jury which sat through a twelve weeks' trial—a record for length in the court—found them guilty.

The attorneys, one of them said today, probably will not file their application for a certificate of reasonable doubt for a week.

The courtroom was crowded, but only those whose credentials for admittance could pass a rigid examination were there.

Two Held to Grand Jury on Charges of Girl

Leo Giannola, 1112 South Jefferson street, and Alfred Branchio, 2217 West Harrison street, were held to the grand jury by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in Felony court yesterday on a charge of attempted rape. They had been identified by Mary Rosalles, 19 years old, as the youths who attempted an assault on her last Sunday.

GIRL GETS 10 DAYS FOR GETTING $40 BY FAKE MESSAGE

Miss Helen Gault of Toledo, O., was sentenced to ten days in the house of correction yesterday for posing as a married woman to obtain money by telegraph from another woman's husband in Rahway, N. J.

While riding to Chicago in a bus two days ago, Miss Gault became acquainted with Mrs. Dora McGonaghy of Rahway, who was en route to Chicago to visit friends. During the trip, Miss Gault learned Mrs. McGonaghy's address and her husband's name. After their arrival in Chicago, Mrs. McGonaghy left to visit her friends and her acquaintances wired Mr. McGonaghy for $40, signing the message "Dora."

Mr. McGonaghy dispatched the money and then communicated with his wife. Realizing that they had been duped, Mrs. McGonaghy recalled the hotel where Miss Gault said she would stop and police found her there. She pleaded guilty before Judge Francis Borrelli in South State street court yesterday.

STARR'S NOTES TO DOCTOR TELL SUICIDE PLANS

Stepfather Calls Them Forgeries.

here and was dated June 4. It read:

"Hello Bill, old thing:

"It's all up with me now—this is something I am going to put through. The only thing that bothers me about it—the only thing I dread—is being out with it and prevented from doing this—which is the only possible thing for me to do.

"If one wants to get away with murder one has to jolly well keep one's wits about one. It's the same way with suicide.

"If I don't watch out I will wake up in a psychopathic ward, but I intend watch out and accomplish my end this time. No ether, allonal or window jumping.

"I Want Oblivion."

"I don't want to be maimed. I want oblivion. If there is an after life it will be a dirty trick—but I am sure fifty million priests are wrong. That is one of those things one knows.

"Nothing makes any difference now. I love to eat and can have one delicious meal, with no worries over gaining. I adore music and I am going to hear some good music. I believe I love music more than anything. I am going to drink slowly. Keeping Aware Every Second.

"Also I am going to enjoy my last cigaret—I won't worry because men flirt with me in the street—I shall encourage them—I don't care who they are.

"It's a Great Life."

"It's a great life when one has 24 hours to live. I can be rude to people—I can tell them they are too fat or that I don't like their clothes, and I don't have to dread being a lonely old woman, or poverty, obscurity or boredom.

"I don't have to dread living on without even seeing you, hearing rumors such as 'The women all fall for him' and 'He entertains charmingly.' Why in hell shouldn't you!—but it's more than I can cope with,—this feeling I have for you.

"I have tried to pose as clever and intellectual, thereby to attract you, but it was not successful and I couldn't go on writing those long, studied letters. I don't have to worry because there are no words to describe this feeling I have for you.

"The words love, adore, worship, have become meaningless—there is nothing I can do but what I am going to do.

"I shall never see you again. That is extraordinary.

"Although I can't comprehend it any more than I can comprehend the words—'always'—or 'time.' They produce a very merciful numbness.

"STARR."

Jurors Who Indicted Capone Praised by Judge

The federal grand jury which returned the income tax and prohibition conspiracy indictment against Al Capone was discharged yesterday by Judge John P. Barnes. The federal judge complimented the jurors for their perseverance in sifting the mass of evidence against the gang chief which occupied all their time since they were impaneled last April.

WOMEN BESIEGE SWANSON TO GET ELECTION WAGES

Twenty-five Cicero women, angrily brandishing umbrellas, descended upon State's Attorney Swanson yesterday at the county building to demand that he take action against the town officials of Cicero for their failure to pay judges and clerks of election for work at the polls.

The women represented 295 judges and clerks, they said. Three of their number, who spoke for the group, were Mrs. Julia Vana, 1628 South 60th court; Mrs. Edith Marre, 2107 South 47th court, and Mrs. Mary Ebel, 1620 South 47th court. They told the prosecutor that they had had no pay since Jan. 18, 1930, and that the town now owe. approximately $40,000 in election officials' salaries.

State's Attorney Swanson called Joseph Z. Klenha, president of Cicero. Klenha told him that the town was authorized by the legislature to sell a $300,000 bond issue to meet current expenses, and that the women would be the first to be paid. The party left when Mr. Swanson advised them to wait for their compensation until the bonds are sold.

for the Best ORIGINAL

"GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

What Is a Good Time Charliegram?

A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice: "Every time you buy something you help bring back prosperity." "The time to stock up is when prices are low." "Large savings can be made on nearly everything bought today." "When business starts humming prices are bound to rise again." Do you think you can make up a better Good Time Charliegram than any of these?—using only the words appearing in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Try your hand at it! Read the simple rules and start looking for your words now!

This is your last week to try for the $1,000.00 in cash prizes which the Tribune will pay for the best original Good Time Charliegrams. All you have to do is select ten words from any ads in today's Tribune except the Want Ads. Put them all together and the resulting sentance may win for you one of the big cash prizes.

CALLS PARLEY IN SOUTH AMERICA TO STUDY SLUMP

All Nations Would Meet to Consider Crisis.

BY JOHN LIVINGSTONE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 23.—The ministers of foreign affairs today invited the foreign ministers of the Pan-American countries to attend a conference for the purpose of discussing the present financial crisis. The conference will seek methods by which the various nations may cooperate to prevent a complete commercial, economic and financial breakdown. The invitation was extended to the United States. It is understood that Washington will send an observer.

Text of Document.

The document, which is deemed to be one of the most important ever issued by the Chilean government, says:

"The American continent has no history of a commercial, economic and financial crisis such as has developed for more than a year as a consequence of the world-wide depression in business. This crisis continues to weaken the vital forces of industrial economy, and it appears especially violent in Latin American countries due to their debtor condition.

"The export of natural products has been paralyzed in grave proportions, all therefore prices have dropped greatly and the Latin American nations have not sufficient receipts to cover their ordinary and extraordinary expenses.

Forced to Cut Expenses.

"They have been forced to cut their administration expenditures, to sacrifice educational advancement, general progress and reproductive public works. The wealth accumulated with pioneering efforts throughout a century and a quarter of independent life is speculative, and the citizens have not, together with their taxpaying capacity, their spirit for industrial and commercial enterprise.

"What is more serious is that the present situation does not permit to maintain in its integrity the quota of effort for the social progress of the workingman, the masses and public and private employes, whose welfare is the basis of modern organization and certainty of production.

Gold Reserves Fall.

"Latin-American countries are becoming emaciated little by little. Gold reserves are going out to pay for imports and public debts. Each day the means, under these circumstances, the buying power of these countries and the internal consumption capacity diminish. Therefore, the debtor nations, to which we have all practically with our exports, will suffer, too, through their indebtedness because we approach the impossibility to buy their manufactures.

"It seems that the moment has arrived for us to expound frankly our real situation, as in critical moments Europe countries have done, and as President Hoover has just done, taking towards the world's economic reestablishment.

"It is useless to look for dilatory proceedings and artificial remedies, the result of which would be sterile and costly. Let us place ourselves bright, face to face with the reality, with all other countries in Latin-America, and in common agreement discuss our ideas of cooperation.

Need Collective Action.

"We are full of the same good will, the same working purpose, and the same principles, only collective action is missing. To this effect it is essential that a technical meeting should be held to discuss the points which may be recommended to arrange for a plan of cooperation, and in virtue of which the Chilean government, with most ample solidarity of spirit, submits for the consideration of the American governments the following plan of program for a conference which can be carried out within the most brief term, place and date to be agreed upon:

"FIRST — A customs union. A technical study of its possibilities from an inter-American cooperative point of view.

"SECOND — Unemployment. A study of it, facing it with a program of public works and construction of roads, which may facilitate, at the same time, inter-American commerce.

"THIRD—Armaments. A study of measures to be submitted to the world disarmament conference in February, 1932, with the idea of reaching a viewpoint common to all American countries.

"FOURTH—Economic and financial problems. A study of methods to maintain a paying capacity for the financial obligations of the different governments. Means to substitute, for the moment, the ordinary sources of international credits. Consideration of emergency systems to prevent, in agreement with international bankers, the outflow of gold when the paralyzation of exports may make this dangerous. A plan for general cooperation in economic and financial matters."

Spanish Air Hero Warns Against "Rich Man's" Rule

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BARCELONA, Spain, June 23.—"We will have a republic of bankers, bishops, and generals if we don't watch out," Maj. Ramon Franco, the trans-Atlantic birdman with the restless eyes, warned the always restless masses of Catalonia last night, offering himself as a candidate in more ways than one.

MAJ. RAMON FRANCO.

Making his maiden speech as candidate for the constituent parliament on the ticket of Col. Francisco Macia, provisional head of Catalonia, he pledged all his fiery energy to struggle for a federal republic.

But the union between the revolutionary aviator from Spain proper and these Catalan proletarians were sealed when he suggested the capacity in which he might be useful in the event the "banker-bishop-general republic" came to pass.

Refers to Portugal's Struggle.

This arose when Maj. Franco in a brief, passionate speech got on to the subject of the Portuguese, the other Iberian people whom the Catalans hope will some day join the peninsular federation.

"When the Portuguese republic came, all the monarchists turned republican, as they are doing in Spain now," he declared. "In a few years they got all the high posts and now, with a dictatorship, they are running the country again."

He then rasped out his suggestion: "If this comes to pass in Spain we people will march on parliament and turn it into the streets as Gen. Pavia did with the republican deputies in 1872, only this would be a Pavia with reverse English."

Audacity Stuns 180,000.

The vast throng which cheered the aviator when he rose to speak as the latest recruit to Macia Catalanism was stunned apparently by Maj. Franco's audacity and by the simplicity of his suggestion. There was a first a dead silence and then an exultant roar from the 180,000 anarcho-syndicalists of Barcelona, who are not the least vociferous of Col. Macia's supporters.

Maj. Franco made a great hit when he declared he had flown to Andalusia yesterday and found the proletariat "unhappy masses, oppressed by the great land owners," ripe for an Andalusian state, presumably proletarian.

"The provisional government ought to encourage these movements," he declares.

Macia Speaks in Bull Ring.

More than 60,000 Catalans flocked to the great blue and white tiled bull ring where Alejando Lerroux, foreign minister, started his campaign to diminish Col. Macia last Sunday, and until 2 o'clock this morning they listened rapturously to Col. Macia and his candidates for parliament in next Sunday's elections talk of their ideals of Catalonia as "administratively and politically a personality by herself."

The thought of federalism, not separatism, dominated the remarks.

No details of the Catalan statutes, which are the center of the fight, were revealed, but Señor Lerroux's intimation that they were the work of the Macia's party alone was refuted.

But the colonel's program is frankly to the left. When the separation of church and state was demanded the bull ring echoed to roars louder than any which ever assailed the ears of a dying bull.

BUYS GOWNS IN OTHER WOMAN'S NAME; ARRESTED

A blond young woman opened a charge account Saturday at the Hetty Wales Dress shop, 175 North Michigan avenue, under the name of Mrs. John L. Cochran, 1422 North State street. Yesterday she called at the shop, with a Rolls-Royce and chauffeur, and picked up $200 worth of dresses which she had ordered previously.

As her car started away three men stopped it.

"Who are you?" she demanded.

"What, don't you know your husband?" asked Detective Edward Griffin, one of the trio. "This," said the detective, indicating another member of the party, "is John L. Cochran."

At the detective bureau the woman gave her name as Helen Clark, 34 years old, an interior decorator. She was charged with obtaining property under false pretenses. The real Mrs. Cochran is in California, her husband said, and he went to the police when the shop management called him at the office of his real estate concern to inquire as to his wife's credit.

Chile Jails Air Hero and 4 Aids as Rebel Leaders

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 23.—(AP)—The newspaper Ultimas Noticias says that Lieut. Col. Ramon Vergara of the garrison at Iquique, one of Chile's outstanding flyers, and four lieutenants attempted subversive tactics yesterday, but the garrison failed to join in. The five officers, the newspaper says, were arrested.

SPEEDER GETS 10 DAYS.

Daniel Faraci, 25 years old, 1524 North Maplewood avenue, arrested on June 15 after he had driven an automobile at a mile a minute pace over north side streets and sideswiped several cars, was sentenced to ten days in the Bridewell and fined $100 yesterday by Judge Leon Edelman.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

FUR SAMMONS AND THE LAW.

The career of Fur Sammons, remanded to the penitentiary by the order of the Supreme court, ought to impress upon our citizenry what is meant when we refer to the "alliance of crime and politics."

It was twenty-eight years ago that Sammons was convicted of murder and sentenced to death. He had already acquired a long record of criminal offense, but the then governor, Richard Yates, deemed him worthy of the executive clemency and commuted his sentence to life imprisonment. But Sammons had not exhausted the fount of mercy which tempers justice if turned on by powers potent with the executive conscience, and under the benign régime of Len Small Sammons' life sentence was reduced to a fifty year term which a month later resulted in his return to the bosom of society by way of parole.

Thus, under the orderly process of our law, this convicted murderer and chronic lawbreaker not only slipped out of the loop but after a few years in durance walked through the gates of the penitentiary a virtually free man. Three years later this virtually seemed to have become actually, for he was given a complete discharge.

This latter grace, however, was illegal, and in 1930 Chief Justice McGoorty remanded him to serve the remainder of his commuted sentence, which judgment the Supreme court has now affirmed. The people of Illinois will be grateful for this judicial protection.

It is now said that Sammons "probably" will spend the remainder of his life in prison. It is to be hoped so, if not assured. But what is perhaps even more desirable is that the citizenry of Illinois should consider Sammons' experience with the law and inquire of themselves why a machine gun gangster, a notorious criminal, a murderer found favor with two governors and with the parole boards. There was nothing in Sammons' career or revealed character which justified clemency, much less turning him back upon society.

What moved the official conscience to his release? Had it not been for an unofficial body of citizens, the crime commission, in all probability he would have remained a free man, at least until he committed another flagrant offense. High officials, sworn and paid to administer the law, had abused their power, counting upon our ignorance or our indifference. Sammons is only one exhibit of the price we pay for putting authority in the hands of corrupt politics and electing men to high office without sensible consideration of their moral fitness. Perhaps we have done with Sammons. The system by which he profited may be weaker at this time than it was. But we have not done with it. We shall have it while we are indifferent to character in all public office, while we are moved by the demagogue and follow the leading strings of unscrupulous bosses. We are supposed to enjoy the blessings of self-government. But government is a task we refuse to perform competently.

INTERNATIONAL DRUG CONTROL.

The international group devoted to the suppression of the notorious opium traffic and maintaining at Geneva a bureau of information as fulcrum of pressure upon the league of nations has evolved a "scheme for limiting the output of manufactured drugs." The scheme is based on the assumption that the league "through certain of its organisms has determined figures which are generally recognized to represent with reasonable accuracy the world's average per capita per annum requirements of manufactured drugs, in terms of their totaled raw material equivalents." While its proponents recognize that such figures are not applicable to all countries individually, owing to different conditions, they can be used to check up any glaring discrepancies "between the approximate legitimate requirements of any country" and what that country might either willfully "or unwittingly" misstate its requirements to be.

Without going into details the plan is one for a rationing of drug supply by a central agency under conventions of such nations as adhere to the plan, those remaining outside to be subject to "the world's censure" and the active dissatisfaction of manufacturers in adhering countries.

The scheme is a product of what is so popular these days among our intellectuals as "world thinking." It is also an illustration of the reforming passion to fix its thoughts upon an evil with very little consideration of the difficulties of correction and the limitations of any accepted scheme of reform. If this has unfortunate consequences where schemes cover a small area its possibilities of mischievous futility in grandiose projects of world scope are in the same proportion multiplied.

In the proposed international control of narcotic supply the danger of interfering with medical freedom is greater so far as our country is concerned, and probably European countries, than the drug evil. A central body, though it will probably not be able to overcome powerful economic forces when they are concerned, will be under the influence of a reforming passion so concentrated upon the evil of abuse as to have little regard for legitimate use. We know what experiments of noble motive can produce. Narcotics are an important aid to modern medical science and a blessing in proper use to mankind. No scheme for surrendering our independence of judgment and action with regard to them to an organ of censors at Geneva ought to be adopted without thorough examination and discussion, nor without adequate safeguards against the improper restriction for which zealots will constantly be working.

BERNT BALCHEN DISCOVERS BUREAUCRACY.

According to a ruling of the department of labor Bernt Balchen, Admiral Byrd's pilot in the flight over the south pole, cannot receive his citizenship papers. Balchen, a native of Norway, declared his intention in 1927. It is held that he has failed to meet the condition of five years' continuous residence in the United States. The Byrd antarctic voyage took him out of the country, although he was on a ship flying the American flag, was an invaluable member of an American expedition, and in a region to which there is an American claim because of the exploration and occupation of it by Americans, this region being Little America.

The bureau of naturalization explains that it cannot proceed on the assumption that Little America is American soil. That would be trespass on international questions where it has no sanction. So far as the bureau is concerned, Balchen was out of the country and technically has not complied with the law of naturalization. The upshot is that, unless a way of modifying this opinion is found, a man whom the country would like to have as a citizen cannot soon become one simply because he took an invaluable part in an enterprise of which the country is proud.

The bureau, involved in the laws of its being, probably cannot find its way out to any other conclusion, but it might be advised to try again. The instinct of bureaucracy is negation. That is why it is so solid and so futile. The discovery of a reason for not doing a thing is an achievement. It marks the end of a perfect bureaucratic day. The recognition of the impossible is the triumph of the bureaucrat. He can't help being that way. A thing that can't be done is his proudest work.

In this instance the system penalizes a man for services which make him desirable as a citizen. His merit is the obstruction in his way.

THE MAYORS COME HOME.

The American mayors are home from France with explanations and corrections and no doubt properly thankful that it was a family party. The wives were with them and that was the best break they could have. Some of them must square things with their constituents, but they are spared the worst. The mayoresses have not been sitting at home. They know all. Mayor James L. Key of Atlanta is the particular bright hero among the pilgrims. Although Mayor George L. Baker of Portland made public speeches all the time, even in that place of silence, the tomb of the unknown soldier, Mr. Key really said something. He said that prohibition was a terrible thing and the Georgians are waiting for him.

The Atlanta mayor is game. He's going back to the home of fresh corn liquor where the country cracker takes it out of tomato cans and the town fundamentalist out of anything he can get. Mr. Key, experiencing the civilized habits of a people accustomed to the rational use of fine beverages, turned upon the crude and shabby moralities of his primitive fellow townsmen who add the spice of secretiveness to their potations and in several bursts of noble candor made trouble for himself. Nevertheless it was a good telling, and if Mr. Key can ride the first waves he should endure as one of the major prophets.

Mayor John Porter of Los Angeles was of the dry persuasion when he went abroad and he returns in that conviction, untouched by French civilities and amenities, but protesting that he did not attempt a jeremiad when confronted by palpable evidences of the French addiction to champagne at official breakfasts. Mr. Porter says that he was guided at all times by the rule of live and let live. The French could not have asked for a better break. Mr. Porter would not give the same consideration to his own fellow countrymen. Nor will others.

Mayor Baker of Portland was probably the most unusual phenomenon, social and political, presented by the trip to French observation. Mr. Baker everywhere had the odor of Portland roses in his imagination, and, being most at his ease and rest when he had one hand on his heart and was speaking in the public manner, he spoke in the public manner all the time. He must have been followed constantly by large crowds.

The mayors represented the native American genius and must have increased the strange legend of our country abroad, but it must be remembered that each makes his own antiquity and traditions as he goes along. He has no Tudor robes or Valois bands. He has nothing to put on but his native artfulness and nothing to display but his abounding good nature and vociferousness. In this simple fashion the mayors went abroad and they leave France a better nation and come home better men.

Editorial of the Day

MR. STIMSON'S TRIP ABROAD.

[The New York Sun.]

Mr. Stimson's two months in Europe will cover an interesting period of politics on the continent, and while he purposes to make his visit as informal as may be, it is obvious that without resigning from his office he cannot divest himself of his official character as secretary of state. Mr. Stimson recognizes this, and on his behalf it has been made known that, while he may not seek out the high functionaries of foreign lands whose soil he treads, he will not avoid them.

For some time Mr. Stimson's preoccupation has been reduction of armament, his attention being particularly fixed on warships. This subject can be isolated for treatment in the United States on the theory that the army and its affiliated organizations are now so small in personnel that in them no reduction is possible unless the land forces are to be obliterated. Such isolation of the fleet is not practiced in European countries; in them sea power and land power are weighed together, and both are associated with immediate and future policies of a sort that do not presently require attention here.

Mr. Stimson can learn much in Europe and by so learning he will better fortify himself to bear the heavy burden of minding the business of the United States, from which the world at large now seeks cash, not advice; and the secretary of state unquestionably is conscious of the fact, apparently ignored abroad when the convenience of chancelleries suggests its ignoring, that even the highest official of our government cannot enter into treaties or conclude bargains without the consent of the senate.

CARROTS.

If a person tried to live on carrots exclusively he would get into trouble. In the first place, before he had been long on the diet he would notice that he was becoming jaundiced. His skin and his eyeballs would acquire something of the yellowish tinge occasionally seen in young babies and in adults with gallstones. However, there would be none of the aches and pains of jaundice, nor would the kidney excretion have the deep shade given it by bile.

There is a notion that eating carrots will improve the complexion. The fact is, that carrots, wind, and sunshine about lead the procession of causes which spoil the complexion.

The next objection to a diet of carrots is the large volume and small food value of the vegetable. The carrot belongs to the root or tuber family. In these vegetables the root thickens up because of a deposit of starch and this, in time, is converted into woody fiber. The carrot root contains less starch than that of the potato, pound for pound. It contains more water and more fiber. Therefore, a person on a carrot diet would need to eat large quantities in order to supply even a moderate part of his bodily needs. He would be compelled to put in a considerable part of his time eating, as does the herbivorous cow.

Although the carrot as a principal article of diet falls far short of the requirements, as an auxiliary it is of great service. It contains a yellow pigment called carotin, which comes near to having medicinal properties. This substance contains a something that belongs to the vitamin family and is closely akin to vitamin A. It promotes growth of children and helps to protect adults from infections. In these qualities it so nearly resembles vitamin A that many think it is nothing more than that vitamin wearing something of a mask.

This carotin also contains a something that is related to hemoglobin, although it is definitely different. Persons who eat carrots, spinach, and other pigmented vegetables make red blood out of them, though just how it is done nobody knows exactly. In addition, young, tender, fresh carrots are rich in vitamin C.

DIET FOR CHILDREN.

Y. D. writes:

1. My 3 months old baby has had sour stomach frequently during the last month. Should her diet include fruit and vegetable juices by now?

2. Recently I have had the care of two boys, 3 and 5 years old. Both wet the bed every night two or three times and one has a very strong odor of ammonia. Please tell me some way to help cure this terrible habit. I give them an early supper and they sleep in the afternoon, but they do not seem any better.

3. May I have any booklets you have on the care and feeding of children?

REPLY.

1. It is all right to give strained fruit juices or to nate juice to a baby three months old.

2. The probability is that the children are eating too much butter, cream, fat meat, and other greases, and not enough cereals and breads. Substitute skim milk and buttermilk for milk and cream, and skim milk cheeses for the other kind. Changing the diet may help these children. Some mental hygiene societies have booklets on enuresis, which they sell for a few cents.

3. Most state health departments have such booklets that they send on request. The children's bureau, United States department of labor, Washington, D. C., sends booklets on infant care and child care.

ANEMIA.

G. L. W. writes: 1. Is it true that women who are anemic cannot bear children? 2. When is anemia dangerous?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. When it is of the kind known as pernicious. Other forms of anemia are hardly serious of themselves.

INTEREST LOANS.

Chicago, June 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I made a loan from a loan company payable in twenty months at 2½ per cent per month. I paid it regularly until a balance of $48 was due. I then asked for an additional $32, which was readily granted me in view of my promptness in meeting my payments.

The company destroyed my old contract, making a new one on which they added the $32 to the unpaid balance of the $48. When I opened the new contract I found that they had raised the interest to 2½ per cent a month. Can they legally charge me this higher rate of interest on the $48 which I originally agreed to pay at 2½ per cent?

E. G. H.

There would be no legal objection to substituting a new loan at a higher rate for an old loan as far as these bare facts are concerned. A person who signs a contract is presumed to have read it.

It seems probable, however, that the $48 balance included interest and, hence, that they are, in substance, charging interest upon interest. This would be usurious and the result would be that they could only collect the principal. We cannot advise to advantage without having the wording of the contracts before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SECOND HAND AUTOS.

Chicago, June 17.—[Friend of the People.]—A vacant lot on the north of our property which has been held by the city for taxes is now the repository for several old automobile bodies and a dumping ground for the neighborhood refuse, thus marring the appearance of adjacent property. Is there any course that can be successfully pursued in remedying this condition? H. N.

Old automobile bodies have been removed from vacant lot, as well as other rubbish, and notices served on householders in vicinity to desist from further dumping. Location will be kept under observation to see that notices are complied with.

Superintendent of Streets.

DISSOLVED PARTNERSHIP.

Chicago, June 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a partnership is dissolved is it necessary to have the transaction recorded? 2. How about having it published? F. A. L.

1. It is not necessary.

2. If you have dealt with persons who, in absence of notice, might assume that the retiring partners were still authorized to make binding contracts on behalf of the partnership, then notice of the dissolution should be given to such persons.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

LISSEN, FRANCE!

Now, France, we want to talk to you as a friend. There's no use your pulling back on this thing; we're going to have a holiday, a debt holiday for a whole year, and we want you to come to the party. You ought to see that by your hanging back you're gumming the cards and queering the game. Now, there's no use your being a killjoy if everybody else wants to play. And think what it means; you don't have to pay anybody what you owe 'em for a whole year. Think of that. Can you imagine anything softer than that? No, sir, France, you don't have to pay anybody a red cent, not for a year. And after that let your conscience be your guide. Of course, why naturally, well, we will admit, nobody pays you anything during the year, but we haven't come to that yet. Now, France, the trouble with you is this thing looked like it was going over so easy and that isn't your way. You've got to have two or three crises and tear down the Vendome column and dig up an asphalt barricade in the streets and yell, "Assassins! Assassins!" at the gendarmes, and then go to the movies and call it a day. Well, all right, have a few uprisings and yell your head off; maybe somebody will get slapped on the wrist, but that will be about all and it will help the American tourist trade immensely. Anyhow, France, this is going to be a big party and you needn't shake your head and say, "Non, non." Come on, shake a leg, get a move on you, join in with everybody else. Everybody turned in and went over to save you about a dozen years back, didn't they? Now it's your turn. Of course, if you won't come in it'll be perfectly all right. You can do as you please. But wait until the next time you want to be saved. Ha, ha, you'll just keep right on wanting, that's what. Now, think it over, dearie, think it over.

A GYPSY MAID LAMENTS.

I knew a gypsy lad last spring
With laughter in his eyes,
He made a rope of silver stars
That climbed the purple skies.
He made a road of tangled silk,
Burned-gold at dawn, and then
He said: "They're lands that I must see,
But I'll be back again!

"There's silver in the Persian moon,
Dreams older than Cathay,
Rendezvous with Hindu maids. . . .
I think I'll start today.
There are trysts with girls I've kissed
In Cairo and Peru,
Pledges to a sorceress
Before I dreamed of you."

He had wandering ways and songs,
He often rode at dawn,
When the moon turned white again
The gypsy lad was gone.
He rode away a troubadour
Who hummed a foolish song. . . .
But my heart's not the only one
The gypsy took along.

HELEN WELSHIMER.

MAYOR CERMAK learns that $1,000,000,000 is going to be trimmed from realty values; France says it has spent $10,000,000,000 of its own money to repair war damage; the moratorium would cut Germany's tax burden by $360,000,000 for one year; Great Britain owes us $4,426,000,000 and France $3,865,000,000. After reading these figures yesterday we were so bewildered that when we went into the butcher shop and ordered some round steak, and the butcher said, "How much?" we immediately said, "Oh, a coupla million dollars' worth."

THE DROUGHT a year ago was a terrible thing; we all deeply deplored it; but lissen, Jupiter Pluvius, while we just love the refreshing rain (ah, see how it washes the faces of the dear little flowers), at the same time there's no use picking up the whole Atlantic ocean and carrying it over Chicago and dumping it down all at once. There's reason in all things, Mr. Pluvius, as Cleopatra said to Marc Antony, and for hevving's sake have a heart.

LOU AND HIS ROLLING PEANUT.

Lou Houseman, the best of pals, has gone on ahead. There's enough stories about Lou to fill a big book, but here's one. Many years ago when automobiles were something of a novelty Lou bought the weirdest rattletrap machine ever known. It was old and rusty and outlandish, but Lou loved it and named it the Rolling Peanut. It was his great delight to drive the Rolling Peanut up on the sidewalk and bump slowly and ponderously along while the cops ran circles around him shouting, "Hey, you can't do that." At one of the first of the Indianapolis auto speed contests Lou drove the Rolling Peanut down to the big show. It probably took him a week to get there, but in time he arrived and, appearing at the gate of the track, tossed the ticket taker the admission fee. "Wait a minute," yelled the ticket taker, running after Lou. "Hey, a dollar for the car." "Sold!" said Lou, and stepped out of the auto.

A MAN out in Australia 101 years old was carried on a cot from a hospital to get married. Now, then, boys and girls of the colleges of journalism, if you were a regular toiler in the newspaper vineyard and were on the copy desk, what caption would you put on this story? Oh, not at all—the answer is "Flaming Youth." Tut, tut, children, you must study your daily newspapers more.

Lagniappe.

JUST AS WE THOUGHT, our pet stock, Velvet Lined Doughnuts Preferred, after sneaking up a point and a half when it heard about the debt holiday, thought it over for a while and then turned tail and ran like a dog down into a new low yesterday. Oh, well. R. H. L.

A POWERFUL STIMULANT THAT SHOULD BE GIVEN WITH A WORD OF CAUTION

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 24, 1915.

VIENNA.—Lemberg, the capital of the Austrian province of Galicia, held by the Russians for ten long months, was recaptured by the Austrian second army after a violent battle. All Vienna today is celebrating. The first troops of the Teutonic allies entered the city late yesterday as the Russian rear guard was protecting the retreat of the main Russian forces which were evacuating the capital. The Russians are falling back toward the Russian frontier, closely pressed by the Germanic armies.

LONDON.—David Lloyd George, minister of munitions, has given British labor seven days in which to make good the promise of its leaders that men will rally to the factories in sufficient numbers to produce a maximum supply of munitions of war. The ultimatum was issued in a speech in the house of commons. Mr. Lloyd George plainly announced that unless the men were forthcoming he would resort to the use of compulsory methods.

WASHINGTON.—Robert Lansing of New York is now secretary of state. His appointment to the office made vacant by the resignation of William Jennings Bryan was announced by President Wilson.

NEW YORK.—Thirteen witnesses, including Thaw himself, testified that they believed Harry K. Thaw is sane. They appeared before a jury which is to pass on the present mental state of Stanford White's slayer. On the outcome depends whether Thaw will go free or will be returned to the insane asylum from which he escaped.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 24, 1901.

ROANOKE, Va.—From 300 to 400 persons are thought to be drowned in a flood which swept through the Elkhorn valley from Ennis, W. Va., to Vivian in the same state this morning. In the valley is located the celebrated Pocahontas coal field. The mining and railroad town of Keystone was practically swept away and the little town of Vivian nearly destroyed. Property loss is estimated at several million dollars.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Secretary of State Hay collapsed under the strain of fatigue and mental agony this evening as he stood by the remains of his son, Adelbert, whose body was found on the sidewalk in front of the New Haven hotel. The full details of the accident which resulted in the death of young Hay will never be known. It is only known that he fell from a window in the third story of the New Haven hotel shortly before 2:30 o'clock this morning and that he was instantly killed.

CHICAGO.—Despite the efforts of the police of Evanston to add to their string of scalps those of the Sunday bicyclists who are in the habit of riding at a rapid speed through the classic town, not one was arrested yesterday. Two were arrested for violating the ordinances which forbid riding on the sidewalks.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 24, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The star route cases were brought before court in an unexpected manner by counsel for Gen. Brady filing a petition urging the judge of the Washington Criminal court to instruct the grand jury to proceed with an immediate investigation and not wait until September as proposed by the government. Brady affirms his innocence of the alleged frauds. The judge refused to make the order. Brady will now pose as an injured innocent who has not been given an opportunity to prove his innocence.

CHICAGO.—The city council passed, with only a few dissenting votes, the ordinance for the vacation of La Salle street between Jackson and Van Buren, thus providing a splendid site for the new Board of Trade building. In passing this ordinance the council has yielded to the demands of the business community and has consulted the best interests of Chicago.

TOMBSTONE, Ariz.—Fire which swept six blocks of this town destroyed about 150 buildings, including a large part of the business portion. The loss will aggregate $250,000. The fire started in a saloon from the opening of a barrel of whisky, the fumes of which reached a cigar lighter and were ignited.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, The Tribune.

THE END OF THE ROAD.

Chicago, June 18.—My amusement is shared, I find, by many people in the efforts of the members of the board of education to turn the fire from themselves on to the teachers and the matter of their accepting scrip. No one can blame the teachers for refusing to accept worthless paper. If they do the board will then sit back sanctimoniously and feel that their job is done.

No one is fooled any longer. The trouble is right in the business management of the board and the sooner that department is forced to eliminate surplus jobs, automobiles and excess expense accounts, the sooner the teachers will be paid. However, the trick of diverting the attack from themselves to the salary issue is an old one. To my mind the members of the board of education had better quickly find a way to remedy the situation before it gets any worse, or they may find an irate people rather difficult to handle.

The continuation schools have been obviously protected from a cut one would assume. These schools, as I understand it, operate all summer, the hours are long, and the teachers paid accordingly. Here is a place to cut, not one or two of them, but all of them. Every week means a delay and a serious one.

H. G. B.

COMPARATIVE SALARIES.

Chicago, June 19.—At the Cameron school the principal's salary is $4,800, while the engineer is receiving $5,340. This is only one of the many inconsistencies in our scho l board's salary schedule. In looking over the board proceedings I note that the principal of another school receives a salary of $3,200, while the engineer receives $3,780. Which of these individuals does the more for the community? The one who is in charge of seven or eight men and women or one who is in charge of 1,200 children and thirty teachers? The teachers and principals, many of them, have college degrees and are actually receiving less for their work than those who heat and clean the building. Isn't this a case where justice isn't? O. M. C.

A SHORTER SCHOOL YEAR.

Chicago, June 17.—As a means of reducing city or school expenditures, why not cut the school term to nine months? Most of the schools throughout the state of Illinois have terms of nine months. Graduates of these nine month schools enter universities and successfully complete their work, many of them becoming members of honor societies.

M. B. S.

SAVING MONEY.

Chicago, June 21.—The mayor rules that all city officials, including aldermen, must take a two week vacation without pay. If you ever looked for an alderman in the city hall during the months of July and August you would have as much chance of finding him as a worm has in a henhouse.

Nine-tenths of the city officials conduct profitable business enterprises outside of their municipal duties. Each official receives at least $5,000 a year for his duties to the city.

If $2,000 a year were lopped off each of their salaries and $4,000 off the mayor's $18,000 a year, I am sure they would be able to live without getting a tin cup and pencils.

JAMES CONLEY.

A CERTAIN RESENTMENT.

Chicago, June 19.—The optimistic speeches recently delivered by President Hoover surely are sumpin' grand. His admonition to everybody to observe the laws certainly sounds swell. When the landlord came to collect his rent this morning I explained that I had been out of work for 15 months and then started to read one of Hoover's speeches about facing the east, being optimistic at all times and looking for the silver lining in every cloud, come what may. Without any previous warning, and just as I was beginning to read a beautiful paragraph on optimism during the depression, my dear old landlord bounced a left hook off my chin and I made a forced landing at the bottom of the stairs leading to the vestibule. Later in the day, when the milkman called to collect his money on a past due bill, I pulled out another batch of Hoover's speeches and in my very best style reeled off that lovely portion dealing with the splendid prosperity we will enjoy twenty years from now. Strange to relate, the milkman reacted in the nastiest sort of way and proceeded forthwith to plaster a right uppercut on my left eye, leaving me hors de combat, or even worse than that. POLLYANNA.

DRY PROGRESS.

Waukegan, Ill., June 18.—The dedication of Capone serves to strengthen the remarks made by Edison some months ago. He said the dry law was 60 per cent enforced, that it could be made 90 per cent, and that when such enforcement was reached we might call this a dry nation. If such a notable victory as the Capone break up can be achieved in the face of the bitter, savage, and unfair fight that has been made against the dry law we may confidently look forward to the attainment of Edison's 30 per cent, for the morals of the Capone element, not only in Chicago but throughout the country, has been broken and there will be no more gigantic flouting of the law such as they carried on. There will be violations of the law, of course, but never on the Capone scale.

A. H. RICHARDSON.

A MORATORIUM IN COOK COUNTY.

Chicago, June 21.—If the moratorium for a year on war debts as proposed by President Hoover will aid in world economic recovery, why wouldn't a moratorium for a year or two on first mortgage principal payments aid in economic recovery for the United States, and Cook county in particular?

J. R. PARKS JR.

BUT THE CHORUS REMAINS.

[Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.]

BANKS $856,000, GANGSTER PAYS NO INCOME TAX

U.S. Attorney Opens Drive on N. Y. Hoodlums.

New York, June 23.—[Special.]—Federal war against gangsters and racketeers who have cheated the government with tolling in north United States Attorney George E. Medalie has discovered that Arthur "Dutch" Schultz, again running free under $75,000 bail bond, deposited $856,000 in one bank in the last six months of 1930 and never reported a dollar of income to Uncle Sam.

DUTCH SCHULTZ.

Discovery of this enormous deposit, covering a period of only six months, went far toward confirming the officials already made that a group of racketeers and beer and liquor runners were profiting to the extent of at least $200,000 in New York alone. Schultz was making, approximately, about $15,000 a week, of which but $1,500 every working week was reported.

Treasury Are Alarmed.

Schultz's money isn't in the bank now. It was all taken out recently—probably about the time the federal drive against started after Al Capone and the Chicago racketeers through the income tax evasion method. It was said today that Schultz and other gangsters in New York took alarm at the prosecuting in Chicago and took their cash from banks and put it where it may be harder for the treasury agents to come upon.

As a result of the discovery made in Schultz's case, United States Attorney Medalie filed a tax assessment against Schultz in the sum of $[illegible], which represents not only the amount of income tax claimed by the government, but also a 25 per cent penalty for failing to file an income tax report and a 50 per cent penalty for fraud.

The whole proceeding, so far, is in the nature of a civil action against Schultz, and therefore, in the present circumstances, no prison penalties are asked for. It was clearly indicated, however, that later an indictment might be sought against Schultz on charges similar to those that were brought successfully against Capone in Chicago.

Uses 5 Fictitious Names.

The announcement regarding Schultz's big income and tax dodging was made by Special Treasury Agent Ray McGrellan, and Thomas E. Rowe, chief assistant United States attorney. They said the money was deposited in one well known bank, whose name they withheld. It was put in one account under three different names. They were unable to learn, they said, whether the account had ever held more than $100,000 at one time, but they struck an average of $100,000 to cover the income Schultz must have had and figured that the tax assessment at $[illegible]. When the penalty for failing to file a report and the penalty for fraud were added to this amount it brought the assessment to a figure just under $[illegible].

Nazis Quits Parliament to Open War on King Carol

BUCHAREST, Rumania, June 23.—Dr. Julius Maniu, former premier, has resigned his leadership of the peasants' party and given up his mandate in the chamber of deputies. He is believed to have taken this step in order to have a free hand in starting a campaign against what he terms the dictatorship of King Carol. Field Marshal Alexandru Averescu has resigned as leader of the People's party.

EX-POLICE CHIEF OF MELROSE PARK REPORTED MISSING

A search for Rocco Passerella, former chief of police of Melrose Park, was begun by police of the state's attorney's office yesterday after the former chief's family reported he had been missing since a week ago last Monday from his home at 2013 Lake street, Melrose Park.

Daniel Passerella, chief of the Melrose Park fire department and brother of the missing man, said he believed his brother had been either kidnaped or slain because of his activities while chief of police.

In January, 1930, Passerella was missing for a week. When he returned he said he had been kidnaped.

While on the Melrose Park police force, Passarella was frequently in trouble and was suspended from the force six times. He was reinstated five times, but was finally dismissed last November. Since then the former policeman has been out of work. His family was evicted from their apartment for failure to pay rent and recently they had been living with Passerella's father.

Arthur Lessberg, the present Melrose Park chief, said he had learned that Rocco was heavily in debt and expressed the belief that he may have left town to hunt for work. He was last seen when he left his home on June 13 to keep an appointment with another man, whose identity is not known.

While chief of police, Passerella aided the federal government in indicting nearly 100 bootleggers and alcohol runners in Melrose Park and his family believes some of these men may have kidnaped him for revenge.

City Acts to Make Auto Owners Pay Full Year Fee

Automobile owners who wait until after July 1 to apply for their city vehicle license tags in the hope of getting them for a half year fee will have to present their state license registration cards, City Clerk Peter J. Brady announced yesterday. The city clerk said he intended to curb the practice of motorists in delaying in getting their city tags until after July 1. He said this plan should give the city much additional revenue.

Ex-Justice Olson Enters Federal Court Practice

Attorney Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court, was admitted to practice in the United States District court yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

VICTIM OF RIDE IS SLAIN AS HE SIGNALS NEPHEW

Body Hurled from Auto as Shots Are Heard.

The body of Sam [Cabbage Head] Pullano, 2827 South Wells street, a minor police character, was found at noon yesterday half buried in mud and water beneath a railroad viaduct at 28th place and Canal street. He had been shot three times in the back and hurled from an automobile at the midpoint of the tunnel, which is a block long.

SAM PULLANO.

Just before the killing the doomed man was seen by his nephew, James Pullano, riding beside the driver of the death car with a third man sitting in the back seat. James said that his uncle waved at him as the automobile, a smal lsedan, turned off Wentworth avenue and proceeded west on 28th place. It disappeared under the viaduct and an instant later the nephew heard shots. Rushing to the scene, he found his uncle dead.

Shots Heard; Auto Disappears.

At the other end of the tunnel a group of boys and women also heard the shots and saw the sedan come speeding out from under the viaduct to disappear toward the west.

James Caneo, 2904 South Wells street, a cousin of the slain man, also identified the body. Both he and the nephew said they could give no reason for the killing.

Police records show that Pullano had been held to the grand jury together with Johnny Genero, recently slain, for the murder of Martin Garrity in 1926, but was subsequently released. Previous to that time he had served eight months in the house of correction for a robbery.

Last year Pullano was held to the grand jury in $20,000 bonds for another robbery, but the disposition of the case is not shown in the detective bureau records.

Pullano was the father of a seven year old daughter, Loretta, and had been divorced for six years. His brother, Frank S. Pullano, formerly a real estate operator in the neighborhood of 21st street and Princeton avenue, recently moved to Indiana Harbor.

Further inquiry into Pullano's recent activities revealed that he had been shot in the leg and in the finger two months ago during a gun fight at 21st street and Indiana avenue.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

John Nichols, 24 years old, 221 North Third avenue, Villa Park, was held to the grand jury on four charges of robbery yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan. Nichols was captured recently as he fled from a south side drug store.

Fireman Overcome While Fighting Basement Fire

Raymond Shay, a fireman of Engine company No. 122, was overcome yesterday while fighting a fire in the basement of an apartment building at 815 East 51st street. He was quickly revived. Origin of the fire was not determined. The damage was estimated at $10,000. Several families were temporarily driven from their homes.

ROB DAIRY OF $1,800.

East St. Louis, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—Between $1,200 and $1,500 was taken by two robbers who entered the St. Clair Dairy company here and held up Manager Arthur F. Solomon and three clerks yesterday.

ROTARY CHEERS MORATORIUM AT WORLD MEETING

First European Elected as Next President.

BY EMIL MAASS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, June 23.—The twenty-second annual convention of Rotary International was opened here this morning before 4,200 persons, of whom more than 1,000 were delegates from North American countries.

ALMON E. ROTH.

President Almon E. Roth of Palo Alto, Cal., opened formal sessions of the convention following speeches of welcome by members of the Austrian ministry and the singing of Rotary songs. Elections were held immediately and Sydney Woodroffe Pscall of London was unanimously elected president for the year 1931-'32. He is the first Rotary president from Europe.

Chicagoan Again Honored.

Following in short order Rufus Fisher Chapin of Chicago was reelected treasurer for his 15th term as financial chief of Rotary International. Maj. Charles A. Mander of Wolverhampton, England, was elected by the Rotarians of Great Britain and Ireland as their representative on the international board of directors, and Canada conferred the same honor upon John Nelson of Montreal.

The huge throng loudly cheered Viscount Cecil, speaker of the day, when he praised President Hoover's proposal to postpone war debts and reparations for one year.

"This generous offer," said Lord Cecil," is the inspiration of a great statesman. England greets the proposals with all of her approval."

Lord Cecil outlined the rapid development of Rotary from its inception in America to its spread throughout Europe, and then went into the subject of the forthcoming world disarmament conference, declaring that Rotary is a force for peace.

Pleads for Disarmament.

"Rotary is becoming a great power in the world and has accordingly great responsibility," he continued. "Therefore I want to submit to you a proposition: That since the success of the international disarmament conference in 1932 is vital to the future of the whole Rotary movement I ask you to use your great influence to promote the success of the conference in every way you can.

"It ought not to be necessary to urge on a Rotary audience the importance of peace. Friendliness and war are the opposite poles of human intercourse, and it is a mere platitude to say that peace is essential to prosperity and progress."

Lord Cecil blamed the great war with its destruction of life and property and its subsequent tax burdens as chiefly responsible for the present economic crisis.

A check up following the first day's session of the convention showed that delegates from 53 countries are represented at the Vienna convention. Further sessions will follow during the week. A message from Paul Harris of Chicago, founder of Rotary and president emeritus, was read at today's session.

REINDICT TWO FOES OF NORRIS AS PERJURERS

Lincoln, Neb., June 23.—[Special.]—Victor Seymour of Lincoln, and George W. Norris, of Alva, Okla., formerly of Brokenbow, were reindicted today by the federal grand jury.

Seymour and Norris are charged with perjury in their testimony before the Nye committee here last fall, which was investigating efforts of the Brokenbow grocer to get his name on the ballot as a candidate for United States senator. He first said he acted independently, but later changed his story.

Seymour, long a political foe of Senator Norris, was named by State Treasurer Stebbings, in a voluntary statement some time after the hearing, as a gobetween in his negotiations with Norris. The object of the candidacy, he said, was to embarrass Senator Norris by the similarity of names.

Federal Judge Thomas C. Munger at the time of the previous hearing on the original indictment ordered the indictments quashed on the ground that they were faulty. The deficiency in the indictment as set forth by Judge Munger in sustaining demurrers to them was that they did not say the alleged perjury consisted of answers that were material to the investigation. The new indictments include all the original text plus the alleged omissions.

FREIGHT HOUSE BURNS.

Harrisburg, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the Southern Illinois Railway and Power company freight house today, causing a loss estimated at more than $5,000. Contents of the building and wooden fixtures were burned.

Clashes with U. S.

12,000 MILE TOUR BARES HORRORS IN STARVING RUSSIA

People Fight Dogs for Garbage to Eat.

famishing, these monsters walked the streets of the towns fighting with the dogs in the street and the ominous, clumsy crows for a morsel of carrion thrown away. Or sitting day after day and night after night in the railway stations, furtively waiting for an opportunity to rifle the pockets of a drunken peasant or steal the luggage of an unwary passenger, or stow away quickly in a train when the lynx-eyed G. P. U. cop was not looking.

Farm Conditions Terrible.

In the Ukraine and the north Caucasus I visited dozens of collective farms and saw the terrible conditions existing there, conditions so terrible that even local communist leaders are exhorting Moscow to ease the pressure and let up sufficiently on the drive for exporting grain to give the miserable peasants enough wheat and oats and hay for themselves and their livestock, or a calamity akin to a famine will occur.

I visited in their "homes," their mud huts without even windows, with these peasants, and noted their apathy, their listlessness, brought on partly through malnutrition, lack of adequate food, partly by the "nitchevo" spirit, their fatalistic attitude, their fear that they, too, might be gathered up and shifted off elsewhere as "colonists" any night,

I saw livestock dying of hunger, and dead of hunger. Yes, horses and cows which had dropped so recently that the crows were even then circling overhead, eyeing the carrion, preparing to swoop on it to make their meal.

Resort to Passive Resistance.

These peasants, thousands and thousands of them, in their hunger and misery and weakness, have resorted to the "passive resistance" which the Germans invented during the French occupation of the Ruhr. They do not cultivate their land, they plead illness and inability to go out and work in the fields when the overseer of the "kolhoz" summons them. With their wives and gaunt, pale, yellow-lash, listless children, they lie on their piles of rags and straw in their huts and wait for the end, whatever it may be.

Farther east in the Urals I examined the colossal failure of Magesto Gorsk, the false magnet which was to attract an entire steel industry to its flank, but failed because the expected iron was not there and because there is no coking coal in the entire region.

In Siberia I saw trainloads of exiles being dropped off the railway with all their belongings, men, women, and children, common law prisoners, political offenders and kulaks, to colonize vast new areas in this barren region.

Further, in the far east region, I noticed the penetration of Mongols from Manchuria, near at hand, into this sparsely settled region where the white element clings like a fringe to the railroad. Here I traversed vast zones bereft of all supplies except the scanty dole allowed by the food ration. Livestock, horses, cattle, even chickens, together with grain reserves, had been confiscated and seized and shipped back west to the newly created centers in the industrial region.

Starts as a Call Boy, Now Vice President of Road

St. Louis, Mo., June 23.—(AP)—Frank W. Grace, who started to work for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad as a call boy at Denison, Tex., 37 years ago, when a lad of 14, today became vice president of the railroad.

GASOLINE ALLEY—CAREFUL, WALT—TRAVEL IS BROADENING

GEE WHIZ, DID WE HAVE TO HAVE A LOT OF NEW BAGS AND EVERYTHING!
OF COURSE, WALT DEAR. OUR LUGGUGE IS OLD AND ISN'T SUITABLE. I WANT TO GET EVERYTHING INTO HAND BAGGAGE. IT IS MUCH EASIER TO GET SOMEONE TO CARRY IT.
HAVE IT YOUR OWN WAY, PHYLLIS. I'D RATHER TAKE A FLY ROD OUT INTO THE JACKSON'S HOLE COUNTRY, AMONG THE TETONS, OR A PACK OUTFIT ALONG THE CLIFFS OF THE CASCADE RANGE.
THERE WILL BE OTHER YEARS.
I'D RATHER DO THE TRAILS OF GLACIER PARK, THE COLORADO LAKES OR THE WHITE MOUNTAINS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE — NOT TO MENTION TAOS OR JASPER.
BUT YOU'VE BEEN TO MOST OF THOSE PLACES.
THAT'S ME ALL OVER. I GUESS I USUALLY HAVE SUCH A GOOD TIME ANYWHERE I'D RATHER GO BACK THAN HUNT UP A NEW PLACE.
BUT DON'T YOU SEE— THE MORE NEW ONES THE MORE PLACES TO GO BACK TO.

Idle, Sensitive, Cruel, Is Hero of This Book

'Bert Bridwell' Tells of Young Rural Hating.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

VARDIS FISHER, who wrote "Tailors of the Hills," has created a much better story in "Bert Bridwell." [Houghton Mifflin], published just the other day. Julia Peterkin, Fannie Hurst, Mazo de la Roche, Robert Morss Lovett, and others praised the first; the second is even more deserving of attention.

In both books the author moves his characters against a huge background. Idaho in pioneer days. Men, yet pigmies in their struggle against the gigantic forces of nature, these characters are indelibly linked with their locale. They are part and parcel of the strange country in which they live and die.

"Bert Bridwell" is the story of a man who seems half god, half demon; of his wife, Lela, tall, slender, blue-eyed and lovely, and of their children. It covers a period of twenty years during which they lived in a one room shack on Soda river, miles from the nearest neighbor. To this isolated spot Charley Bridwell brought his wife and youngsters, because she would get away from civilized ways and devote herself entirely to a pastoral hobby, loafing.

Organized noise, bustle, confusion, "He was annoyed" and disgusted by the hurrying throngs of city streets. 'Where,' he would ask himself, 'are all these damn people going to? And why are they in such a hurry about it? . . . Why,' he added to know, 'was there so much interest taken in the world?'"

He was happy doing nothing, sitting in the sun by his cabin door, looking at the tumbling river, thinking of nothing, drowsing, luxuriously. Money meant nothing to him. Ambition was not a word in his vocabulary. He never stopped to consider the need of providing for his children's education, his wife's future. If events take its course was his motto. He would not work more than he was forced to.

Like a hound were the stories of his utter lack of humor, of his absolute cruelty. He thought it fun to catch rats and torture them; he punished his sons by beating them until the blood ran down their backs. He sacrificed familiar ways of frightening any chance intruder or marauder on his small domain.

And yet he was a man who never spoke a cross word to his wife, who gave her unfaltering devotion, year in and out; who was always ready to share his meager meal with a hungry guest.

His wife, Lela, was at first fascinated by this lover, she loved him against her will and finally, she hated him with a bitter, steely hatred that gave a power. The scene in which she at last asserts herself is the most memorable piece of writing in the book.

The author describes the children, Jed, Ben, and Thirl, with a graphic pen. In fact, a third of the book is given over to Jed, who inherited his father's carelessness and vicious temper and his mother's sensitiveness and love of beauty. Jed is the only child who does not cringe before his father, but stands up to him and says: "I know you hate me. Well, I've always hated you. As far back as I can remember we've hated each other. But you can't just go on beatun me. You've beat me now if you want to. You're stronger'n me. But if you do I'll kill you the first chance I get. I mean my heart and hope to die that's the truth."

His father did not beat him.

In his skilled hands than those of Willa Fisher, "Dark Bridwell" would be another of those close to the soil, soil books that have been coming about the great open spaces in many years.

By May Tinée.

Good Morning!

KIND: Cut and dried gangster melodrama.
QUALITY: Fair.
ACTING: Excellent.
DIRECTION: Not bad.
PHOTOGRAPHY: Not good.
PROJECTION: Terrible.
STORY: Events hinge on the murder of an underworld power called "Honest" Baker, because, you learn, "he never did an honest thing in his life." The tale covers the sort of ground you've been over and over again and introduces many familiar characters, including the facetious drunken reporter, the earnest cub, and the soft voiced detective who, like God, works in a mysterious way.

REMARKS: The familiar faces of folks you're fond of—Vera Reynolds, Carol Nye, and Thomas Jackson greet you from this film. Which fact may lead you to drop your silver at the box office window.

THE ORPHEUM'S playing a trio this week. "The Subway Express" and "The Lion Hunt," which have already had their mention in this column, and "Monsters of the Deep," a fish picture.

This last is an interesting number though it never becomes as exciting as the accompanying lecturing voice keeps you expecting it will be. The big punch is a wrastle with a devil fish, which is moderately thrilling to see and was, probably, far more dangerous than it looks.

This feature furnishes much information about tuna fish and whales and the methods by which they are landed. And, by way of variety, you are taken to an old sunken boat about which swim huge eels. These the natives believe to be the souls of those who went down with the boat, lingering about to protect the vessel on which they had made their last voyage.

See you soon.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

HollyWood, Cal., June 23.—[Special.]—They'd been chewing their fingernails and reading manuscripts until they were orrie eyed at the Pathé studio, trying to pick an emotional and dramatic vehicle that would suit both Pola Negri and her employers for her talkie comeback.

The pile of rejected screen stories had just grown big enough to reach when laid end to end from the Pathe incinerator clear to Pola's Ambassador hotel bungalow and half way to the county psychopathic ward, when one Fraulein Thilde Foerster appeared on the scene.

Thilde is a 27 year old German girl, dark of hair, red of lips, keen of eye, and an air of brain power about her. She'd arrived in Hollywood only four weeks ago, was vacationing, she told the Pathé studio superiors when she casually dropped in, and she heard that Pola Negri needed a screen vehicle. She would be much indebted if they would look over a story she happened to have written.

They looked it over and today announced they had bought it. It's a Balkan story entitled "A Woman Commands."

Masked behind the name of Gladys Gale, actress who plodded along here in minor parts in the stage version of "Once in a Lifetime," and on the screen in "Nancy's Private Affair," today was revealed the identity of Mrs. Park Benjamin, wife of the actor and sister-in-law of the late Caruso.

"Gladys Gale is my maiden name," she explained. "I have too many friends in Hollywood who would have tried to advance me, to attempt to make my way under the name of Park Benjamin."

She plays the part of Mrs. Preston, husband hunting mamma, in "Nancy's Private Affair," in a cast which includes Mary Astor, Robert Ames, Eddie Horton, John Halliday, and Noel Francis.

In the meantime, other operation victims, Marilyn Miller and Jocelyn Lee, of the appendicitis brigade, and Constance Bennett under the knife for adhesions are all pronounced safely recovering. Reassuring word about Evalyn Knapp also came from Hollywood hospital where she is under care after falling off a cliff last Sunday.

Lionel Barrymore wears no makeup at all in his acting role in "Guilty Hands," at M. G. M.

Hays Group Expects French Removal of Restriction of Films

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, June 23.—The French government practically has decided to remove all further import restrictions upon American films. The decision will very likely have to be made known through the medium of the French film control commission which is expected to meet within the next forty-eight hours. The rate now is one film from France to every seven from America.

The ruling is scheduled to apply for one year beginning July 10. If authoritative indications prove correct American film companies will be permitted to bring into this country as many releases as they wish. The films naturally will continue to be subject to the usual internal censorship rules, but those never have proved burdensome for American concerns.

In matters of admitting foreign films, France has been accepted as the continental leader.

In negotiations during the last three months both Will Hays' organization and the United States government officials have coöperated closely. The spokesmen years before had protested against the principle of film quotas.

Great Britain has a ten year quota law affecting American films, Germany a year to year quota law, and Austria, Hungary and Italy similarly restrictive measures.

Free Ice Fund Starts Work to Help Poor

Offers Chance to Lessen Summer Misery.

Summer is no gracious lady in those neighborhoods of Chicago where hosts of families anticipate her approach with something akin to terror. But the rigors of the torrid season won't loom quite so alarmingly from now on, for yesterday THE TRIBUNE'S fleet of free ice trucks started on their regular summer rounds.

Never has that first trip meant quite so much in the way of relief in the days when the sun blazes down relentlessly, when streets sizzle with heat. More than five times as many calls for the free ice have been received this year, indicating how grateful is its rôle in the lives of those who receive it. And how much more money is going to be needed this year if it extends the relief requested.

Twenty-seven centers of distribution for the free ice tickets have been assigned this summer by Miss Edna Mae Wray of the United Charities, through which the fund is administered. These comprise the sixteen district offices of the United Charities; the Central Charity bureau; the Children's Memorial hospital; the Jewish Social Service bureau; the Juvenile court; Madonna center; Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium; St. Rose's day nursery; De Paul Settlement and day nursery; St. Elizabeth's day nursery; the Aiken Institute, and the Infant Welfare society.

Donations to this fund, which mothers of the tenement districts value so highly because it means that a baby's milk will be kept sweet and fresh and the slender store of other victuals for the entire family will be more wholesome, will be gladly received if mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE at Tribune Tower.

Contributions yesterday were:

FREE ICE FUND.

Rutherford Trust fund	$ 28.50
Edna R. Raphael	5.00
Total	$ 33.50
Previously acknowledged	16.80
Grand total	$ 50.30

CAMP ALGONQUIN FUND.

Rutherford Trust fund	$ 28.50
Delta Phi club	10.00
Total	$ 38.50
Previously acknowledged	1,440.86
Grand total	$1,479.86

As much or as little as one can afford to send in will help out the two funds, one of which assists the poor families who cannot leave their uncomfortable, stuffy homes during even the hottest days. The other sends mothers and babies out into the clean, cool air and healthful life of Camp Algonquin, fifty miles away from Chicago, on the Fox river.

PRINCE OF WALES ON 37TH BIRTHDAY AIDS FEUDAL RITUAL

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—The prince of Wales, England's royal bachelor, awoke today with the realization that he was 37 years old and that the world had beaten a pathway of congratulations to his door. Among the first personal greetings he received were from King George and Queen Mary and other members of his immediate family.

After dealing with a mass of correspondence he motored to Buckingham palace. There he assisted the king at the investiture of members of the order of St. John of Jerusalem, of which he is prior. King George wore a flowing black mantle of the order over his scarlet uniform of field marshal. The robe was enblazoned with the eight point white maltese cross, badge of the order of St. John. The prince wore the uniform of colonel in chief of the Welsh guards and stood next to the king. Then came the duke of Connaught, the duke of York, Prince George, the earl of Athlone, and the earl of Harewood.

The Daily Express in wishing the prince many happy returns of his birthday said: "Perhaps before he is 38 he may give us a chance of toasting both the prince and the princess of Wales. Meanwhile, hats off to the premier bachelor of the kingdom."

One birthday present which the prince highly appreciated was from some of London's hardest workers—the members of the Whitechapel Costermongers' union. It consisted of a basket of South African oranges and Tasmanian apples.

Tomorrow Is Limit for Party Letters to Reach Sally Brown

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

This is the last call for letters, boys and girls, if you want to be a guest at my party at White City Amusement park, a week from tomorrow! Have you written yours? If not, you'll find it an extremely simple thing to do. What I am most interested in knowing is just this: out of all the boys and girls in and around Chicago, what hundred of you would enjoy such an outing most? It's your job, then, to impress me with the fact that you belong with this group.

The names of the hundred winners will appear in next Sunday's TRIBUNE that's why I want all of you to have your letters reach me no later than tomorrow morning. Every boy and girl who knows how to write is an eligible guest to this delightful party. The rules are simple and easy to follow but most important. Here they are: Each applicant must write his or her own letter—do not ask for an invitation for your brother or sister or chum, have them do their own writing; tell me your name, address and age.

Children Join in Bogan Test of New School

Volunteer for Special Summer Season.

Some 200 children now going to school because they must will finish one term this week and start in again on July 1 because they want to go. They will constitute the group to be assigned to the Lewis - Champlin elementary school at 320 Englewood avenue, where an experiment in education is to be carried on by public school teachers for eight weeks this summer.

At the suggestion of Superintendent of School William J. Bogan, made before 1,200 educators attending the White House conference in Washington, this summer experimental school will be held to determine values in free or self-expressive programs which may be applied to the city system of education. There will be no set curriculum. The pupils will indicate their own interests and the instructors will cultivate and promote that interest.

"We do not expect," Mr. Bogan said recently, "to make any one particular discovery in educational methods to announce to a waiting world. There will be no pattern to follow.

"Nature study will be taught as one approach to science; stories will provide one method of getting at literature; there will be trips to woods, shore, museum, and places of interest as part of the study of history; group organization in the preparation, the serving, and eating of the noon day meal; the printing room, the manual training room, the library, and the playground will be utilized.

"There will be a nurse at the school, at least part time; a consulting physician, and a guidance expert. One worker, especially trained, will relate the school to the home and the community; will help parents to understand problems of child development and especially the health considerations in a home."

The progress of the experimental school will be watched with interest by educators throughout the country, as well as by leaders in health, recreation, guidance and other aspects of child development.

Nine teachers will be employed for the 180 to 200 children, who will be separated into six groups taken from the age range of first to sixth grades.

Mrs. Edna Myers, now principal of the West Pullman school, will direct the experimental school.

Greenville, Ill., June 23.—(AP)—After defeating a resolution to permit the use of instrumental music in church worship by a vote of 93 to 44, the general conference of the Free Methodist Church of North America today renewed debate on the proposed merger of two young people's societies of the church.

MELLON AND SON GET BRITISH DEGREES; ELDER APPLAUDED

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

CAMBRIDGE, June 23.—Cambridge university today conferred an honorary degree of doctor of laws on Andrew W. Mellon, United States secretary of the treasury. He later saw his son, Paul, take his B. A. degree in company with other honor men from Clare college.

Mr. Mellon had been spending several days here with his son, who had just passed the first part of the examinations for honor degrees.

Fifteen minutes before the picturesque ceremony began Mr. Mellon, wearing a scarlet robe and round black velvet doctor's bonnet, arrived with his son, who had on a black gown trimmed with white fur. The two sat together on a bench near the dais.

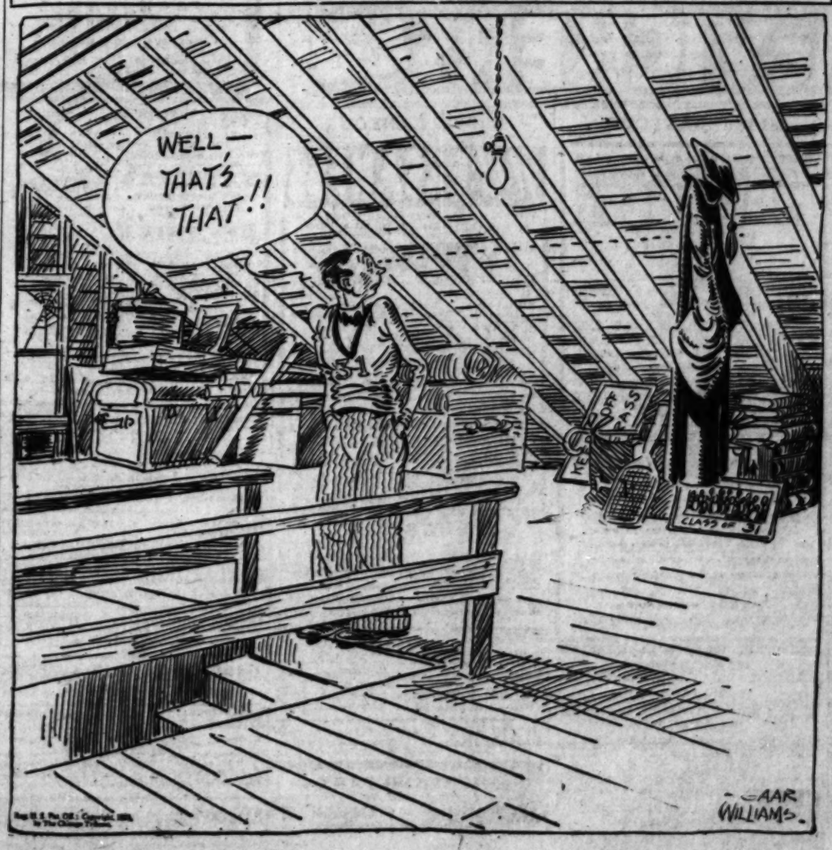
Preceded by the dignitaries of the university bearing silver maces, Vice Chancellor A. R. Ramsey, master of Magdalene college, took his seat. Mr. Mellon then walked forward and stood before the vice chancellor for the only honorary degree conferred today.

Deputy Public Orator B. L. Hallward of Peterhouse college presented the scroll to Mr. Mellon, delivering an oration in Latin, wherein he observed that the circumstance of father and son taking their degrees the same day was a piece of filial piety of which the Romans would have approved.

"Mr. Mellon has been secretary of the treasury of the United States for more than ten years," Mr. Hallward said, "a record which no other man has achieved in a period of great difficulty and financial collapse. Now his visit to England coincides with a better and brighter outlook in international relations."

The orator was interrupted several times by spontaneous bursts of applause from the spectators. The demonstration was prolonged when the vice chancellor grasped Mr. Mellon's hand in the conferment ceremony. The secretary was then shown to a seat at the rear of the dais. He watched the students, including his son, receive their degrees.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!



French Surplus Royalty Has Belgian Homes

Bourbon and Napoleon Live in Brussels.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, June 23.—I sometimes wonder what would happen if the two French throne pretenders who live in Brussels would meet. A fist fight? A handshake? Maybe they'd simply stare into the air and ignore each other.

Duke Jean de Guise dreams of turning France into a kingdom and rule as grandly as his ancestor, Louis XIV. But young Prince Louis Napoleon still believes there is a chance of France becoming an empire, with him, descendant of the great Bonaparte, as emperor. Hope springs eternal, etc.

Each of the two leads a retired life, has few friends, goes out rarely, and strenuously keeps up appearances. Duke de Guise owns a fairly big estate just outside Brussels. His chateau is a horribly old fashioned affair, without radiators, hot and cold running water—in fact, minus all modern comfort. Until very recently the Guises were poor. But luck and money has come to them of late.

The Duke de Guise really didn't wish the French throne pretendership on himself. It dropped on him. A cousin of his, Philip of Orleans, died early. The duke became head of the Orleans' family, which is surnamed "Maison de France," house of France, in the Gothas. Duke de Guise, who had been quite happy on a country estate near Paris, had to leave France. For every French throne pretender is an exile, by law.

In Spanish Morocco Duke de Guise has a colonial estate where he loves to play the rough settler. He comes to Brussels during the months when Morocco is too warm.

Then he haunts the Brussels Royal library. That's where I saw him: a silent, tall man, stooped over works on military questions and history. His hobby is studying the history of certain French regiments. It is rather curious to see the bearded, sunburned man bend over old books. He looks more fit for the outdoors than a stuffy library.

Duchess de Guise, his wife, is allowed to stay in France. Once in a while she goes to Paris and holds receptions for royalists. All callers are freely admitted and the duchess graciously holds her hand out for a kiss to counts as well as to butcher boys. She is a woman of much dignity and knows how to receive well, even if she can't spend much on her entertainments.

In the vast park around "Manoir d'Anjou," the Guise estate near Brussels, garden parties are held once in a while. The De Guises are on a friendly, if unofficial, footing with the Belgian royal family, Princess Astrid of Sweden, who now is the wife of Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium, met her husband for the first time at one such garden party at the "Manoir." Duchess de Guise is a matchmaker of great skill.

Two marriages have brought money a-plenty into the one time so precarious finances of the Duke and Duchess de Guise. A daughter, Françoise, became the bride of Prince Christopher of Greece, a millionaire widower since the death of his first wife, Mrs. Leeds, who brought him the Leeds fortune.

Henri, Count de Paris, the only son of Duke and Duchess de Guise, and future pretender to the throne of France, recently married his cousin, Isabel of Orleans-Braganza, who brought him a fortune gathered in Brazil by her ancestors, "emperors of Brazil."

Louis Napoleon, a mere youngster of a throne pretender, is very much less well off than his rival, the Duke de Guise. His father had hardly any property beyond a nice two story house on a fashionable Brussels boulevard. His mother, Princess Clementine, a daughter of old King Leopold II. of Belgium, inherited 15 million francs from her father and still has a good bit left of that fortune, but part of it dwindled during the Belgian currency inflation.

It costs a lot to keep up a town house like the Napoleons have, and a big country estate in the Belgian Ardennes hills besides. Though Prince Napoleon has enough servants, two cars, excellent tutors, and enjoys the life of a sport loving aristocratic adolescent, his mother is known to be very economical. I often see her walking about in Brussels, dressed in the simplest sort of raincoat and her only daughter equally simply clothed at her side.

Antoinette Tells the 'Porch Golfers' to Try Some Active Sports

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

"Porch golfers" is what they call the women who go to their country clubs, but are content to remain at the bridge tables and only occasionally rise to observe the goings-on of the links.

In one socially accredited eastern club, so the gossip goes, it has become a pastime for those on the porch to observe the number of feminine players who run for the clubhouse at the first sign of rain. After some consultation over the matter, it was decided that the women who made for shelter quickly were afraid the dye would run out of their hair if the rain struck it. Which sounds like the chatter of the rocking chair brigade, and only serves as a peg to remind women they they won't get much exercise holding down a bridge chair.

Now, here we have a grand summer laid out before us, and you women have heard enough about the value of the sun's rays as rejuvenators, as energy suppliers, as doing a lot of good in developing and helping you retain your youthful charms. So, why take to the shaded reception room in a clubhouse during the next few months and let all this good sun medicine go to waist?

O, of course, you won't want to be out broiling all day, nor do we want you to be. But the bridge maniacs are sun dodgers to a woman, almost. It isn't because no one wants to play bridge with me—a second time—that I'm attacking the indoor occupation. It's just that there's a time for everything, and the long winter season has ever so many hours for the no trump bids.

Play bridge in the evening. Play it late in the afternoon—but for this summer, anyway, try giving a nice healthy part of the day to getting something else in the system beside a grouve at the partner who failed you. I mean just get out and use a leg! Walk on it! Run on it! Swim with it! Just do something different for a change.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This smart model was designed especially to give slenderizing lines. The deep V front, reaching to the waistline, the deep pointed hip yoke, and the softly falling jabot revers that detract so beautifully from breadth, are all good points. The circular skirt has a low placed fullness and is graceful and becoming to all figures. Printed silk crêpe in brown and white with white is smart, as is also black with white. Shantung, linen, printed and plain silk crêpe make up attractively.

The pattern, No. 2859, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

If Child Fears Bath, Find Out the Cause; Cure Will Follow

If you want to enjoy nature with your children write to Mrs. Bevans for a List of Books on the Outdoor World, which will be sent on receipt of stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Two letters apropos a child's fear of the bath contain suggestions worth the young mother's attention.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I read your article about a child suddenly becoming afraid of his bath. I had that experience with my 10 months old son. He always played in his bath and liked it and then suddenly he seemed to be afraid. He'd cry and want to get out. I couldn't imagine what had happened to change him. I put toys in the water and I thought maybe the bath spray frightened him, so I stopped using that.

"After a week I found that I put too much water in the tub, which unbalanced him. I let some of it out and that same night he started creeping in the tub and he hasn't cried since then."

This experience coincides perfectly with the theory that one of the only two things which terrify babies is the fear of loss of support.

The second is: "I was much interested in your two articles on a child's fear of the bath. Our little girl had been told by a nurse that if the plug were pulled out, she would go down the drain with the water, and it took months to eradicate that fear."

Both these letters show how important it is to discover the nature of the fear which makes a child dread his bath.

Other fears are those experienced by the rushing noise caused by the high pressure from the faucet, strange noises from incoming and outgoing water, too hot water, too cold water, the size of the tub, or if visiting, the strangeness of the tub and bathroom in general, use of the bath as punishment, etc.

Practical Ensemble Made of Light Wool

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Just about this time every year the burning question (apart from sunburn) is the right vacation ensemble.

The most practical all round ensembles for sports and daytime are the hand knit or crocheted ones all Paris creators are going in for in a big way, this year, because they don't crush, they're easy to clean and comfortable to wear, besides which they're extremely smart, and that helps a lot, even in lazy vacation time.

These ensembles may be made of wool, of silk, of string, cotton, or flax. The main thing is they must be done by hand.

The vacation ensemble sketched here is from Hermes. It has a gored skirt knit of bright navy blue wool made in gore that flares it just enough for freedom.

The sleeveless waist length sweater is horizontally striped in red, white, and blue—and you know the patriotic tricolor combination is being worn by the smartest women in Biarritz. The little sleeveless bolero is also waist-length. It's knitted in navy blue trimmed with red, white, and blue stripes that run round the bottom and up the back (as you see on the small figure); while the tricolor stripes form a little yoke effect in front. This bolero is finished in crocheted edges of the blue wool, as are the neck and armholes of the sweater.

The red, white, and blue knitted cap with plain blue crown is a cross between a gob's hat and an overseas cap and is worn cocked down over the right eyebrow.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Books Offered.

"I have a basket full of books which I shall be glad to give you. Some are fiction and a large number are school books.—E. G."

It really isn't too early to begin thinking about your text books for next fall when the schools re-open. Perhaps there will be some in this group which you can use. Then, there's a quantity of reading matter to choose from, too. Write and tell me which of these you will need or want.

Doris Advises Girl with Writing Aims Not to Be Recluse

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Eighteen—and can't find enough interest in young men to associate with them! She has the chances—but there is her art she is interested in. Also, she is writing a story and she doesn't want to get her mind off it. But wise folk tell her that her youth soon will be slipping away from her and life is short and she'd better be making the most of her best years.

Who can say just what the best years are? Who can say that, as far as matrimonial advantages are concerned, the best years for looking the opposite sex over are the 'teens? True it is that the normal thing for a girl is to be having a good time in those early years. Yet, if she has the inclination toward study and serious pursuit, that may be where her greater happiness lies.

It's a deprivation, however, that may be felt throughout a whole life not to pursue the lighter things as well as the serious. And I should say that a young woman who wants to write, above all things, must court contacts. She must know people. She must know boys if she expects to put any love element into her books. In fact, I should recommend association with boys as an excellent training course for any vocation.

The thing to do is to try to strike a little balance. Don't become a recluse at 18, with all thought spent on the desired vocation. But don't expect to find boys interesting unless you are willing to be interesting, too. In order to be entertaining, don't lean too heavily conversationally on your ambition to be an artist and writer. Let the boys talk about what they are going to be. Indeed, you might get some excellent story material from just such discussion.

The more you round your life out the better writer and artist you will be. And it's true, as the older folk tell you, that those years of youth shouldn't be permitted to slip by without tasting the experience of young romance.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

THE ADMIRABLE TOAD.

"Worth its weight in gold" is the compliment paid to the warty toad by many gardeners who desire their gardens with those creatures in order to curtail destruction by crawling, creeping, flying and hopping insects. One of the most forceful admirers of the toad is Leonard Haseman, chairman of the department of entomology at the Missouri college of agriculture.

"No insect pest is too small or too large for the toad to handle, and reports are that small mice have been stalked and preyed upon by the lowly toad," says Mr. Haseman. "To those who are so ready to kill the toad, or who incorrectly link upon it as the producer of warts, one knows how many harmful insects they destroy each summer, protection would be stimulated for his highly esteemed bug trap."

Even cats after mice are said to take a back seat when it comes to a toad out after a meal of insects. The hunter suddenly freezes when about two inches away from an insect. Then the toad's moist and sticky tongue, loose on the back end, is thrown forward, striking its prey, and then as suddenly withdrawn into the toad's mouth, much as a rubber band snaps back.

Favorable treatment is appreciated by a toad, which will keep on traveling to more secluded gardens if its hunting is too much disturbed, purposely or inadvertently. Snakes are a natural enemy of the toad, but few city and suburban gardens are bothered with them.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Disregard His Objection.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love objects to my going out with other fellows. I'm still young and care to enjoy life. Please advise.

"ANXIOUS."

I'd keep my other friends even though it meant a loss of this boy's attentions. Anxious.

By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

Marcel, three year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. Iris has been separated for years from her dissolute husband, Marcel. They are cousins and proteges of their tyrannical aunt, the Comtesse de Castelmauron. Marcel is seen in Paris with Suzanne Marly, an actress. Iris planned to divorce her husband and married Alan Charnwood. Charnwood and his friend, Tommy Rostetter, conduct a search for Clare.

Iris writes to her aunt's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. She and Clare have returned.

A ransom note is sent to Iris stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers to pay it, but is asked if Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled.

Iris tells Marcel and recalls having seen him at Le Touquet, bedraggled with a woman of the demimondaine. Marcel calls on Alan in his hotel room. That night an attempt is made to kidnap Alan. He moves to Tommy's apartment.

Marcel and Alan suspect that Marcel, who is known to be heavily in debt, is the instigator of the kidnaping, with the couple, known as Yetta and Pietro, his partners in the crime, being the ransom. Alan learns that the couple have a half-witted son.

Tommy is sent to Marcel leaving Suzanne Marly's home at the hour scheduled for him to pay the ransom. Alan calls on Iris. Marcel arrives shortly after, badly beaten up, and tells that he was robbed by the kidnapers, who have not returned Clare. Tommy has told the story to the police. They return with the police inspector to question Marcel, but he has vanished. They leave to search for Yetta and Pietro in the underworld haunts of Paris, where they are supposed to dwell, each taking separate routes. Finds the dilapidated dwelling they used as their hideout. It is deserted. Suddenly voices and Alan hides in the scullery of the kitchen. Marcel arrives, and, seeing he has the ransom in Suzanne's flat, and that she found it and won't give it back, tells him Rostetter that Clare is dead.

INSTALLMENT LVII.

TRAPPED WITH AN ADVERSARY.

For several seconds no sound was heard save the rush of flames in the chimney and the scurry of a rat in the empty rooms above. At last, as if from a heaven void, de Bertincourt's abysmal despair found utterance.

"Dead!" he repeated with the terrible bitterness of a cheated man. "Dead! Dead! Dead! Two weeks of hell—for this!"

No words could have revealed more fully the consummate selfishness of the man. Untouched by grief or remorse for the suffering his act had caused, he was absorbed simply and solely by a sense of personal injury. His intense disappointment of the bad loser. Almost one felt his resentment against the poor victim now beyond his reach.

The suddenly renewed fear jarred him out of his tranced state. He bent eagerly forward, whispering in a frightened tone, "But the body! What did you do with it?"

"That's all right," Yetta assured him brusquely. "Only a few bits of bone that wouldn't burn, and those are scattered over ten miles of forest. There's nothing to bother about. No one saw her on the way here, and if they had they'd have taken her for that boy of Pietro's." She eyed him suspiciously, evidently anxious to be gone. "Well, anything more? Here, take a hand over that bottle. We can't have the fool collapsing on our hands."

He drank half its contents, muttering to himself, "O, God! O, God! What am I going to say?"

"Say nothing," she retorted. "Go home and pretend you don't know what's happened. Why should you know if you're innocent? Tell them you've been trying to track the car that overtook you last night. That's a story they'll believe."

He took over the lamp, pursing her lips to blow. As she did so she shuddered, trembled, and for the first time Charnwood saw terror come into her eyes. The next instant there was a loud banging on the door.

De Bertincourt sprang away, shuddering from head to foot.

The knocking continued. From the garden a man's voice drawled in a familiar accent, "M. Lepin! Are you there? It's me, Grandez—I've something to tell you."

Yetta hastened, but watchful and controlled, Yetta caught de Bertincourt

"Stay then! But I'm taking the car and money."

by the arm and pushed him towards the scullery. Like a hunted rabbit he darted into Charnwood's retreat. The door closed, there was the crash of bolts, then silence. Charnwood's skin prickled as he realized that he was left to swim him in the pitchy darkness, was the man who twice had tried to slay him.

For a wild moment did Charnwood imagine his presence could be unsuspected, and with discovery imminent the question of how to meet it. Obviously the initial attack must come from him, before De Bertincourt had a chance to collect his wits—also while the stranger, whoever he was, lingered on the scene. The latter might prove an ally. In any case he would be the lesser. Once he was gone there was no avoiding the fact that he had to face three enemies to face, all armed and desperate.

Controlling his breathing, every muscle held taut, he planned carefully. Extinguish first, then a violent sortie, taking the others by surprise and bowling them over with a bottle in each hand. Speed was his one hope—a slim chance, he thought of the heavy six shooter Lepin had in his pocket.

Time he waited, momentarily expecting his companion to give some warning cry, but, wonder of wonders, none came. How was it possibly that Yetta had away from him the man should fail to guess he was not alone? The very odor of his perspiring skin mingled with the aroma of hair oil stole out. Then a wave of animal heat pulsed from his body. Charnwood caught the faint whistle of his breath, the faint but clear tick of a watch, but although there must have been an equal number of sensory clews emanating from his own person, they appeared to pass unobserved.

Slowly the truth dawned on him. His adversary, totally unsuspecting, had his whole attention focused on the rumble of voices penetrating through the closed door. Every faculty he possessed was strained to catch what was going on, for fear it meant mischief to himself. How long this would continue Charnwood had no idea, but before he realized it he, too, was listening. Even his own curiosity blunted his desire for punishment, and although his body remained rigidly curved in readiness to close around De Bertincourt's neck he found himself puzzling as to who this Grandez could be.

They could make out only a word here and there. Murmurs proceeded from Yetta in a tone of mild concern. The visitor's speech was not easy to follow, especially the twice repeated statement, "C'est dangereuse, vous savez," suggested by the now "carrière," revealed to Charnwood the nature of Lepin's occupation. His thoughts flew back to the boy wandering in the fields. This man, too, like himself, sighted the half witted Jacquot, and was come to be the father of his son's peril.

Another conclusion leaped to his mind. The couple must have been searching already for the lost boy, Lepin's wet clothing constituting evidence that he had even dragged the neighboring pond on the chance that it might contain a drowned body. In their anxiety to get off they had given up trying to listen. . . . All at once the voices sounded louder.

"You are certain it was not some other boy?" asked Yetta urgently.

"Certain, you say? Ah, the worry we've had, hunting all about!"

"It was Jacquot and no mistake—his limp gave him away, although I hadn't got near enough to catch him."

"Then, thank you, thank you!" said Yetta. "We'll go at once and fetch him. Pray God he's come to no hurt! Good night, good night!"

The door shut again, putting an abrupt finish to the conversation. Clumsy footsteps moved down the path.

Then came the woman's sibilant whisper was heard, followed by a shrill, excited protest.

"Be still, you, Yetta; it's too late! I won't risk it, I tell you! Do you want to have all the police nab us? Let's get out of this while we have the—"

"Curse you, devil!" he ended in sudden physical anguish. "Keep your claws off me!"

The scullery door burst open and De Bertincourt stumbled into the room.

"What's this about your boy?" he stammered. "You told me—I

The two broke off their wrangling to stare at him in utter silence. He looked from one to the other, then laid hold of the woman's arm.

"What are you keeping from me?" he cried hysterically. "I've got to know, at once!"

She made no reply. Charnwood, his eyes dazzled by the rush of light, saw her bosom rise and fall, her fingers beat a tattoo on the table as though she were making up her mind what to do. She turned her eyes upon him with speculative detachment on the stove, then, drawing a deep breath, came to a decision.

"We must chance it," she muttered. "Quick, too—not a minute to lose." Turning, she waddled to the dresser, flung open a drawer, and caught up something which she thrust inside her coat. Lepin snatched at her.

"Are you mad, Yetta? It's too late! The fat's in the fire now. If he is to blame . . . this business is his affair, isn't it? I'm all for "Imbecile! It's got to be done to clear ourselves. Are you coming with me or dash I go alone?"

"No—no! I daren't!"

With a violent blow she hurled him from her. Doubled over like a jackknife, the stumbling form collapsed against the wall where he leant, panting, his new weakly dropped.

"Then! But I'm taking the car and the money," she tapped her coat with satisfaction, "and whatever happens, I shan't come back."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Of the Show for Them.

I was working as an usher in one of the outlying theaters when I experienced my most embarrassing moment. My father's uniform came with a rather bothersome hat which just perched on the side of my head.

A number of patrons were approaching me when I felt that I was going to sneeze. I did, and in doing so tilted my head forward. Off flew my hat and rolled to the feet of the incoming people.

Imagine my embarrassment when I had to stoop down, pick it up, and then escort the smiling patrons to their seats. E. H.

MASSENET'S "MANON" STARS CHAMLEE AND LUCREZIA BORI TOO

BY EDWARD MOORE.

An unusually bright and mannerly performance of "Manon," with the cast headed by two great artists, Lucrezia Bori and Mario Chamlee, made the evening pleasant for those who went to Ravinia last night. This was the "Manon" of the Massenet version. Puccini's setting of the same story is to come later in the week, and Miss Bori will have the name rôle in that one too.

But the French setting is enough to fill the memory just at present. There are only a few operas whose music takes on the character of the book as successfully as Massenet made it do here. That pretty, chattery music that seldom permits itself to grow serious is a perfect mirror of the book, and it is just the phase upon which Miss Bori builds her characterization. This is the last piece in the world to moralize over.

You can only be charmed by it, just as you can only be charmed by Miss Bori, her voice, her demeanor, her good looks. And also there is not the least trouble over being charmed by Mr. Chamlee, who has about as good a voice of its type as you will find anywhere today. He sings and comports himself with great distinction, and in the rôle given him is young enough to be ardent and old enough to have outgrown immaturity.

It is getting to be an old story that Ravinia mounts its operas with high excellence, but it is none the less true. There was Leon Rothier, basso of enormous dignity in his too brief part of the elder Des Grieux. There was Desire Defrere as the noisy, quarrelsome Lescaut, one of the best performances he does.

There was a first class trio of girls in the persons of Margery Maxwell, Philine Falco, and Ada Paggi. There was George Cehanovsky, one of the few able to make the part of Britigny believable. And there was Louis Hasselmans, taking his place on the conductor's stand for the first time this season and directing the music as only an artist could.

These were a few of the merits of the performance.

Food Talk.

"I would like to ask you about 'spinning a thread,' writes Mrs. C. "When is the proper state reached? Is it when the drop first begins to spin a thread? Does one, if using a candy thermometer, call 238 degrees F. the time to act or does one continue cooking throughout the period when the thermometer still registers 238 degrees F.?"

A sugar and water sirup begins to spin a small thread at around 215 degrees F., and it continues to spin a thread until it caramelizes—past the 300 mark. The time to remove from the flame depends upon what the sirup is to be used for and the qualities in the end product that are being sought. In cooking fondant, a temperature of 238 degrees F. has been found to produce the best results. Just as soon as the thermometer reaches the 238 mark the sirup should be removed.

Those who have done careful laboratory work on sugar cookery have found that at any definite temperature there exists a definite relation between the number of sugar molecules and water molecules in the cooking sirup. The ratio of the water and sugar molecules seems to be right for a creamy fondant when the temperature has just reached 238 degrees F. We must remember that a thermometer that is calibrated to register degrees only in whole numbers is not so accurate after all.

As the sugar cooks through that period at which the thermometer still registers 238 the sirup is losing water and the temperature is climbing all the while to 238½, 238¾, 238⅞, etc., rising all the time although the rise in the mercury is not perceptible until it jumps to the 239 mark.

So one must first know what the sirup is to be used for. In the making of a white mountain cream which is a cake icing made of egg whites and a sugar sirup that spins a thread I prefer to let the sirup boil to around 245 degrees F. if the icing is being used on a damp day and the atmosphere is quite humid. If the day is dry and hot a better icing can be made if the sirup is boiled only to 242 or 243 degrees. By varying the temperature to suit the atmospheric conditions one can obtain an icing that spreads nicely no matter what the weather is.

One needs to consider the qualities that are desired and the conditions that will affect those qualities and judge accordingly. Gradually we are coming to be more specific about cooking temperatures. And, as we find more time to do thorough experimental work, we will be just that much more competent to be truly helpful to the housewife. When a good recipe suggests a definite temperature my advice is to remove the material from the heat at the instant that the mercury has mounted to that particular point.

CHERRY ROLL.

2 cups pastry flour.
3 teaspoons baking powder.
¾ teaspoon salt.
4 tablespoons fat.
2-3 cup milk.
3 cups pitted cherries.
1 cup sugar.
2 cups cherries.
2-3 cup sugar.

Sift the flour before measuring. Resift with baking powder and salt. Cut the fat into flour or rub it in with fingers until appearance is like coarse corn meal. Add the milk and stir until well blended. Knead slightly. Roll out to ¼ inch thickness. Strew with the three cups of sugared fruit. Roll up or fold over to make only three thicknesses of dough. This makes a flat roll or fold. Bake in a hot oven [450 degrees F.] until the crust is a rich brown and cherries are done, or about 25 minutes. Serve warm with a sauce made of 2 cups fresh cooked cherries and 2-3 cup sugar.

Yield: Six servings.

LAND BONANZA PROMOTER GIVEN TERM IN PRISON

Chicagoans Are Snared in "Romola, Inc."

Los Angeles, Cal., June 23.—[Special.]—Alexander Hursh, former millionaire, who went broke in the $11,000,000 collapse of Romola, Inc., today was found guilty of defrauding through the mails. Fourteen executives of the company, several of them from Chicago, also were convicted by the jury in Federal Judge George Kills' court.

Hursh was convicted on 21 of 23 counts. He was sentenced to twelve years in the Federal prison at McNeil's island. He also was fined $4,200.

The company had sold California land to Chicago and midwest buyers alleging that fig, orange and peach trees would grow as a green hay tree on the land. The promises fell far short of fulfillment and civil judgments of $2,000,000 have been obtained by the persons defrauded.

"Guilty to the Limit."

"Hursh has been guilty of fraud to the limit," said Judge Killit in sentencing him, "much of the recent depression was due to just this sort of swindling."

Among the Chicagoans who were convicted were E. S. Phillips, lecturer in the Chicago land selling office, guilty on four counts, and W. L. Jourdan, who once was manager of the Chicago office, and who was fined $200. Joseph J. Murphy, former broker in Chicago, was among the five defendants acquitted.

Three Others Convicted.

Another man convicted was Freeman H. Bloodgood, former deputy state real estate commissioner; as were Lucille M. Head, former secretary of the corporation, and H. B. Watkins, former secretary of the Phoenix, Ariz., Chamber of Commerce.

The judge denounced the last named for "making his chamber of commerce a mere advertising adjunct to this land swindle." He gave him a two year suspended sentence.

Police Search for Robber of Woman Is Fruitless

Police yesterday conducted an unsuccessful search for the burglar who entered the bedroom of Mrs. Ida Pendexter at 399 Fullerton parkway Monday night, threatened her with death and escaped with two diamond rings valued at $2,000, while Mrs. Pendexter's husband, Frank, and her son, John, were asleep in adjoining rooms.

OFFICIALS WAR ON INSTALLMENT TAX PAYMENTS

Seek to Get Governor to Veto Bill.

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—County officials of Illinois are laying plans to wage a fight before Gov. Emmerson against the bill by Senator Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington, providing for semi-annual payment of taxes. It is probable that a hearing will be asked early next week.

J. Ward Smith, treasurer of La Salle county, has sent a letter to County Treasurer Charles L. Koehn, Springfield, containing plans to carry opposition to the governor to the bill, and urging that it be vetoed. Officials of all counties of the state are requested to join in the movement.

In addition to extra expenditure for clerk hire, it is contended that the bill could deprive counties, municipalities, and schools of sufficient funds for paying interest on anticipation warrants, and in many cases, officials declare, political subdivisions would be unable to borrow, with taxes delayed for at least six months.

Most bond coupons and principal are due in June, July, and August. A delay in payment of taxes would create difficulties in meeting the bond obligations, it is said.

CHARGES HUBBY WITH USING AX ON FURNITURE

A husband was ordered yesterday to appear before Judge Rudolph F. Desort in the Superior court to face a charge of contempt of court.

Mrs. Ruth Wendt, 301 Starr street, obtained an order on March 31 in connection with her divorce suit, directing Ralph A. Wendt to turn over to her the furniture in their former home at 740 West 105th place. Attorney Harry X. Cole complained to the judge yesterday that Wendt, instead of complying took an ax recently and smashed up all the furniture.

Judge Desort issued a summons and postponed the hearing until Wendt can be served. In her bill for divorce Mrs. Wendt charged that between June 30, 1923, when they were married, and Aug. 3, 1930, when they separated, her husband became intoxicated 860 times and treated her cruelly on a number of occasions.

Hearing Set for Woman on Dope Smuggling Charge

Mrs. Bonnie Daniels, 848 Montrose avenue, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on a charge of violating the anti-narcotic act and was held under $1,000 bond for a hearing on June 30.

LOCATE SITE OF FORT ONCE USED BY MARQUETTE

Find Refuge of Explorers at Starved Rock.

La Salle, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Old Fort St. Louis, where Father Marquette, French missionary, preached many masses, and where early French explorers lived twenty years before hostile Indians forced abandonment of the refuge, has been located.

The fort site is at the extreme southern end of French cañon, Starved Rock park, and covers an acre. Here Robert de la Salle, Henri de Tonti, and Robert la Mote, centered their explorations and operations and dealt with the Indians from 1673 until late 80s of that year.

John Newell Sr. and his son John of Utica, who long have sought the site of the historic fort, discovered unmistakable evidences of the fortification as a result of three weeks work on the location. Many small flint arrowheads, two French flintlock rifles, lead rifle balls, beads, steel and stone knives, and other items were uncovered. Some beads, octagonal in shape, believed part of Catholic rosaries, also were found. Many strips of copper and brass believed to be portions of cooking utensils were unearthed. Pieces of various ores, believed to have been collected by the explorers and taken to the fort for examination, were found in more than dozen firepits.

The fort site covers a triangular area offering a clear view on all sides. It overlooks two deep ravines. Remains of breastworks around the entire site could be traced.

Disliking La Mote, the Indians ordered the vacating of the fort, under threat of death, after the site had been occupied for twenty years. La Mote departed with his army and soon afterwards the fort was burned by the Indians. The site was lost track of and until discovery by the Newells only its approximate location was known.

YOUTHS HELD AS ROBBERS.

Joseph Radic, 20 years old, 9330 Avenue M, and Ray Mazey, 18 years old, 9528 Avenue M, were held to the grand jury under bonds of $20,000 yesterday on charges of robbery. Three pistols were found in Mazey's home.

ABANDON PLAN FOR ARTILLERY RANGE PURCHASE

$600,000 Appropriation Reverts to State.

Springfield, Ill., June 23.—[Special.]—Abandonment of the plan to purchase land for an artillery range at Camp Grant under the $600,000 appropriation made by the legislature two years ago, was announced today.

The statement, coming from the governor's office, said the chief executive disapproved of the purchase. This will save the taxpayers the amount of the appropriation, since it will lapse July 1 and the money will revert into the treasury.

Gov. Emmerson was out of the state today, but his statement explained that his approval of the purchase was withheld to curb expenditures, and because the purchase would not conform with "good business policy."

Investigations, he said, have disclosed that only 4,200 acres of land could be purchased for $600,000. This would necessitate acquisition of more land later, to provide an area sufficient for training facilities and insure safety.

Little of the guard artillery training will be lost, the statement pointed out, since the federal government has an artillery range at Camp McCoy, Wis., which is available.

In the early days of the present session of the legislature expenditure of the fund was assailed by Representative Leroy Green [Rep., Rockford], who offered a joint resolution advising the governor to let the appropriation lapse and advising the general assembly to appropriate the money for armory construction to relieve unemployment. The house adopted the resolution, but it died in the senate executive committee.

Al Capone Settles with Florida Lawyer; Ends Suit

Al Capone's troubles with his Florida lawyer, Vincent C. Giblin, came to an end yesterday when the attorney obtain the dismissal of a $50,000 suit for fees, according to dispatches from Miami. Giblin informed Circuit Judge Paul Barnes that a settlement had been reach out of court. The attorney said furnishings seized by deputy sheriffs from Capone's Palm Island estate would be returned.

ASKS ATTORNEYS IN FACTOR CASE TO CALM SELVES

Senator Otis F. Glenn of the defense and Attorney Franklin Overmyer, representing the British crown, were asked to calm themselves by United States Commissioner Walker yesterday in the extradition proceedings against John [Jake the Barber] Factor, reputed $6,000,000 stock swindler.

Attorney Overmyer characterized defense objections to the charges against Factor as "laughable," and then declared that even if the alleged offense would not support extradition, the President and secretary of state could order Factor extradited anyway.

Senator Glenn leaped to his feet and declared:

"Your honor, I don't think the President and the secretary of state are going to violate the extradition treaty and send this innocent man back to England."

Dispatches from London yesterday stated that A. J. S. Osborne, a clerk formerly employed by Factor, testified against three of the former Halsted street barber's associates, who are on trial in Old Bailey. "I was completely in their hands; I knew nothing about their business," said Osborne.

Factor's hearing will be resumed today.

NOTRE DAME FOOTBALL COACH SERIOUSLY ILL

YANKEES DROP SOX INTO CELLAR; WIN 8-6 AND 9-4

RALLY IN NINTH GIVES OPENER TO NEW YORK

Caraway Routed in Nightcap.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, after becoming all puffed up over their lone victory over the Athletics, weren't able to deflate a deflated yesterday on their 2 bushels of labor against the clouting Yankees. A crowd of some 16,000 fans came to believe the New Yorkers were going to submit to defeat in the closing battle, but a four run rally in the ninth changed everything and the Chisoxmas folded up by 8 to 6. Then to make their day perfect, the visitors fellows grabbed the nightcap without exerting themselves. The count was 9 to 4.

The double setback dropped the Sox into the cellar.

Yanks Get Chisoxmas the First Battle.

The Chisoxmas the first battle was licked from the start. Less than two innings were needed to reveal that Ted Lyons still rates as a cripple. The Yanks proved it by scoring a pair to in the count. Hal McKain came in for one of his customary sparkling relief stints, and while he was in a dither still as the result of being nailed by a drive against his shin by Babe Ruth smacked him for a homer with a mate waiting. Then he let himself loose and moved ahead in the ninth, only to fall back again in the ninth when the Yank attack went to work McKain and Caraway.

Sisler Jolted Second Time.

Sisler has bumped around a bit in the forth of the first argument, having returned with the idea of getting the treatment in the night-cap. The Yanks were not long in making his day a total loss. His mates opened him with an early lead of 3 to 0. Wells, also left handed, but in the fourth the visitors suddenly and unexpectedly turned loose a salvo which soared five runs and removed Sisler from the scene.

Ruffing opened the first game with a run on curtis. The attack started with Ruth's single past first base and a pass to Gehrig. The two runners moved up on Dugan's sacrifice. Johnson was nicknicked a wild pitch on which Ruth scored and Gehrig dashed to third. Gehrig hiked across the plate when Lary was tossing out Fonseca.

Schang singled to right in the second inning to start the collapse of the now gallant Lyons. Chapman walked. Sewell doubled to left scoring Schang and send Chapman to third. Lazzeri's tap to Jeffries scored Chapman. Perkins then singled over short and Sewell strolled home. It developed then that Lyons needed help, so McKain was hustled into action and the inning ended without further mishaps.

Yanks Get Lead.

The Yanks took a temporary one run lead in the fourth. Watwood walked and Ruth came around to the plate on Kerr's double close to the left field line.

Immediately after McKain had been removed from the shin wound added by Combs' drive in the fifth, a rally started. Lary singled to center. McKain threw one right over the middle for Ruth and the latter drove it into the right field stands, putting the Yanks ahead, 5 to 3.

The Yanks in the eighth gave the Sox no room for doubt that for a few minutes it seemed good enough to assure victory. Ruth opened the inning with a single to the right field corner and scored on a double to right center by Gehrig. The latter went to third on Dugan's bunt. Reynolds then batted for Kerr and produced a long single that scored Fonseca.

Sox Get Set in Ninth.

The White Sox Yank ninth began gently when McKain threw out Dickey, batting for Johnson. Combs looped a single to left and McKain completed the side's work by plunking Ruth in the ribs. Caraway came in to relieve and walked Ruth, filling the bases. Gehrig popped out. Chapman batted a fly to center for a double, scoring Combs and Lary. The two others scored on Sewell's two bagger

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Little Jack Reese, the 22 year old Pennsylvanian who received his diploma from Yale university last week, captured the medal in the national intercollegiate golf tournament yesterday by finishing the 36 hole qualifying round over the No. 4 course at Olympia Fields with a card of 146. Jack duplicated his 73 of Monday, touring yesterday's 18 holes in 37—36.

And right back of him came a 21 year old sophomore, also from New Haven, who will furnish plenty of competition for the tournament veterans before it ends. He is Sidney W. Noyes Jr., a resident of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., who came in with a 72, two over par, for one of the two best rounds of the day. Added to his 77 of Monday, it gave him a total of 149 and a tie for second place among the thirty-two qualifiers with Randall Ahearn of Detroit City college, who shot a 76 yesterday.

Win Title for Yale.

The near par play of Reese and Noyes brought Yale the team championship, which was decided on the basis of the four lowest scorers from each school for the 36 holes of qualifying play. The New Haven quartet, composed of Reese, 146; Noyes, 149; Tommy Aycock, 153, and Capt. Walter Swope, 162, had a total score of 610. That figure might have been reduced by five strokes, but Dan England, who shot a 157, was not entered by Coach Ben Thomson for the team competition.

Princeton, the defending champion, made a strong finish to come in second with 614. Notre Dame was third with 627; followed by Michigan, 631; Illinois, 634; South California, 634; Harvard, 635; Ohio State, 635; Tulane, 636; Chicago, 641; Georgetown, 643; Northwestern, 653; Dartmouth, 658; Southern Methodist, 667, and De Paul, 703.

The first 18 hole match play round of the tournament will be played this morning and the second this afternoon. Thirty-six hole rounds will be held tomorrow, Friday, and Saturday. Of the thirty-two who qualified for the match play, thirteen hail from the east, twelve from the central states, four from the far west, and three from the south.

Play Off for Their 158s.

The high qualifying score proved to be 158, and the end of the day found four players—Joe Royston, of Michigan, Bob Crowe of Illinois, Philip S. Finlay of Harvard, and E. B. Murphy of Harvard—all tied at that figure. They played off the deadlock on the first hole, Royston, with a 5, and Crowe with a 6, winning their way into the tournament. Finlay and Murphy each had 7's.

Finlay, who went to the semi-finals of the National Amateur against Bobby Jones three years ago, might have reached the match play round but for an incident on the 18th green. He was paired with Aycock of Yale, who won the title in 1929, and when they checked their cards at the end of the round Aycock approved Finlay's 83 and handed it back to him. Phil looked at the card, noted that one of the figures had been smudged, and

ANDERSON GOES TO ROCHESTER IN WHEEL CHAIR

Conceals Condition, Finishes Work.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Heartly (Hunk) Anderson, successor to the late Knute Rockne as head football coach at Notre Dame, last night was en route to the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., Anderson is suffering from a severe attack of sinus trouble and a nervous breakdown.

Although he had been treated daily for five weeks, Anderson concealed his illness until he had completed spring football practice at Notre Dame. Last Thursday his condition became worse, and since then he has been confined to his bed. Anderson has lost 14 pounds in the last five days and the sharply drawn lines on his face last night indicated the pain of the sinus attack.

Wheeled to Station.

Anderson was met by railroad officials at the La Salle street station last night and taken from the train in a wheel chair. Twenty minutes later he left over the Northwestern for Rochester, Minn.

The decision to make the trip to the Mayo clinic was made yesterday morning after a long distance conversation with Dr. John Mohardt. Mrs. Anderson, who accompanied her husband, said Dr. Mohardt, who played half back on the 1921 Notre Dame eleven, on which Anderson starred as guard, advised Mrs. Anderson to bring her husband to Rochester for a thorough examination and treatment.

Anderson has canceled an engagement to coach at the two weeks' summer football school at the Y. M. C. A. college in Springfield, Mass., where he was expected to report next week.

Recalls Rockne's Illness.

Anderson's illness and his visit to Rochester form a strange coincidence. Fifteen months ago Knute Rockne, then athletic director at Notre Dame, returned from the Minnesota hospital.

Rockne at that time was recovering from a long fight against a leg infection, which had forced him to abandon his 1929 championship football team in midseason. Rockne withstood the terrific strain of Notre Dame's ten game schedule last fall, but met his death last spring when the tri-motored plane in which he was en route from Kansas City to the Pacific coast crashed in Kansas.

Shortly after Rockne's death Anderson succeeded him as senior football coach, with Jack Chevigny as junior coach. Later Jesse Harper, who had coached when Rockne was a player at Notre Dame, became athletic director.

Physical Disability Serious.

Anderson's illness is described as a severe sinus attack, with intense pain. His loss of weight and general physical disability, however, is considered more serious.

He first became ill about five weeks ago, although he had been indisposed since last fall from a head cold, which had not responded to treatment. With spring practice just started at the time of Rockne's death, Anderson refused to quit Notre Dame. More than a week ago he went to Paw Paw lake, Michigan, to relax from the worries of preparing for the fall gridiron campaign.

Last Thursday he became worse and returned to South Bend. A trained nurse had been in constant attendance.

His breakdown, friends said, can be traced in part to worry over the 1931 football season. Notre Dame has not been defeated in two years, and Anderson, with a schedule as difficult as any ever faced by Rockne, has worked incessantly this spring.

FREAK BASEBALL HAPPENINGS
by Irving Vaughan

This is the first of a series of unusual happenings in big league baseball.

"Use your head" is a baseball expression as old as the game itself. Players have heeded the advice in different ways, but probably none as unique as a method adopted, unintentionally of course, some years ago by Art Griggs, now a manager in the Western league.

Way back in the days when the St. Louis Browns were getting themselves accustomed to the rôle of league doormat Griggs was among the players brought up by that team from the Texas league. One of his teammates was a young catcher named Bill Killefer who had been promoted from the same minor circuit. Killefer is the same who later was to blossom forth with the Phillies as the battery mate of Grover Alexander. Today he is managing these same Brownies.

In a series at Boston the Browns regular third baseman was injured and Griggs, whose excuse for being on the roster was his ability to fill the infield utility rôle was mustered for active service. At the time the Red Sox were housed in the now vanished Huntingdon avenue grounds, which for spaciousness of playing field and grand stand would today be regarded as a pocket edition.

The game on this particular day developed into a free for all slugging match in which the rather meek Browns managed to keep pace with the powerful team which was just getting into shape for a long reign at the top of the American league. The club included the famous Lewis, Speaker, Hooper outfield.

Among the Boston infielders present in this particular affair was Billy Purtell, who shortly before had been traded by the White Sox. Comiskey had purchased Purtell as part of a new infield which that spring had been pictured the coming combination of the league. It was made up of Gandil at first, Zeider at second, Blackburne at short, and Purtell at third.

After the game had gone along for several innings, Purtell came up to bat and poked a hard grounder to Griggs at third. There was a Boston man on base at the time. Griggs crouched and reached for the ball, but it took an unexpected hop. It eluded his reach, bounced off his forehead and sailed into the nearby seats for a home run. Eventually Boston won, the last blow of the battle being a home run by Joe Wood, who had been brought into the game as a relief hurler.

Griggs' comment that night on his performance was, "Well, the old boy certainly used his head on that one."

BURY HOUSEMAN, CHICAGO SPORTS CELEBRITY, TODAY

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

Lou M. Houseman, for whom funeral services will be held this afternoon from his home in North Hollywood, Cal., belonged to the old school of sporting editors, a type now almost extinct. He was a witty conversationalist and a clever, albeit at times vitriolic, writer, developed from the then important "police reporter" ranks.

Sports editors of his time, however, were valuable to their papers for the people they knew, the news "tips" they gleaned on their night life rounds, and the tone of authority with which they spoke, as much as for the quality of their writing. In all these departments Houseman was a master.

Promoted Tattersall's Shows.

Furthermore, many newspapers allowed their sports heads to engage in outside promotions. So Houseman, before he retired from the old Inter Ocean, was interested in boxing and boxers. It was under his management that the now famous shows in old Tattersall's on 16th street were held, shows in which all national celebrities of the time appeared. They culminated in the Terry McGovern-Joe Gans bout in which Gans rolled to the floor in the second round from a body attack. It was pronounced a fake by most authorities, although no sure-fire proof ever was produced. At the climax of the proceedings the lights went out for a few seconds.

Houseman was manager of Jack Root, light heavyweight, in the latter's prime. He was a great personal friend of Tommy Ryan, Bob Fitzsimmons, and especially Jim Jeffries.

With perhaps the widest personal acquaintance of his time among sporting and theatrical personages, Lou was loyal to friends and bitter and unforgiving toward his few enemies. He knew how to make friends. He made one of this writer when we were 23 years old and a cub reporter on the old Chicago Record.

Wagers Benefit Proceeds.

Tod Sloan then was the riding sensation of England, having introduced the "monkey seat" there. He had ridden for the king and nobility. Young and ambitious I went to the train to meet him as he passed through Chicago on his return from abroad. I wanted a story of his experiences — perhaps it would be a "scoop." There was no other reporter at the train—except Houseman.

"Hello, Lou," beamed Tod.

"Hello, Tod," exclaimed House-

In the WAKE of the NEWS

JUST A HINT.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, you have been so busy with the Sports Congress, American Derby, the Cubs and their standing, and these golf tourneys that I thought I just ought to remind you that Max Schmeling defends his title against Will Stribling at Cleveland July 3.

You see it's this way, Arch. You probably haven't forgotten it all right, but I have been going to championship fights for a good many years, and I thought maybe you might want me to go to this one. I just wanted you to know that I could arrange it all right because I haven't any loans in any banks that might suspend because when I try to borrow money the banker always asks about collateral and perhaps you know how annoying that is, but anyway I haven't any loans.

If, by any chance, you should want me to go to this fight, it might be a good plan to start pretty soon. You see, when I go to Louisville to talk to the horses they will talk most any time, but fighters are different. They become sort of crabby like in the last few days before a big encounter.

So suppose I should ask them what they had for breakfast—because I always figure that if there is anything an expectant public wants to know it's what a fighter had for breakfast—they might say, if they were crabby, "Watinell difference does it make?" And being a peaceable person with no chip on my shoulder, especially when a pugilist is concerned, what could I reply and still maintain the dignity of THE TRIBUNE and our sporting department?

Another thing, perhaps you ought to remind Pegler about the fight. I don't want to seem to be telling you about your job, but Peg has been writing about boat races and such and he might overlook it, but perhaps he wouldn't. Just use your own judgment on that.

Another thing, Arch. That's about expense accounts. Of course, I have heard there's a sort of depression or something, but I think that will soon be over now that Uncle Sam isn't going to have any one that owes him money pay for another year, and I think it's a great principle and ought to be applied universally because I get sort of tired of those letters that come about the first of the month. But anyway, what I started to say was that I would be as economical as possible if you thought I ought to go to the fight, but you know, Arch, living is very high at all places where they have sporting events. So I just hope we won't have any misunderstandings, because I really like you, and I like my job, too.

Now, Arch, some people are saying this won't be much of a fight. Possibly it won't, but it's for a title anyway. Moreover, it could be a very good fight, but I don't want to explain all that here because if I did what would I have to write about in case you did want me to go to Cleveland?

Anyway, Arch, you know how I stand on it and that I am ready to do anything you say except that I'd rather like to go so as to forget the golf score I made Monday at Glen View. I won't go into detail about that except that I found the new golf ball sinks in water just as well as the old one did. If you have time, let me know what you think about Cleveland.

O, another thing. I did think I might drive but the old bus "eats" a lot of gas and what would the auditing department think if I charged "Gas" two or three times a day? They wouldn't think it was really gas at all, perhaps, and that would be very embarrassing, so maybe I better go on the train.

I won't need any new clothes because new clothes are not so essential at a fight, so I won't have to charge "Necessary clothing" in my expense account as one of our writers did when I was sporting editor and the weather changed while he was away, necessistating a new outfit.

Also don't think how badly my family will feel if I am away because we're house cleaning and they'll be glad to have me away because they want my study cleaned. But if they do tidy it up a bit while I'm away, it will only take me a day or two to get it back into such disorder again that I can find things I need to refer to. See you tomorrow. Regards.

Harvey T. Woodruff.

BILLY BURKE AND WHIFFY COX WIN RYDER POSITIONS

Columbus, O., June 23.—[Special.]—With three places definitely decided in the Ryder cup qualifying play today, a playoff between three tied for fourth place will be necessary.

Billy Burke, Greenwich, Conn., pro, finished the 72 holes as medalist, shooting 289, one under par, for the two days, which placed him as player No. 7.

The other regular player, No. 8, was Whiffy Cox, Elmsford, N. Y., pro, finished five strokes behind the leader with a total of 294.

The first alternate to win his place was Craig Wood, Buffalo, who finished the preliminary rounds in 299.

Densmore Shute, former Columbus pro now connected with the Hudson country club near Cleveland, finished his round today with 302 and tied with Frank Walsh, Morton Grove, Ill., and Henry Cuici, Bridgeport, Conn. This trio will play off for the other alternate position.

RAIN DEFERS WOMEN'S OPEN GOLF MATCHES

The opening matches in the women's western open golf tourney, scheduled yesterday at Midlothian Country club, were postponed until today because of the unplayable condition of the course. The storm which struck Chicago early yesterday morning made a veritable lake of the course.

Many of the more ardent appeared in suitable clothes ready to meet first round match play opponents. Officers of the Women's Golf association decided that, instead of a 36 hole final on Friday, the semi-finals at 18 holes will be held Friday morning, followed by an 18 hole final Friday afternoon.

ALFONSO SEES SPANISH GIRL WIN AT TENNIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23.—Women's day burst upon the Wimbledon tennis championships in a splurge of strange styles and the smiling patronage of one of Europe's late rulers this afternoon. The beautiful Señorita Elia de Alvarez of Spain played beneath the royal logs in the gallery and won, while former King Alfonso sitting beside Princess Beatriz smiled and waved and bowed approval.

She won her match after a poor start by 2-6, 6-1, and 6-2 from the stockingless Mrs. Joan Lycett, who had neither the courage nor the endurance of her flashing opponent.

All the Americans playing today had easy victories, as did the seeded stars, working toward the finals a week from Saturday. George Lott of Chicago played as loosely as usual, but defeated Pierre Landry, 6-4, 11-9, and 6-2. Frank Shields beat H. F. David of Great Britain by 2-6, 6-0, 6-3, and 6-4, playing as he liked after the first set. His volleys, base line drives, and service were ample to stave off danger.

John Van Ryn easily defeated R. E. Merlin by 6-2, 6-4, and 6-1, and Syd Wood had no difficulty with U. C. Crossley. His scores were 6-3, 6-1, and 6-2, gained chiefly with a backhand passing stroke down the forward line.

STRIBLING WILL RELY ON LEFT TO BEAT SCHMELING

Challenger to End Boxing Sunday Night.

Geauga Lake, O., June 23.—(AP)—If advance indications are trustworthy, Bill Stribling will try to bounce the heavyweight crown from Max Schmeling's brow July 3 with left hand punches of a half dozen varieties.

Stribling is a powerful man, and his straight right hand to the head is one of the deadliest wallops in the game. But so far in his training grind, Stribling has done almost all of his punching with his left.

If the German bobs and weaves as he charges forward, his usual fighting style, Bill will meet him with left hooks to the body, using his right only for short, jarring "sneak" punches in the clinches. And if Schemling fights in standing fashion, as he has been doing in his training, Stribling will try to set him back on his heels with straight lefts to the head. The Georgian is a master with both of these punches.

Stribling dropped his first sparring partner Sunday night with a crushing left hook to the body, a short jolt with an eighteen inch glove that traveled less than a foot, but stretched Big Frank Kitts helpless on the canvas.

Stribling was so close to his peak at 188 pounds today that he plans his final boxing workout for Thursday and Sunday nights under conditions approximating as closely as possible to those he will face on July 3.

Yale Golfers Win National Team Title

made a five out of what appeared to be a four, giving him an 84 and forcing him into the playoff, where he was eliminated.

Dunlap Makes Comeback.

George T. Dunlap Jr., the blond Princeton star who won the college title at Oakmont last year, proved that he's a real champion by coming home with a 72 yesterday, after a rather disastrous 78 on Monday. That 72 tied Noyes' card for the best round of the day and gave him the right to defend his championship in the match play beginning today.

Dunlap played some fine golf yesterday to get back into the championship running. He followed par perfectly during the first nine holes, except on the seventh, where a pool of rain water forced him to take a penalty stroke, and gave him a one over par 5. He three putted the twelfth, and missed a four footer on the thirteenth. His 12 foot putt just grazed the cup on the sixteenth, but on the seventeenth, he holed a 25 footer for a birdie three.

In making his 72, Noyes, who recently completed his sophomore year at Yale, three putted the second and seventh greens, but took birdies on the eighth and seventeenth, the first as the result of a long putt and the second after a chip shot one foot off the green.

BRONOWICZ LOSES TO M'MILLEN IN KRONE MAT SHOW

Jim McMillen defeated Frank Bronowicz in the windup of Promoter Doc Krone's first open air show at Mills stadium last night before 2,500. A crotch hold and half nelson ended the match after 38 minutes.

Using a body slam, Hans Steinke threw Jim Clinstock in 21 minutes and 10 seconds. In the preliminaries, Jack Smith, Chicago, won from Marshall Blackstone, Atlanta, Ga., with a bar arm and half nelson in six minutes and three seconds, while Nazzareno Poggi, Italy, and Charley Fox, Cleveland, went twenty minutes to a draw. Hans Bauer defeated Milo Steinborn in 23 minutes.

Harrington Graduates; Leaves De Paul Leaderless

Butter Beans at Arlington for Race July 8

Among the new arrivals at Arlington Park is Butter Beans, the two year old which has been winning purses and stakes since the beginning of the year. She has been resting since winning the Debutante revival at Washington Park. Butter Beans will compete July 8 in the Lassie.

Marion Hollins is a regular morning patron at Arlington on account of the presence there of her filly, Nevada Queen, heroine of the last winters juvenile racing at Agua Caliente where she won four in a row, the last a revival of the Senorita stakes. Her one effort at Washington Park was not inspiring, but Miss Hollins and her trainer, Charlie Farrel, who bred Nevada Queen in Nevada, predict that she will be a different filly next month. In testimony of their confidence in the daughter of Trouble and Hilda they put her in the Post and Paddock, six furlongs for 2 year olds, Aug. 1.

The brilliant performance last Saturday at Aqueduct of Questionnaire in the Brooklyn handicap promises brisk competition in the Stars and Stripes and Arlington handicaps, gallops of one mile and a furlong and one mile and a quarter, respectively, and the Arlington cup, a weight for age race of one mile and a quarter. Questionnaire, which shouldered 129 pounds and stepped a mile and a furlong in the Brooklyn in 1:49, is coming out for the two handicaps and the cup, which bid fair to attract also Mokatam, Sun Beau, Mike Hall, Spinach, and three or four others. Questionnaire beat St. Brideaux and Reveille Boy Saturday.

Questionnaire's performance in the Brooklyn was no more impressive than Gallant Knight's in a dash of one mile at Washington Park that followed his return from Belmont Park, where, a week ago Saturday, he was left at the post in the Suburban handicap. Stepping a mile in 1:36 4-5 in front of Satin Spar, Gallant Knight set a new track mark.

CUBS AND RAIN SCARE GIANTS; TWIN BILL OFF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—The Giants called off their doubleheader with the Cubs this afternoon, making the decision in the midst of a light sprinkle at 11 a. m.

Manager Hornsby thought it would have been a good idea to hold off for a little while, with the hope of playing at least one of the games. But that 11 to 4 licking the Giants took yesterday may have had something to do with the precipitate appraisal of the precipitation and the effects thereof.

If it rains tomorrow! Pity the poor athletes and baseball authors come next Aug. 23, 24, 25 and 26, for on those dates there will be a doubleheader on each and every day.

Pat Malone and Bob Smith continue the pitching selections while Hubbell and Mitchell will go for the Giants tomorrow, according to rumors.

Levinsky Bout Approved by Commission

The King Levinsky-Ace Hudkins heavyweight bout, which headlines Promoter Jim Mullen's outdoor fight card at Mills stadium next Wednesday night, was sanctioned by the Illinois boxing commission yesterday.

Mullen announced that big fellows who have proved themselves to be punchers, will appear in the support of the Levinsky-Hudkins fight. He hopes to sign Frankie Battaglia, 169 pounder from Minneapolis, against a leading middleweight for the semi-windup. Battaglia knocked out Ray Tramble twice, Billy Light and Patsy Pollock, and put My Sullivan on the canvas three times while winning over the St. Paul Irishman.

Hudkins and Levinsky put in strenuous workouts yesterday, the former boxing five rounds and the latter six. Ace boxed two rounds with Tom Jones and then took on Tom Patrick, Pacific coast heavyweight, for three.

CULLEN CAPTURES LUMBERMEN'S CUP WITH CARD OF 160

The 25th annual National Lumbermen's golf tourney at Olympia Fields yesterday drew a field of 150 contestants. Play was for prizes for 18 and 36 holes, over both No. 2 and No. 3 courses.

J. J. Cullen won the championship cup, low gross for 36 holes with two rounds of 80. C. S. Bishop had 85—83—168 as runner up. The low gross in the afternoon score for the American Lumbermen cup went to Mr. Bishop with 83.

The Edward Hines trophy for those over 45 years was won by W. Ory, 89—23—66, with President Peter De Vries' 90—21—69 second.

Don Leon Captures Hubbard Purse at Washington Park

BY FRENCH LANE.

Fleet old Brown Wisdom, holder of numerous Chicago track records and capable of beating most any horse at times in his career, may not be associating with the topnotchers much longer.

He has tried time and again to win a race this spring in Kentucky and Chicago, but always failed. He tried again yesterday at Washington Park in the Hubbard Woods purse against a four horse field.

But he wound up beaten off by a dozen lengths. Don Leon, No More and Maya, nags he would have laughed at a year ago, led him home in the mud.

No one seems able to determine what's wrong with Brown Wisdom. He seems to have lost his desire to win. He used to do that on occasions and frequently got a jockey or a trainer in bad. But if he is just out on one of his losing sprees, it is rather a lengthy one and when he finally sobers up and decides to win a race, he may find himself down with the selling platers.

However, don't overlook the fact that Don Leon in winning, ran a very remarkable race over a trying track. He also had the benefit of a skillful ride by R. Cheatham. Cheatham doesn't ride such good races often.

He took Don Leon to the front at once. By picking the better going, he kept him moving along at a brilliant clip long enough to shake off No More, when the latter made a very courageous challenge half way down the stretch.

Don Leon went on to beat him by two and a half lengths and No More's stable mate, Maya, was third. Don Leon ran his six furlongs in 1:14 3-5 and was the favorite in the betting at $5.22.

J. W. Parrish, Midway, Ky., banker, inspired by the prevailing conditions around his native blue grass last spring, named one of his 2 year olds Depression. It turned out to be just an inspiration, however, for the daughter of North Star III.-Escarpolette is everything but what her name implies. She proved it in the fourth race. Staging a lively rally at the head of the stretch, Depression held the favorite, Sally Irene, and the second choice, Modern Queen, comfortably safe for the rest of the journey.

For those who were undaunted by the name Depression she paid dividends of $16.52 for every two dollars invested. An exceptionally promising mud running filly, her time was the best of the day. It was the second start of her career.

A first time starter from Kentucky—Black Strap—had won the race before, which also engaged seven mud running juveniles. He is a fine looking coal black fellow and raced in the white and blue jacket of Gallaher and Combs of Lexington. He went to the front as soon as they started down the stretch and, with Allen giving him a rousing finish, had little trouble beating the field. Anita Ormont was the favorite, but she ran last all the way.

Black Strap can surely turn it on in the mud. He was running to be claimed for $5,000, but I doubt if you could buy him for twice that amount.

Gallant Knight served notice on Sun Beau yesterday morning that he's going to have something to say about the closing day feature, the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap on Saturday. He reeled off five and a half furlongs in the mud in 1:09, and was just breezing at the finish. He looked better than at any time this season.

The Knight goes from Washington Park to Arlington next Sunday and will meet not only Sun Beau, but Questionnaire, Mokatam, and all the other stars of the country in the series of rich stake events to be run there.

BURY HOUSEMAN, CHICAGO SPORTS CELEBRITY, TODAY

man. "I have a carriage waiting to take you to your hotel."

I introduced myself to Sloan. Houseman knew me but not well.

"Won't you come along?" invited Houseman. I was delighted at this chance and we drove to the old Wellington, where Tod stopped.

In his room, Sloan said: "By the way, Lou, on the train I wrote out some of my impressions and experiences abroad thinking you might want it."

My eyes fairly popped. It was the very thing I had been after, but it belonged to another. Perhaps Lou saw my expression. At any rate, he said: "You may use it, too, if you care to copy it."

Did I? I did. That kindness to a kid reporter was the beginning of a long acquaintance.

Lou made money, plenty of money, but to him it was only to spend. Accordingly, when he retired from newspaper work he had no accumulation laid away. So a "benefit" was arranged as was the custom in those days, to which all sportsdom and stageland gladly participated. The net proceeds were fairly eloquent.

Instead of giving all the money to trustees, some was given to Lou. Imagine the surprise of the benefit ticket purchasers a few days later when they read Lou had wagered $1,000 against $1,500 on a pending fight, Lou's choice won, however.

Retiring from pugilistic enterprises, Houseman for many years was western manager for Al M. Wood's show interests and managed the Woods, Apollo and Adelphi theaters here.

Besides his widow, Mr. Houseman is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Sellers of Glen Ellyn, and Sidney Houseman, a newspaper man of Seattle. Mrs. Sidney Herman, of this city, is a sister.

19 BOY SCOUTS ARE PICKED FOR CANOE CRUISE

Leave for Flambeau River Friday.

BY BOB BECKER.

Now they are—the Boy Scouts who will go on THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual canoe cruise and camping trip down the Flambeau river. Because of their high ratings in a difficult camping test and other qualifications as viewed by a committee from Scout headquarters, the following boys are being notified to report next Friday evening at the Grand Central station when they will take a Soo line train to Park Falls, Wis. The canoe cruise will start from that point Saturday morning.

Elmer Bubis, 2366 Freeman street, age 15, Life Scout.
Bernie Bauermeister, 2336 Seminary avenue, age 17, Star Scout.
Elmer Corbett, 8441 North Lawler avenue, age 16, Eagle Scout.
Jay Klaus, 3026 West 21st street, age 15, Life Scout.
Jack Witt, 8441 Perdinand street, age 15, Life Scout.
Jack Woods, 8149 South Carpenter street, age 15, Eagle Scout.
Robert Jackson, 1451 East 50th street, age 15, Eagle Scout.
Jack Stoffel, 8186 Lake street, age 16, Life Scout.
Robert Bergman, 1977 East 77th street, age 15, Life Scout.
Jack Wood, 8106 Harper avenue, age 16, Life Scout.
Jack Gates, 1404 Olive avenue, age 17, Life Scout.
Robert E. Fairchild Jr., 933 Galt avenue, age 15, First Class Scout.
Robert Hopkins, 3046 Wilson avenue, age 15, Life Scout.
Robert Stout, 1507 Judson avenue, Evanston, Eagle Scout with silver palm.
Jack Bennett, 3011 Addison avenue, age 15, Eagle Scout.
Robert Taylor, 7145 Ergleston avenue, age 15, First Class Scout.
Robert Glassberg, 1019 North Long avenue, age 15, Eagle Scout.
Jack Taylor, 1733 East 83d street, age 15, Star Scout with bronze palm.
Robert Schneider, Waukegan, age 17, Life Scout.

Applications Are Numerous.

All of these boys won high marks in the swimming test given by Vincent Nash of the Lincoln Park Boat club. Their records as applications for the cruise were far in excess of the number (16) which could be taken on the trip, the remaining examination was a practical test, which, in case of similar qualifications, were equally decisive whether the Scout would be taken for the cruise.

Every 16 foot canoe that could be found around Park Falls was mustered into service for the combination canoeing and camping trip, which will take the Scouts down one of the most beautiful rivers in the middle west.

Carpenter Is Chief.

Executive leadership for this party, which will number seven or eight different camps along the Flambeau, also E. Carpenter, education director of the Chicago Boy Scout council, will be chief Scoutmaster, and George Stone as assistant Scoutmaster.

MAYBE SO, BUT I NEVER SEEN NONE OF THEM AFTER I MARRIED HIM—
ALL HE EVER GIVE ANYBODY WAS ADVICE.
HE WAS SO TIGHT, THAT WHEN I SHOWED HIM THE SOLES OF MY SHOES WAS GETTING THIN, HE TOLD ME TO START TAKING LONGER STEPS.
BUT OF COURSE YOU WOULDN'T BE A STINGY HUSBAND LIKE THAT.

Fighting Is for Fighters Only: Even Mr. Pegler Knows That

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, June 23.—It really seems that loving friends should intervene in the terrible strife between young Mr. Neely Vanderbilt and Mr. Peter Arno, the comic artist, at whom Mr. Vanderbilt recently fired several hypothetical shots from a hypothetical revolver. Mr. Vanderbilt announces that he is going into training under Jack Dempsey so that as soon as Mr. Arno recovers from his hypothetical wounds he can bust him one on the nose.

JACK DEMPSEY.

From Mr. Vanderbilt's own account of the incident it looks as if the boys were playing Indian the last time. As I remember the rules of the game of Indian from childhood's happy hours, the white man, which would be Mr. Vanderbilt in the present case, points his finger or a broom stick at the Indian, which would be Mr. Arno, and yells loudly, "Bang; you are dead!"

Sportsmanship at that age is still rather latent and quite often the Indian, not wishing to be dead, replies, "You missed me." It all depends on the Indian's sense of sportsmanship. Thereupon the white man says, "All right then, I will not play any more," and the two are sore at each other for as long as two days.

Magnify Little Disputes.

Grownup men like Mr. Vanderbilt, however, are likely to magnify these little disputes into terrible grudges. And here several days have passed, and, far from playing Indian with Mr. Arno again, Mr. Vanderbilt is going to take lessons so that he can bust him on the nose in three counts, like a golfer fresh from the hands of his pro, remembering his don'ts on the first tee.

It would be rash to say that it would be waste of time and effort for Mr. Vanderbilt to take these boxing lessons. But I have a premonition that his plan would lead to something really ghastly in the way of a fist fight, possibly even worse than my own memorable fist fight with Mr. Cozy Dolan, the old house detective of the New York Giants.

This fight was so bad that even the hardened patrons of the speakeasy in which it took place averted their faces and cried, "Stop it. It's brutal." Indeed when the speakeasy, which was down under some bridge in Chicago, was bombed the next night, people suspected that some normally rational patron's mind had been unhinged by the awful scene. Mr. Dolan grabbed me around the neck and I put my arms around his waist and, as he pulled me to him I thought I heard him whisper, "How well you look this evening."

Strictly Impromptu Conflict.

"O, cosy," I murmured, and it was at that point that the bartender rushed up and said we were giving his place a bad name.

But our conflict, bad as it was, was strictly impromptu. He asked me if I had called him a key hole and waste basket detective and I said, "Yes." Then frightfulness broke over the little place. Yet, we were swept into the affair on the tide of our emotions, whereas here is a young man deliberately planning a fist fight with a comic artist and taking lessons. Still conceding that he might fight better than he writes, the risk, I maintain, is too grave to be tolerated.

I made some critical observations on the barehand fighting of laymen during the free-for-all on the railroad tracks at New London just before the Harvard-Yale boat race last Friday. One invariable characteristic of pleasure fighters is that they do not keep punching and, on the average, let fly just one punch per fight, generally a right hand swing at the face. If the swing lands, the other party goes down and makes convulsive efforts to struggle up, being careful, however, not to try too hard, and peering about him to see if the police are coming or his friends have taken the situation in hand.

Both Swings Usually Miss.

If either of these things has happened he then gets up and circles around at distance, saying, "Let the big bum go, or I will knock his ears off." Cool heads then lead him off and he goes with great reluctance, muttering, "I would have killed him" and his friends saying, "But you would only get into a lot of trouble."

If both swings miss, as happens more often that not, both parties fall into a deep embrace, panting down one another's neckband, sometimes employing their hands in body gestures which they call their infighting, in the belief that they are similar to body punches which they have seen in the ring. In reality, however, these passes look more like efforts to pick one another's pockets, and it is this turn of events which leads to the worst horrors of pleasure fighting.

Jack Doesn't Pull Punches.

Another thing which Mr. Vanderbilt should consider is the fact that Mr. Dempsey never has learned to pull a punch in the gymnasium. He ruined Midget Smith, a fine bantamweight, in one workout in Atlantic City about ten years ago, and every one who ever boxed with him, even under a pledge that the boxing was to be strictly in fun, reports that he always forgets himself. As between fighting Mr. Arno without elaborate preparation and training for the fight with Dempsey, Mr. Vanderbilt is likely to suffer less, even if licked, if he walks right up and lets fly.

YANKEES DROP SOX INTO LAST PLACE, 8-6, 9-4

and Faber was summoned to finish the inning.

The Sox tried to cook up another rally in their portion of the ninth, but were denied more than one run. Weinert was the Yank pitcher, but didn't last long. Grube, batting for Tate, doubled, and Fothergill, swinging for Faber, was hit. This brought Gomez into action and there was no more fun except that Grube scored on an infield out.

The Sox got on a productive basis in the second inning of the nightcap. Two runs were promoted on three solid hits off Wells. Fonseca led off with a two-bagger down the left field line. Eichrodt duplicated the hit, Fonseca going home. Watwood single to center, moving Eichrodt across the counting station.

Caraway didn't permit anything in the shape of a hit during his first three rounds of labor, but the fourth was something different. Lary's single to right was the signal for the five run uprising. Ruth's leg was punctured by a pitched ball. Gehrig doubled to left, Lary scoring and Ruth halting at third. The two waiting runners counted on Chapman's single. Chapman and Lazzeri, who walked, worked a double steal, and both tallied on Jorgens' hit, which marked Caraway's exit.

Chapman Steals 26th Base.

Combs pushed open the fifth with a single off Moore and was shoved to second on Lary's sacrifice. Ruth sent a long fly to right and Combs skipped for third after the catch. Then Gehrig bunted toward third and the move was so unexpected that he beat it easily for a single, Combs scoring.

The Yanks picked off another run in the sixth. The busy Mr. Chapman singled to short and was sacrificed by Sewell. Lazzeri walked and a double steal of third and second was engineered immediately. Grube's throw to third eluded Jeffries, so Chapman continued to the plate.

The boisterous easterners varied the one run monotony by coming up with a pair off Faber in the eighth. Chapman led off with a walk and immediately stole his 26th base. He hiked to third on Sewell's infield out and home when Lazzeri bounced a hit off Blue's glove. Lazzeri also pilfered second and stepped home on Jorgen's single over short.

After going through four barren sessions the Sox made another run in the eighth. Cissell opened with a pass and stole second. He went to third when nobody covered on Jorgen's perfect throw. Fonseca's infield out scored him.

In the ninth Jeffries scored the Sox fourth run on his hit and two wild throws by Lary.

Estate Valued at Three Million Dollars.

Through the will of Albert B. Kuppenheimer, member of the firm of Kuppenheimer & Co., clothing manufacturers, the inventory of which was filed in Probate court yesterday, the University of Chicago will receive approximately $1,500,000 as an endowment for medical research and the Michael Reese hospital approximately $750,000.

The estate of the late Mr. Kuppenheimer was valued in excess of $2,000,000 by Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, attorneys, who filed the inventory before Nuncio J. Bonelli, assistant to Judge Henry Horner.

The estate included $150,000 in Liberty bonds, $1,034,991 in bonds of Illinois and California municipalities and road districts, first mortgages worth $794,500, Chicago tax anticipation warrants for $68,250, stocks of a present market value of $873,772, and some small holdings in real estate, personal effects and furniture.

Principal Stock Holdings.

The larger stock holdings, with their market value, were:

5,675 Inland Steel	$260,971
3,000 Baltimore and Ohio	29,500
1,000 Chicago, Rock Island and P.	39,000
850 General Motors	21,875
400 Great Northern	21,000
3,758 Sears Roebuck	153,069
930 Insull Utilities	9,500
800 Illinois Central	28,500
1,500 Hartman Corporation	4,500
1,000 National Securities Corp.	6,000

The inventory listed as "desperate" 3,938 shares of the Navajo Oil company of New Mexico, 10,000 New Comstock Mining company of Arizona, and 17,500 Katherine Gold Mining company of Delaware.

Died Last January.

Mr. Kuppenheimer died January 16 in Los Angeles, following a heart attack. He had been in ill health for four years, and retired from business in 1922.

After making specific bequests of $800,000 to relatives and servants, and $145,000 to various Chicago and California charities, he provided that the residue of his estate should be divided, one-third going to Michael Reese hospital and two-thirds of the University of Chicago.

CHARGES BOND JUGGLING AT BANKERS' TRIAL

CRIMINAL COURT.

Tom Martinko, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Joseph Sabath.

Further testimony regarding the alleged juggling of securities in connection with the failure of the Roosevelt Bankers State bank, which was closed last fall with a $772,000 shortage was introduced yesterday at the trial of Alexander Flowers and three other officers of the defunct bank who are accused of misappropriating $21,000 worth of bonds. The trial is being heard by Judge Joseph Burke in the Criminal court.

Arthur Schy, of the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver for the bank, testified that when the receiver took over control of the institution several bonds listed as assets of the bank were not found among the securities. Instead, worthless bonds were in their place, he said.

On trial with Alexanders Flowers, who was chairman of the board, are his two brothers, Samuel and Frank Flower, and Louis Frank.

FOUR STUDENTS HELD AFTER AUTO KILLS 2 AT GARY

Four Gary high school students, two boys and two girls, were held by the Gary police last night after the automobile in which they were riding struck and killed a man and woman, both colored, at 15th avenue and Broadway, Gary.

One of the students, Janies Wood, 17 years old, 449 Bridge street, was charged with manslaughter and leaving the scene of the accident. He was pursued for about two miles and captured by other motorists. The other youth, Edward Poxtein, 18 years old, 346 Marshall street, and the girls, Elaine Maley, 16 years old, 216 Marshall street, and Frances Eckles, 17 years old, 235 Marshall street, were held as material witnesses.

The man killed was Thomas Fitshugh, 35 years old, 1521 Virginia street, Gary. The woman was unidentified.

Yolanda Esposito, 5 years old, 511 South Throop street, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by an auto while playing in the street near her home. The driver, Byron Anson, 48 years old, 1013 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, took the child to the Mother Cabrini Memorial hospital, where she died. He was held.

Anthony Sorenson, 47 years old, 5779 Elston avenue, was fatally injured late last night when he was struck at Major and Elston avenues by an automobile driven by Fred Miller, 3056 North Kedzie avenue. He died shortly afterward in the Belmont hospital.

The deaths of Sorenson and the Esposito boy increased the Cook county motor toll for 1931 to 522.

3 GIRLS QUIZZED IN MURDER OF GERGITS FREED

Three young women, suspected of knowing the identity of the man who shot and killed Joseph Gergits, 55 years old, in front of his soft drink parlor at 302 West 47th street on Monday, were questioned by the police yesterday and released when they convinced the investigators they knew nothing about the killing.

They are Dorothy Robeson, 17 years old, 5203 South Union avenue; Catherine Boyce, 17 years old, 5652 South Green street, and Clara Schultz, 16 years old, 631 West 46th place.

Gergits, in the opinion of the police, was shot when he resisted an attempt of a drunken bandit to rob him. The killer escaped in the victim's car. At 44th and Morgan streets the driver held up Richard Vaughn, 5351 South Morgan street, and forced him to an exchange of coats. Vaughn told the police he believed he saw Dorothy Robeson in the automobile. This she denied.

YAQUI CHIEF WHO FOUGHT MEXICO DIES AT AGE OF 90

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, June 23.—Gen. Luis Matus, who became chief of the Yaqui Indians in 1916, died yesterday at Hermosillo, in the state of Sonora. The general was over 90 years of age.

Gen. Matus led the revolt against the Mexican government in September, 1927, when the Indians attacked former President Obregon's train. For several hours President Obregon's guards beat off the Yaquis. With the arrival of federal soldiers the Yaquis retreated to the Bacatete mountains, where they continued to defy the government for more than a year.

Baker Dies of Bullet Wounds in Mystery Affray

Charles Rurey, owner of a bakery at 10236 Vincennes avenue, died at the Jackson Park hospital yesterday morning from bullet wounds received early last Thursday. Rurey, who was 35 years old, maintained that he had been shot while resisting a holdup, but after an investigation police expressed the belief that the bullets were fired as Rurey and his sweetheart, Miss Opal Whitman, were leaving a party in the flat of Mrs. Amelia Matias at 1303 West Washington boulevard. Mrs. Matias and Miss Whitman are being held at the detective bureau.

NEW YORK CON GAME SUSPECT IS SEIZED HERE

Reginald Franko, 27 years old, alleged to be the leader of a confidence game gang on New York was arrested yesterday in the offices of the William J. Baker brokerage company, 10 South La Salle street.

Two detectives from the district attorney's office in New York made the arrest with two detectives from the Chicago bureau. Franko at first insisted his name was Frank Harris and that he was employed by another La Salle street house. Later he admitted his identity, waived extradition, and will be started back to New York this morning.

Dispatches from New York said that Franko was accused of engineering a foreign money order fraud.

NEW LAW MAY VOID CONTEST ON CANAL BOND

Circuit Judge Philip Sullivan may be called on today or tomorrow to consider an important new factor in the contest against the $36,000,000 worth of sanitary district bonds submitted to the voters last February.

As a special commissioner, William H. Sexton, now corporation counsel, is expected to submit to Judge Sullivan the report on a recount of the votes on the four bond issue propositions made in 188 precincts. Upon this report ordinarily the court would base his decision whether the recount should go ahead.

But in the meantime there has been placed on Gov. Emmerson's desk for his signature Senate bill 536 which authorizes without referendum the issuance of the identical bonds covered by the February propositions. As the work is that required by the federal government, the governor is expected to act favorably within the next two weeks. The recount contest, the lawyers say, then would become a nullity.

WOMAN STRIKES DEFENDANT WHEN COURT CLEARS HIM

Miss Maude Keener, 30 years old, 4255 Maypole avenue, took the law into her own hands in Judge Matthew D. Hartigan's Felony court yesterday when she struck George Bromberg, who runs a cigar store at 60 West Madison street.

The trouble arose over a $50 check which Miss Keener had cashed for her maid who had received the check from Bromberg. The check was returned unhonored, and Miss Keener had Bromberg arrested. In court yesterday it developed that Bromberg had obtained the check from another man, so he was cleared of criminal liability. Miss Keener then walked across the courtroom and hit Bromberg in the face. Bailiffs quickly stopped the disturbance. Judge Hartigan let Miss Keener go with a reprimand.

POLICE SLAYER IS EXECUTED IN MICHIGAN CITY

Ignacio Sarragoza, 26 years old, a Mexican who was convicted of the killing of Policeman Charles Glaske of Michigan City last December, was electrocuted shortly after midnight in the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City. He was pronounced dead at 12:10 a. m., seven minutes after the current was turned on.

The killing of Glaske occurred after he had placed Sarragoza under arrest. While the policeman was calling his station for a patrol wagon the Mexican drew a pistol and shot him.

Sarragoza, according to the prison officials, went to his death with stoic fortitude. He had been visited during the day by Adolfo Domingues, Mexican vice consul to Chicago.

JUDGE FISHER'S ACT DRAWS CRITICISM OF BAR ASSOCIATION

Attorney David I. Baim was in receipt of a letter yesterday from the Chicago Bar Association in which Judge M. Fisher was criticized for having technically jailed Baim for contempt of court. The bar association's committee decided Judge Fisher's action was "arbitrary and unwarranted" and it concluded with the statement the judge "had overstepped the bound of judicial propriety, but, we believe, with honesty of purpose."

Judge Fisher had decided to make a test case when Frank Krejza, a youth of 19, offered to plead guilty on a charge of stealing an automobile and sought to bargain for a light sentence. Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach represented Krejza. Judge Fisher instructed the jury orally and commented on the evidence. This was to give the Supreme court an opportunity to pass on the court's action. Krejza was found guilty and a motion was pending for a new trial. Judge Fisher was said to have offered, if the Supreme court upheld the conviction, to ask the governor to pardon Krejza.

At that time Attorney Baim was hired by the defendant's mother to represent him. Baim appeared in court and Judge Fisher asked him who hired him. The attorney contended it wasn't necessary for him to divulge any such information.

He was then held in contempt but later released. The bar committee said Baim was within his rights in refusing to answer.

FORFEITS BONDS IN SIDNEY SMITH HOLDUP HEARING

Charles Cannon, Negro chauffeur for Sidney Smith, the cartoonist, traveled from Memphis, Tenn., to be present yesterday morning at the arraignment of Jack Sopkin, 1862 Komensky avenue, in Municipal Judge Borrelli's court. Cannon had identified Sopkin from photographs as one of the bandits who held up Smith on June 13 and robbed him and Mrs. Smith of $50,000 in jewels.

When Sopkin's case was called he did not appear. Neither did Frank Lavine, 616 West Madison street, who had been arrested with him. Police had been forced to release the men on small bonds when a habeas corpus writ had been filed in their behalf. The judge ordered the bonds forfeited.

Sergt. Thomas Alcock, who arrested Sopkin and Lavine last Saturday night, rearrested the pair last night. They protested that they had been notified to appear in court today and not yesterday. They were held.

Gets 3 Years for Buying Stolen Army Provisions

Accused of receiving stolen property, Sam de Franza, owner of a lunchroom at Highwood near Fort Sheridan, was found guilty by Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday and was sentenced to three years in Leavenworth. De Franza bought stolen provisions from three privates at the fort who have since been dishonorably discharged.

2 APPOINTMENTS BY CERMAK TO COUNCIL TODAY

Mayor Cermak will submit two appointments to the city council for approval at its meeting today. They are those of William J. Lynch as harbormaster and Fred Fischman as superintendent of the city license bureau. Lynch was harbormaster during the Dever administration and Fischman has been in the license bureau since it was organized in 1921.

The council also will consider the request of City Clerk Brady for the letting of a contract, without formal bidding, to the American Decalcomania company for printing 508,380 transparent stickers at a cost of $30.-502. These stickers will be mailed to each legitimate holder of a city vehicle tag, and those without the stickers on their automobile windshields will be questioned by the police.

Another ordinance that will come up for council consideration is one authorizing the city controller to make quarterly audits of the books of the city treasurer. The ordinance is designed to prevent the withdrawals of city money on notes by officials as happened under former City Treasurer Peterson. The city now is attempting to collect $40,000 on the bonds of Peterson, former City Treasurer Singer, and Head Cashier Bingham, that was withdrawn on notes.

NEW WARD MAP TO BE DELAYED, BOWLER ASSERTS

Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the committee that has the matter in charge, said last night that the proposed new ward map will not be ready for action by the city council this afternoon. "Just when it will be ready," said Ald. Bowler, "depends on the success we have in our conferences in the morning."

However, Kellogg Fairbank, for many years a leader of the Municipal Voters' league, said he would not be surprised if there were an effort to railroad the map through at today's session. He recalled that this sort of tactics was used in the last remapping ordinance.

CITY FINANCIAL HOUSES HANDLE BIG BOND DEAL

Buy 85 Million Issue from Edison Co.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The growing financial power of Chicago was demonstrated yesterday when a group of local houses underwrote the new $85,000,000 bond issue of the Commonwealth Edison company. This is the largest public utility issue ever underwritten in Chicago, and it was negotiated without outside participation. The underwriting concerns are Halsey, Stuart & Co., the financial Illinois company, Harris Trust and Savings bank, First Union Trust and Savings bank, and Northern Trust company.

The big issue also offered further evidence of the vast amount of funds seeking high grade investments. The bonds bear 4 per cent and mature April 1, 1981. They were offered publicly by the syndicate late yesterday and were promptly oversubscribed. The offering price was 94½ and interest.

The Double Advantage.

The big issue will prove an advantage to the Commonwealth Edison company both by reducing interest charges and completing a simplification of its funded debt. Part of the proceeds will be used to retire $45,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, $5,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent bonds, both due June 1, 1933. Both of these issues will be called for payment on Sept. 1 at 110 and interest. In addition, the company will offer to purchase on Sept. 1 at 110 Commonwealth Electric Company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds at 110 and interest.

Thus the present refinancing will enable the Commonwealth Edison company to retire around $59,774,000 of bonds bearing higher interest. The balance of the proceeds from the new issue will be used to reimburse the company, in part, for capital expenditures made heretofore in the development of its properties. Some of the other advantages of the new financing were pointed out by Samuel Insull, chairman.

Contrasts Situations.

"It is interesting to contrast the present situation with that which existed during the last period of serious depression in 1921," he said. "Then the public had momentarily lost faith in the future of the utilities, so that it was necessary for the company to finance on a 6 per cent money basis. Now, in common with other utility organizations, the Commonwealth Edison company shares in confidence of the public that the utilities will weather the present period of depression without serious setback."

With the new financing, the Commonwealth Edison company will have outstanding about $157,000,000 first mortgage bonds and $153,058,000 fully paid common stock. In addition, $3,-000,000 of stock is being paid for on deferred payments, making a total of $160,000,000 for capital stock. The total for bonds and stock will be $313,317,000.

NEGATIVE TRADE NEWS

Several items of trade and industry turned to the negative side yesterday. The chief factors were a further decline in steel production and a recession in the railroad movement of coal.

Following in steel mill operations of last week brought output down to the level of last December. The weekly Iron Age estimate placed the average of operations for the country at 41 per cent of capacity, compared with 43 per cent a week previous and 39 per cent two weeks ago. But the American Metal Market set production at 40 per cent, compared with 40 per cent two weeks ago.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended June 13 totaled 732,453 cars, a decline of 28,437 from the preceding week and also a decrease of 161,864 from the corresponding week last year. The recession from two years ago was 237,317 cars. Miscellaneous freight for the second week of this month fell 12,205 cars under the previous week and 71,797 cars below a year ago.

Asserts Rails Can Handle Traffic with Fewer Cars

The railroads, due to greatly increased efficiency in operation, can continue to meet without difficulty for some time to come, with even fewer freight cars than they now own, the transportation requirements of this country based on any reasonable peak of traffic that might be expected, M. J. Gormley, executive vice president, American Railway association, yesterday told the twelfth annual convention of the mechanical division of that association.

"The railroads in 1923," said Mr. Gormley, in addressing the opening session, "adopted a program for the rehabilitation of the transportation machine after the war. Since the beginning of that year, the railroads have spent more than six and three-quarter billions of dollars for improvements in furtherance of that program.

"Since 1923 the railways have placed in service approximately 890,-000 new cars and 15,000 new locomotives, but have retired so many that we now own 116,000 fewer cars, not including refrigerators, than at the high point of ownership in 1925, and have 9,000 fewer locomotives.

Cites Increased Efficiency.

This new and improved equipment, with more powerful locomotives and increased capacity of cars, has brought about an increase in efficiency in movement of cars in the last eight years of 26 per cent based on the miles per car per day, not including surplus equipment. There has also been an increase of 26.6 per cent in the miles per train hour during the same period.

"As a result of this efficiency and economy, the unit cost of railway operation has been decreasing annually. If the unit cost of operation had been the same in 1929 as it was in 1923, the total operating expenses of the carriers would have been greater than they were by $519,000,000. This would have meant a reduction of 4½ per cent in the net income actually earned in 1929.

"We do not, however, get full advantage of this increase in efficiency in movement unless it is paralleled with a reduction in the amount of capital invested in equipment.

"In view of the greatly increased efficiency of movement, and based on any reasonable peak of traffic that might be expected, we now estimate that the traffic of the country for some time to come can be handled with a further decrease in freight cars, not including refrigerators, of 154,000, which would mean a total reduction of 250,000 under the ownership at its high point in 1925. This is a conservative estimate, and is not based on the depressed situation of today or of last year.

Privately Owned Cars.

"In bringing about any reduction in car ownership it should always be kept in mind that it can be accomplished successfully only by continuing the policy of replacement of the less efficient cars by a lesser number of modern cars and by a standard of maintenance that will reduce delays to loaded cars en route.

"There are a great many privately owned freight cars in service today, due to the failure of the railroads in years gone by, for financial reasons or otherwise, to furnish all equipment needed for the movement of certain special types of traffic. With the exception of the brine tank refrigerator cars, tank cars, and a small number of other special type cars, the railroads are today, through their ownership or through railroad controlled private refrigerator lines, in position to furnish all equipment needed for the movement of the traffic of the country. There certainly can be no justification today for the extension of the ownership of private freight cars beyond what now exists. This is particularly applicable to stock and refrigerator cars."

The protective division of the American Railway association, meeting at the Stevens hotel yesterday, heard George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney, state that "crime is really a contagious disease and the fight against it should be just as strenuous as is the fight made by the health department against the ravages of disease." Acting Police Commissioner Alcock welcomed the railroad detectives attending the meeting, which was called to discuss ways to halt the recent increase in railroad robberies.

Ten Years Ago in Finance

Crude rubber sells at 11¾ cents a pound, a new low record. This figure represents a decline of nearly 80 per cent from the 1920 peak price of 55 cents.

The Bank of England again reduces its discount rate. The new rate of 6 per cent, it is asserted, represents in actual fact the yielding by the bank to conditions in the open market. The private discount rate has ranged around 5⅛ per cent ever since the bank rate was reduced to 6½ per cent on April 28.

Railway shares are weak in New York trading. Declines in industrials are attributed to a belief that U. S. Steel corporation will act to further reduce steel prices. U. S. Steel shares close at 70¾ in active trading.

On the Chicago exchange Sears Roebuck shares drop to 63¾, a new low mark. The company states that indebtedness has been reduced around $20,000,000.

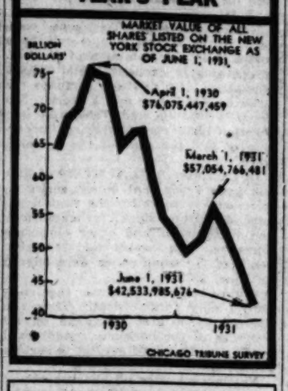
ON JUNE 1ST NEW YORK EXCHANGE STOCKS WERE DOWN FIFTEEN BILLION DOLLARS FROM THIS YEAR'S PEAK



U. S. JUDGE ASSAILS TACTICS FOLLOWED BY N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE

Boston, Mass., June 23.—(AP)—The methods of the New York stock exchange were assailed here today by Federal Judge William Clark of New Jersey, who sai dthat unless brokers ceased extending credit to customers "government interference will see that it does."

Judge Clarke, who came into wide prominence several months ago as a result of his opinion holding the 18th amendment unconstitutional, was addressing the 35th annual convention of the National Association of Credit Men on "Preventing Voluntary Asset Slaughter."

He followed William S. Muller, president of the New York Curb exchange, who had asserted that "nationalistic interference in the orderly process of supply and demand in the world commodity markets is perhaps one of the outstanding causes" of world-wide depression.

Judge Clarke declared the stock exchange was unwilling to reform itself. He particularly advocated that it compel brokers to refer their customers to banks when seeking credit. He criticized low standards of conduct by business men and said it was surprising the amount of assets which come into possession of "speculators, swindlers, loafers and fools."

Discussing cases before his court, he said 80 per cent of the money taken by embezzlers had been used on the New York stock exchange.

BANKERS SEEN READY TO GIVE GERMAN CREDIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—Contrary to reports, a $200,000,000 credit for the Reichsbank has not been arranged by the federal reserve banks. The local reserve institution denied today that such a credit had been granted or asked for.

Commercial banking opinion in Wall street, nevertheless, was almost unanimous that an international credit of large proportions would be required to tide the Reichsbank over its June 30 settlements and that the federal reserve bank, which has been watching the situation from hour to hour, would be ready to act if asked. Commercial banks and private banks also stand ready to aid in providing any accommodation the German central bank might require.

In well informed international banking circles it was pointed out that although the mark this morning crossed the gold point, relieving the Reichsbank from further demands upon its gold reserve, and that sentiment was vastly improved by publication of President Hoover's statement over the week-end, the Reichsbank still had to carry through large June 30 payments with a gold reserve depleted by some $500,000,000.

The Franklin County Coal company with offices at 232 South Clark street was ordered foreclosed yesterday in a federal court order entered at East St. Louis. A petition for the foreclosure was asked by a trustee for mortgage holders, the company having defaulted last Jan. 2 on bond retirement and interest. Neither H. H. Taylor, president of the company, nor other officials could be reached for a statement last night. The company is capitalized at $5,000,000.

NORTH WESTERN REPORTS 86,404 CAR LOADINGS

Car loadings of the Chicago and North Western railway showed a slightly smaller decrease from a year ago in the first three weeks of June than in the first two weeks of the month, figures released by the company yesterday show. Loadings in the first 21 days of the month totaled 86,404 cars, as compared with 102,835 in the corresponding weeks of 1930.

This was a decline of 16 per cent, as compared with a decline of 16.6 per cent in the first 14 days of the month. Meat and packing house products were the only class of commodities to show a gain over the 1930 period.

During the period June 1 to 21, inclusive, revenue cars loaded on the Milwaukee road and received from connections totaled 93,571, compared with 106,194 last year.

New Committee to Look After Foreman Securities

Announcement is made today of a new bondholders' protective committee of which Holman D. Pettibone, vice president, Chicago Title and Trust company, is chairman, to supersede all committees now functioning in connection with defaulted securities underwritten or sold by or through the Foreman State National bank, Foreman State Trust and Savings bank and the State Bank of Chicago.

The formation of such a committee is considered necessary to enable the holders of securities on each property involved to take concerted action with respect to the collection of rents, management, refinancing and reorganization of the various properties and such other matters which the security holders, without such centralized representation, could not expeditiously accomplish.

This committee will succeed to all the rights inherent in any and all committees previously organized and existing in connection with the securities in question and will have the full coöperation of the First National bank interests which took over the Foreman State group recently.

Plans to Pay Depositors.

Proceeds of the liquid assets of the South Side Savings Bank and Trust company will be made available to depositors of the institution for immediate withdrawal if the reorganization plan now being considered by the depositors' committee is accepted and put into effect.

The plan contemplates the securing of new capital and the utilization of the bank's good will, deposit accounts, location and physical property. Under the plan trust certificates would be issued to depositors for the balance of their claims and monthly dividends would be paid as the slow assets are liquidated.

The sub-committee working on the plans of reorganization is made up of John B. Anderson, Richard M. O'Brien, George M. Weichelt and Lewis F. Jacobson. According to the announcement made by the committee several persons have offered to subscribe new capital and surplus.

The Glencoe State bank failed to open its doors yesterday morning following a meeting of the board of directors of the bank at which a resolution was passed requesting the state auditor to take over the affairs of the institution. As of March 25 last, the deposits of the institution were approximately $1,000,000, capital of $125,000 and surplus of $50,000.

Deposits of the institution at the time of closing were approximately $685,000.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—Belief that the Chicago bank situation is now "pretty well cleared up" was expressed by the Chicago Association of Commerce in its weekly report to the President's emergency committee for employment, made public today.

"Business in Chicago has been under a severe strain," the report said, "as a result of the closing of a number of neighborhood banks and the merger of four large loop banks. It is believed locally, however, that the Chicago bank situation is now pretty well cleared up."

Business as a whole was reported as showing but slight change during the last week. Wholesale houses, according to the association's report, are maintaining a volume of business equal to that of the same period last year, while retail sales throughout the city were reported as "quiet."

Jobs filled by the Illinois free employment bureau in Chicago for the week ended June 13 totaled 814, according to a report made by John Keane, general superintendent of the bureau, to the President's committee. This compared with 853 for the previous week and 766 for the same period last year, Mr. Keane said.

RAILS TO MEET HERE TODAY TO SPEED ANSWER

Despite the demand of the interstate commerce commission for the list of exceptions, J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and chairman of the general rate committee, said yesterday that the move to ascertain specific intentions of the roads in regard to rate boosts probably would not hold the case up.

"The railroads anticipated the I. C. C. order," he declared. "They are engaged in preparation of their answer to the commission, and it is my opinion that it will be filed within the prescribed fifteen days.

"It is too early to predict what commodities will be eliminated from the proposed general rate increase. We need to raise about $400,000,000 more revenue per year. I feel that the petition will remain a revenue case and that it will be expedited as much as possible.

"Eastern, western and southern rail executives will meet at the Blackstone hotel at Chicago today to speed the carriers' answer to the commission," Pelley asserted.

"In conformity with the policy of the railroads adopted last November to seek coöperation of competitive forms of transportation and outstanding shippers, the advisory board of the American Railway association will confer with the National Industrial Traffic league in Chicago on Thursday," he said.

Mr. Pelley said there is no indication of improved business conditions "to be found at the present moment."

Organize Association to Protect Textile Designs

The Design Protective Association, Inc., organized to eradicate copying of textile designs until such time as protective laws have been passed, has been formally launched. The step represents the results of many weeks of effort on the part of the anti-piracy group of the Silk Association of America to devise a means of reducing design piracy without legislative action.

INSULL UTILITY BUYS INDIANA TRACTION FIRM

Properties of the Terre Haute Indianapolis and Eastern Traction company were sold yesterday at public auction in Indianapolis by Elmer W. Stout, receiver for the company, acting under orders of Judge Russell J. Ryan of the Marion Superior court.

R. P. Shearon, secretary of the Midland United company, was the only bidder, his bid being $2,500,000. The sale is subject to confirmation by Judge Ryan next Monday, June 29.

Ownership of the company gives the Insull controlled Midland United company control of the Terre Haute Traction and Light company, which serves Terre Haute with electric light and power and street railway service.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23. — The stock market suffered a natural reaction today. Exhaustion of the short interest during Saturday's advance and yesterday's exciting session had sapped the list of "technical support," with the result that, with most traders consolidating their profits, active stocks declined from one to four points. Trading resumed a more normal appearance, the turnover dropping to about 2,700,000 shares. Wall street generally appeared to be taking a calmer view of President Hoover's move to stabilize world economic and financial conditions.

Although losses were widespread and affected virtually all important stocks in the industrial and railroad groups, the market could not be described as particularly weak. Copper stocks reacted favorably to the news of large export sales and a higher price for the metal, and some of the specialties advanced moderately on small sales. Oils, too, offered resistance to selling pressure, and just about held their own during the day.

The reaction today was viewed generally as a healthy development in view of the rapid advance stocks enjoyed during the last two days of trading. Such a pace was obviously impossible of maintenance under present conditions. Market judgment still is being withheld as to whether the upward movement is to be continued.

An Uncertain Course.

The market followed a somewhat uncertain course today, especially during the early hours of trading. Profit taking persisted much of the time and, as a consequence, such rallies as occurred were of brief duration. Yesterday stocks of every kind were taken on the rebounds in sufficient volume to push prices forward steadily, but today the opposite was true. Any kind of a bulge was sufficient to attract all sorts of eager profit takers.

The opening today also was in strong contrast to yesterday. Volume of business had shrunk to a few thousand shares and most of the market leaders started at levels lower than their closing prices of the day previous. A brief rally followed, but the rise attracted a flood of selling that

Safe Investment

A large tract of land adjacent to Park Ridge can be had. The World's Fair, Deep Waterway and traction problem settled. Transportation (the foundation of values). Improvements available. Ripe for subdivison. Will make money.

This can be bought all or in part or investors can group together and buy the entire tract.

There is bound to be a big subdivision development in the near future because there have been no homes or apartment buildings built for the past four years.

This is no cheap subdivision tract, but for high-grade purposes only.

Priced from 30% to 40% below adjacent property, and all financed for a number of years.

If handled by group of investors, individual investment of $10,000 to $15,000 is necessary. Reference required.

WHEAT OWNED BY U. S. TO COMPETE WITH NEW CROP

Farm Board Stand Sends Prices Lower.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Government owned wheat will continue to compete with the new crop now being harvested by American farmers in the southwest. This situation was disclosed by an announcement made at Washington yesterday to the effect that the federal farm board has refused to change its policy. Acting Chairman Williams of the board was quoted as saying there was no change contemplated.

The announcement, following three days of rumors that President Hoover would shortly issue a statement saying there would be no competition between the government and the farmers' grain, put an effective check on the advancing tendency displayed by the wheat market on Monday. The greater part of the advance made that day was lost, with liquidation by speculators strongly in evidence. At the inside prices were off around 2c from the previous close and the finish was at net losses of 1½@1¾c, with July, 57½ to 57¾c; September, 58⅜ to 58⅝c, and December, 62¾ to 62⅞c.

New Wheat Moving in Kansas.

Movement of the new winter wheat crop in the southwest is increasing by leaps and bounds and in the last two days around 1,500,000 bu have been received at terminal markets, arrivals yesterday being around 332 cars, of which Chicago had ten cars and Minneapolis three cars. The bulk of this grain went to mills and was of excellent quality, and the greater part of the sixty cars of new grain at Kansas City graded No. 1 hard.

First threshing returns from Kansas came from the Harper territory, where a field yielded 30 bu per acre, tested 63 lbs with 11 per cent moisture, and sold at 35c net to the farmer.

A wave of selling developed in the wheat market at the start yesterday owing to the decided change in the outlook overnight, and the professional element, who were so confident that the government would not dare to compete with the farmer, were active on that side. Buying against bids checked the decline, but there was little activity after the opening and the rally from the inside figures toward the last was due mainly to local buying. A rumor that an announcement might be made overnight on the prohibition question attracted some attention.

Acts as Wet Blanket.

As the trade see it, the American government holding of wheat acts as a wet blanket on the market not only in this country but also in Canada and in other exporting countries, and the Winnipeg market made a full response to the decline in Chicago, closing 1⅝@1¾c lower, with the July at 61½c, while Liverpool cables said the decline of ⅛@⅜d in that market was due to the farm board's refusal to change its policy. July there was 61c at the last.

Soaking rains over part of the corn belt with the weakness in wheat brought in profit taking and local and commission house pressure, with prices at the inside showing 1¾c under Monday's close, but the feeling was not as pessimistic as was the case in wheat, and the finish was at net losses of only 1⅛@1⅜c, with July, 58c; September, 56 to 56¼c, and December, 49⅛c to 49¼c. The prohibition report had a little effect, and there was also buying of corn against sales of wheat.

Offerings Less Free.

Country offerings of corn to arrive were not as free as on Monday, although purchases of 86,000 bu were reported and there were 220,000 bu sold to go to store, presumably for delivery on July contracts. Crop reports on the whole were favorable, with high temperatures following the rains in parts of Iowa.

The technical position of the oats and rye markets had apparently been weakened by the sharp advance which has occurred of late and with local longs on the selling side oats closed ⅛@¼c lower, with the July finishing at 26⅞c, September at 27½c and December, 30¼c. Rye lost 1⅝@1¾c, although the northwest was a buyer on the decline. July was 37½c at the last, with September 39¾c, and December, 42¾c.

TRADE IN CASH MEATS

A cash handler of meats and lard says trade so far this month has been good. Within the last few days the demand has fallen off. Speculative operations in both of these products the last few days has been lighter, with shorts buying on weak spots and packers credited with hedging their lard by sales of September. Prices moved within a narrow range and closed 5@7½c net lower. Bellies were given fair attention and closed 5c lower to unchanged. Liverpool lard was 3@6d higher, the latter on October, while cash lard was the strongest. Exports of lard from New York was 964,000 lbs. Hog supplies were fair, and the market to 10c lower early but closed strong, with the top at $7.65. Prices follow:

BUTTER PRICES HIGHER

Butter and egg futures moved forward actively on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday on aggressive buying. Potato futures were firm to 1c higher. November butter was up ¾@¼c, June up ⅝c, and July up ⅝c at the close. Statistical news encouraged buying, the storage reports for last week and for yesterday showing a considerably less movement inward than a year ago. While the egg news was not as favorable for last week, more eggs being stored than last year, support was active and carried the November delivery up ⅝c. Sales: Butter, 112 cars; eggs, 34 cars; potatoes, 26 cars. Deliveries: butter, 2 cars; eggs, 5 cars. Prices follow:

WORLD'S-GRAIN MARKET-NEWS

Traders who bought wheat on Monday were said to be well out of it last night. It was said by a number of pit traders that until positive notification from the farm board as to its attitude in disposing of its 200,000,000 bu or more of wheat, the speculative element of the trade will not do any trading of consequence, because there is too much uncertainty, and cited action of the market on Monday. Pit gossip was that the farm board sold wheat on Monday's bulge and on the rally Tuesday. There also was a story that sales of 1,500,000 bu of June wheat made at Duluth on Monday were for the farm board and that they also had sold June wheat in Minneapolis and Chicago. There was no confirmation of these reports, but traders claimed that no one other than the farm board was likely to be "long" any line of June wheat of consequence.

"The wheat situation is so complicated by political and economical factors that it is difficult to base an opinion on the usual run of news. Tuesday's market was a distinct disappointment after the big broadening in trade Monday. Something will have to occur to stimulate the speculative imagination sufficiently to absorb hedging pressure," says S. C. Harris.

A wire from Emporia, Kas., says: "Field barley just combined here made 70 bu per acre, tested 51 lbs. If weather continues good, permitting efficient harvest, believe threshing returns will materially exceed estimates on all grains."

British Columbia Telephone.

Enclosed find a self-addressed, stamped envelope for return answer. Please send me information as to the desirability of acquiring British Columbia Telephone company first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series A. Are they safe for a woman to invest in?—Miss E. J. D.

British Columbia Telephone company is the second largest telephone company in the Dominion of Canada. It operates 59 exchanges and 117,000 telephones. Its territory includes the cities of Vancouver and Victoria. National Telephone and Telegraph corporation holds control through ownership of 95.5 per cent of the common stock.

In December, 1930, $7,500,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, series A, were offered to retire the first mortgage debenture stock, for extensions and betterments and other corporate purposes. An additional $2,500,000 bonds of the same series were offered in June, 1931.

These bonds constitute the company's only funded debt. They are secured by a first mortgage on all property of the company. Additional bonds may be issued subject to certain provisions in the indenture.

Net income after all charges except interest, sinking fund and pension fund for 1930 was $1,034,221, against $1,114,608 for 1929.

Annual interest charges on the present outstanding debt, excluding the debenture stock, totals $500,000. The company has $10,000,000 of stock outstanding.

The first mortgage 5s, series A, due Dec. 1, 1960, are regarded as reasonably sound.

Terminology.

Your article on fixed trusts, which I read, interested me. I want to ask you if you would tell me what is meant by a regular dividend, extra cash dividend and stock dividend? Thank you.—Miss E. H.

A dividend is a distribution made to a stockholder. Unless otherwise stated it is presumed to be paid from the earnings of the company. When like amounts are paid at stipulated periods the stock is said to be on a "regular dividend basis." Any additional dividend would be termed an "extra" dividend.

For various reasons some companies prefer to retain cash yet are desirous of making a distribution to stockholders. Stock dividends may then be declared and a percentage of the stock held distributed in lieu of or in addition to cash dividend. This does not alter the stockholder's share in the ownership of the company.

Phoenix Petroleum.

Will you kindly give me your report on Phoenix Petroleum company? Is it still in existence?—L. U.

Phoenix Petroleum company is defunct. No value was found for its stock for inheritance tax purposes on April 18, 1919.

HARVEST IN KANSAS

Harvest is on in southwest Kansas with yields of 15 bu per acre and test weight high, according to wire from Kansas City. Combines operating all over southern and southwestern part.

J. E. Bennett & Co.'s St. Louis office wires they had 7 cars new Oklahoma wheat in Monday; all applied on contract. No. 1 hard offered at 64c, shipment by Wednesday, and No. 2 red at 63c, immediate shipment.

H. C. Donovan wires from Estevan, Sask., to Logan & Bryan: Wheat improves from near failure to scattered fields and patches in fields promising 30 per cent of crop. Scarcely half of tractors in Saskatchewan were used in this crop because farmers were financially unable to buy fuel. Consequence crop poorly put in, causing shallow plowing.

Total sowings of all crops in Canada on June 1 totaled 186,313,000 acres, or 17,837,000 acres more than a year ago. Weather conditions satisfactory and crop seeding good progress. Seeding of wheat nearly completed, with the latest figures placing spring wheat acreage on June 1 at 21,000,000 acres, compared to 16,400,000 on same date last year. Total spring wheat area last year amounted to slightly over 20,000,000 acres. Total this year is expected to approach the soviet year of 30,000,000 acres.

"DEPRESSION-PROOF"

THE SERVICE OF WATER has proved itself to be "depression-proof" in so far as it is possible to so describe any industry.

Community Water Service Company

serves a rapidly growing population over 50% of which is adjacent to the cities of Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh. The Company's gross and net earnings in 1930, a depression year, exceeded all previous years. The Common Stock of this major water works system in our opinion constitutes an attractive investment purchase at the present time

MILD REACTION TAKES PLACE IN CHICAGO STOCKS

Majority of Issues Hold Most of Gains.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Security markets displayed moderately reactionary tendencies yesterday as the first wave of enthusiasm which swept the world following the Hoover debt proposal abated somewhat in intensity. The reaction, however, was not severe and the majority of issues held the better part of the ground made during the two preceding trading sessions in spontaneous response to the American plan for the alleviation of Germany's financial plight.

The volume of trading declined on the Chicago exchange during the reaction which is generally regarded as a healthy market indicator. Belated recognition of the previous advance was made by a few stocks which had not shared in the rally but these issues were held in check by the general profit taking. The strength shown by the radio shares on the big board was reflected here in U. S. Radio which added to its recent improvement and in Grigsby-Grunow which held steady around its previous price.

Exceptions to Trend.

There were other exceptions to the declining trend notably Kalamazoo Stove and A. M. Castle. In the case of Kalamazoo its gain was achieved on a fairly heavy volume of transactions while Castle's improvement came on an odd lot trade.

The issuing stocks were generally firm. Commonwealth Edison was slightly off following the announcement of plans for its huge refunding program which has been expected for some time.

The W. F. Hall Printing company announced yesterday that its printing contract with Montgomery Ward & Co. has been renewed for a ten year period. The contract involves over $1,500,000 and represents a 30 per cent gain in the volume of business over the work formerly done by the printing firm for the Ward concern.

An explanation of the recent strength in E. L. Bruce company common stock is offered by those in touch with the firm's affairs, who state that the company has exported 40 per cent more hardwood so far this year than in any comparable period in the company's history. In this connection it was pointed out that the Hardwood Manufacturers Institute reported that hardwood orders for the first 22 weeks of the year were 61 million feet in excess of production for the same period.

Week Meetings Today.

Directors' meetings today of several corporations are being watched closely by the financial community for possible changes in dividend rates. Directors of Westinghouse and the Baltimore and Ohio are scheduled to meet today. Several more important meetings including Northern Pacific, Armour, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Pennsylvania will be held in the next few days.

The Chicago exchange announced yesterday that a membership has been sold for $10,000, compared with the previous price of $8,000.

Directors and officers were reelected at the annual meeting yesterday of the Zenith Radio corporation. Stockholders were informed that business is showing a satisfactory increase particularly in the higher priced sets.

BRISK FOREIGN BUYING SENDS COPPER PRICE UP 1-4 CENT A POUND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 23.—Brisk foreign buying of copper yesterday, which followed President Hoover's announcement of a debt moratorium plan, resulted today in an advance of ¼ of a cent in the price of copper for export to 8.525 cents a pound. The domestic price also was raised ¼ of a cent a pound, to 8.114 cents.

The advance in the export price of copper had no apparent affect on foreign demand. Europe continued to buy freely, with the result that sales of the red metal for shipment abroad totaled 17,500,000 pounds. Those sales brought the total for foreign account up to nearly 29,000,000 pounds in two days, which was by far the heaviest foreign buying seen so far this year.

Domestic buying of copper also was good, following a heavy buying movement yesterday, when it was estimated 20,000,0000 pounds were sold. Offerings were restricted, indicating that producers were not anxious to sell.

Other metals also were higher. Lead, which advanced $5 a ton yesterday, added another $3 a ton today, when the price advanced to 4.15 cents a pound. Zinc also was $1 a ton higher at 3.111 cents a pound.

Following the rise in the copper market prices of copper products also advanced. The General Cable corporation, which usually takes the lead in adjusting prices of wire, raised the cent a pound to 10 cents a pound for carload lots.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Discounts Action.

Associated Gas and Electric to a large extent appears to have discounted the action of directors in reducing the cash option of the quarterly dividend from 50 cents to 25 cents. Associated Gas had not been giving such a good account of itself in the past few months, and the previous high yield on the stock undoubtedly tended to create some uneasiness regarding the maintenance of the old basis.

Improved Buying.

It now that the railroad list has turned upward Pennroad is meeting with a much improved grade of buying.

Favorable Reaction.

Pitney-Bowes has reacted rather favorably to the announcement by officials that a semi-annual stock dividend of 1 per cent had been declared in place of the quarterly cash payment of 1 cents a share, as heretofore. This step was taken, according to Walter H. Bowes, president of the corporation to conserve cash resources for further expansion and development of the company's rental business, involving moderate investment. Pitney-Bowes' business in the first half of 1931 is reported to be running considerably under the preceding year.

Price Moves Up.

What appears to be some of the best buying in months is now taking place in American and Foreign Power warrants, at least that is the opinion of several operators who have been closely allied with the utility situation in the past. American and Foreign Power has rallied to a level which is some 7 points above its 1931 low.

Control Expenses.

The decline in Anchor Post Fence to the lowest level in several years is due to the cessation of the regular quarterly stock dividend of 2½ per cent. Business of the corporation is believed to have fallen off for some time, but the management has been following a policy of curtailing expenses. Sales in the first five months of 1931 are estimated at about 27 per cent below those of the corresponding 1930 period. Efforts to effect economies, however, should aid net profits in the second half year.

Gulf Ports Business.

General Parts corporation has taken over the service department of Paige and Jordan Motors and will manufacture all replacement parts for former models of these automobiles.

RENTS CONTROL.

London and Foreign Power has obtained a controlling interest in the company operating electric and gas properties in the city of Bucharest, Rumania.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Tuesday: Cattle, 9,000; hogs, 19,000; sheep, 16,000.

All classes of live stock slumped in price yesterday when all receipts exceeded expectations and were rather large for Tuesday. Hogs scored a comeback in midsession and finished strong, with the general selling Monday. Closing sales of cattle were made at the full decline, while the lamb market was more spotted late, with salesmen resisting additional price cuts.

Hog receipts at 22,000 equaled the largest for Tuesday since Feb. 24. The eleven leading markets handled 84,000 against 64,000 the previous Tuesday. However, supplies are still running small for this time of the year. In 1930 the eleven points had 103,600 and two years ago the total was 107,000.

Activity featured the trade when prices broke 5@15c at the opening, bringing all interests on the market for good sized droves. Only 5,000 hogs were left at the close. The extreme top and general average prices moved down 5c at $7.55 and $6.85, respectively. Five western markets expect 54,000 today against 39,100 last Wednesday. Aggregate supplies so far this week are running 26 per cent smaller than a year ago.

Today's Hogs Bid $7.50.

Lightweight hogs for today's delivery were bid $7.50 on the "to arrive" market yesterday, but no offers were made. Bids for August lightweights ranged up to $7.70 and July contracts carried bids of $7.60. September light were offered at $8.25, but the highest bid stopped at $7.60. Medium and heavy for September were offered at $8.00 and bid $7.60.

Cattle broke 25c yesterday and buyers found little opposition and occasionally obtained stock that was considered 25@50c below the closing quotations of last week's market. Offerings were among the largest for Tuesday in recent weeks and the combined total at 20 leading cattle markets this week shows an increase of 15 per cent compared with a week ago and is almost 50 per cent higher than the corresponding two days in 1929.

Choice 940 lb yearlings topped the price list at $8.60, while $8.50 was paid for several shipments averaging 1,068@1,177 lbs. Cows and heifers ruled weak to 25c lower and were slow sellers. Calves slumped 50c. Stockers and feeders were slow and weak.

Shipping Demand Is Small.

Demand for lamb on local account continues good, but eastern orders are smallest of the year, which is usual in June when the south supplies the east with most of its slaughter stock. Local interests have practically all of the advantage in the absence of shipping competition and prices were forced lower again yesterday.

Most strong weight native lambs sold around the $8.00 line to packers, while city butchers paid up to $8.25 and yard traders bought one lot at $8.50. Idaho range lambs sold at $8.00@8.25. While shipments from Chicago so far this month are only equal to a year ago, receipts show an increase of about 20 per cent.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today at 3.35c for spots, duty paid. No sales were reported.

Price changes, however, were comparatively narrow, with the market closing net unchanged to 2 points lower. Sales aggregated only 29,000 tons. Prices follow:

COFFEE.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—COFFEE—Futures lost part of their yesterday's advance under realizing, promoted by the reactionary ruling of the European and Brazilian exchange. No. 7 contracts closed 10 to 15 net lower. Sales, 16,000 bags. Santos contracts closed 16 to 23 lower. Sales, 18,000 bags. PREPARE PLANS FOR SUBSTATION IN NORTH WABASH

Commonwealth Edison to Build Soon.

BY AL CHASE.

Plans are now being prepared and bids will be taken in about a month for a new building to be erected by the Commonwealth Edison company at 11-15 North Wabash avenue on a site 40½x162½. The front section will be three stories with a substation in the rear. This will be the company's third in the loop. The Wabash avenue unit will have foundations for seven additional stories. Holabird & Root are the architects.

The Insull interests purchased the land back in September, 1928, for $712,500 from Babette Mandel, Edward M. Mandel and Rose M. Louer. Last February they bought the leasehold estates of the Globe-Wernicke company and John P. Harding, thus merging the fee and leasehold. The total cost of fee and leaseholds is reported to have been approximately $1,000,000, which is at the rate of $25,000 a front foot.

Hat Company Reorganizes.

Transfer yesterday by the Stonehill Building corporation, of which Roy E. Wyle is president, of the six story building at 1632-36 Indiana avenue, to the Wyle Hat corporation, recently incorporated, disclosed a reorganization in the Wyle Hat company. J. M. Jogi is president of the New Wyle Hat corporation. The property just transferred occupies a site 62x163 and is used entirely by the hat concern. There are approximately ninety Wyle hat stores in the Chicago area, some of which are operated by Wyle, Inc., of which Clarence H. Wyle, a brother of Roy E. Wyle, is president.

The Wyle hat concern has had an interesting career. Expensive foreign and domestic hats are duplicated in the Chicago plant on Indiana avenue and sold at the Wyle shops at one uniform popular price. The new Wyle Hat corporation is capitalized at $275,000. Markheim & Allie were attorneys in the reorganization proceedings.

Sims Repurchases House.

Edwin W. Sims, of the law firm of Sims, Goodman & Stransky, and former United States District attorney, yesterday repurchased the twelve room residence at the southwest corner of Kenwood avenue and East 48th street, lot 75x137, from Edward P. Wells. The latter, who is now living in California, bought it five years ago. Mr. Sims, who now lives at 112 Bellevue place, intends to sell the house again.

The Great Western Service Station, Inc., has purchased the gas station at the southeast corner of Diversey and Long avenues, lot 51x124, from Victor Rootberg and others for an undisclosed price, subject to $33,000.

COTTON IRREGULAR

Liberal selling of cotton by local and traders in general broke prices 25@30 points early yesterday, with a rally of 15 points later on short covering. Toward the last the market firmed up and closed around the best prices, after a range of 27@30 points for the day. The close was at losses of 26@ points in Chicago, with other markets off 30@5 points. Spot lost 5 points, with New York 9.70c, New Orleans 9.55c, Galveston 9.60c, and Houston 9.55c. Liverpool closed unchanged to 1 point lower, with sales of 500 bales of spots. There has been an advance of 140 points in the Chicago Board of Trade in the last few days, equal to $7.00 a bale. Weather over the belt was clear and hot, except for light showers in western Tennessee.

The New York Cotton Exchange Service says the world used approximately 943,000 bales of American cotton in May, against 1,026,000 bales last season and 1,339,000 bales two years ago. Total consumption for 10 months ended May 31 years 9,385,000 bales, against 11,561,000 bales a year ago and 13,806,000 two years ago. Consumption in May was smaller than in April, both in the United States and foreign countries. A trading market is advised by J. E. Bennett & Co. until there are further developments in the Hoover proposal. Thomson & McKinnon says they feel that nothing more than moderate declines will be natural until something is the way of a good rain is received. Prices follow:

Commonwealth Edison Company

First Mortgage 4% Gold Bonds, Series F

Due March 1, 1981

Price 94½ and Interest, Yielding over 4¼%

The following is summarized from a letter of Mr. Samuel Insull, Chairman of Commonwealth Edison Company:

Business: Commonwealth Edison Company supplies with electrical energy, practically without competition, the entire City of Chicago, having a population of 3,375,000. The Company is one of the largest electricity supply companies in the world.

Purpose: The proceeds from the sale of these Series F Bonds together with other funds of the Company will be used: to redeem at 110 and accrued interest on September 1, 1931, the $45,774,000 5% and $6,000,000 6% First Mortgage Gold Bonds issued by the Company under its First Mortgage, dated June 1, 1898, to purchase at 110 and accrued interest on September 1, 1931, all or any part of the $8,000,000 5% First Mortgage Gold Bonds issued by Commonwealth Electric Company under said First Mortgage dated June 1, 1898, which may then be offered for sale to the Company at such price, and to maintain satisfactory deposit for such bonds not so purchased; and any unused balance of such proceeds will be applied to reimburse the Company in part for capital expenditures heretofore made in the development of its properties.

Security: These Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be secured by a direct first mortgage lien on all of the fixed properties, rights and franchises of the Company now owned, and on all such property hereafter acquired against which any bonds may be issued under the Mortgage, subject, however, to said Mortgage dated June 1, 1898, securing the non-redeemable Commonwealth Electric Company First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds of which there will be outstanding only such bonds as shall not have been purchased by the Company. Until the release of the Company's said mortgage dated June 1, 1898, the Company will maintain either with the trustee under the Mortgage or with the trustee under said Mortgage dated June 1, 1898, a deposit acceptable to the trustee adequate for the discharge of the principal and all interest to maturity of all such non-redeemable bonds at any time outstanding.

Earnings and Expenses: Operating revenue (including other income) for the twelve months ended December 31, 1930, was $84,739,342. Total expenses (including charges for amortization, retirement reserve, etc.), except interest on funded debt were $62,194,074 and the Net Income was $22,545,268. The annual interest on the net funded debt of the Company in the hands of the public, including the present issue, will require $6,790,000.

Stock Equity and Dividend Record: The outstanding capital stock of the Company paying 8% dividend has a market value, as indicated by present quotations, of about $300,000,000.

A circular more fully descriptive of this issue will be sent upon request.
